ISH I'D SAID

There seems to be something in human nature that makes us feel that profit is a poor reason for helping others. But this is a feeling we should resist. To give a man something because we feel it would be good for him, in effect, establishes a relationship of superior to inferior. It is difficult to do good without being condescending and paternalistic on the one hand, and without perpetuating dependence on the other hand. To hire a man because he needs a job rather than the job needs him, for example, is to assure him that he is useless. Conversely, to help a man because it is in your own interest to help him, to hire him because you need his labor, is to treat him as an equal. In such a relationship, the message comes through loud and clear-the employer has confidence in the ability of the man he hires to earn his pay and stand on his own feet.

-Henry Ford II Chairman of the Board Ford Motor Company

"For a change I'm not going to insist on the usual formality of a vote. We'll just go on doing everything my way, period."

A GRIM CHALLENGE!

PUBLIC RESPONSIBILITY

More than three and one-half million Americans will reach voting age this year. They face a heavy responsibility.

The future of the nation depends on citizens who are willing to study carefully and weigh the economic, educational and social issues-and vote for candidates who stand for sound government at every level-national, state and local.

We are talking particularly to the new votersand the generations to follow-because they will have to cope with the colossal expenditures for programs implemented before they could have their say at the polls.

We are talking to the new voters also in the hope that they will believe that progress depends on individual incentive-not federal paternalism.

Where this nation will head in the '70s should be the prime concern of the young people of this generation. To a large degree, it's their responsibility. The time to start is now. A major public decision will come this November with your initial vote. It could be a determining factor in the establishing of a more responsible electorate.
