We are urging you to join us. With you, our organization will grow bigger, stronger, and better.

Among the activities of the Y's during this semester were the sponsoring of a Chapel Program and a "Religious Emphasis Week" service. The program highlighted the progress made by American Ne-groes today in areas of politics, education, economics and religion. James Herring and Stanley Johnson discussed two approaches in politics.

The music, three Negro Spirituals, was presented by the band.

After listening to Dr. Wolfe's informative speech, a tea was held in the recreation room of Smith Dormitory for the College faculty and friends. Dr. Wolfe's entrance almost completely absorbed the attention of our guest. Sorry as she was, however, Soror Wolfe had to depart shortly, to the dismay of those of us who sought to extend congratulatory messages, have programs autographed, and pose before the camera with her. It was necessary for her to shorten visit in order to be back in Washing-ton on time to her newly appoint-od post of Education Chief for the ed post of Education Chief for the Committee on Education with the House of Representatives. The tea brought to a conclusion the eventful week-end which ended much too soon.

The Sorority wishes to extend thanks to Mrs. Daisy Coles for her ing session, the Ira Aldridge Dra-matics Guild of J. C. Smith University presented Lorraine Hans-berry's "A Raisin in the Sun." The production proved to be one of the most enjoyable productions on our stage for a long time, and was well attended and well received by the audience.

Currently, plans are being made for the annual Spring Production. This year, "The Matchmaker" has been chosen. We are hoping for a successful run, both at home and on numerous travel dates. In addition, plans are being cultivated for our representation at the annual State, Regional, and National conference held by Dramatic Arts Associations.
