THIS WEEK IN HISTORY – OBAMA INAUGURATED

President Barack Obama and the First Lady Michelle Obama make an appearance at the Midwestern Inaugural Ball at the Washington D.C. Convention Center in Washington, D.C., Jan. 20, 2009.

This week in 2009, Elon University students and alumni were among the 2 million people who gathered in Washington D.C. to witness the historical inauguration of Barack Obama as President of the United States.

as President of the United States.

The day was the coldest inauguration day in history — temperatures began at 7 degrees and never rose above freezing — but that would not discourage the members of the Elon community who made the trip to see the first African American president's swearing-in ceremony.

"I think it's one of those once in a lifetime opportunities," Megan Farrell '08 said.

Marshall Sharpe '10 drove a van from Elon to Maryland for the event and got up bright and early to hike to the National Mall.

"Being young and in college, you have to take an opportunity to be a part of this," Sharpe said. He thought the inauguration was part of something bigger.

Farrell agreed. She said it would have been a shame to not be in attendance given the opportunity.

"For our generation, a lot of things have happened, but very few things have happened that we've been able to be a part of, especially politically," Farrell said. "I feel a responsibility to my children and grandchildren to go.
