Look! More Talent Is Here

NAOMI BLUE

The Annual Freshman Talent Show was presented in the Seabrook Auditorium on Tuesday, October 15, at 8:00 P.M. Listed as one of excitement, it was considered to be among the best talent shows ever given here.

As the spotlight fell on each performer, he performed to the extent of his ability, in order that he might contribute to the success of the program. As a whole, each individual really impressed the audience with his talent.

The evening went along with singing, dancing, modeling, and

Majors Attend Conference

JOSEPH J. JOHNSON

On October 22, the senior Biology and Mathematics majors went to A&T College in Greensboro to attend the Third Annual Professional Opportunities Conference. The keynote address was given by Dr. John H. Morrow, Chairman, Grantee and University Training Programs, School of Foreign Affairs, Foreign Service Institute of A&T College.

After the program, students were given opportunity to have conferences with visiting consultants. These consultants were representing agencies with which students might seek future employment.

Blooming Start

This academic year, though in its early phase, has been one of excitement for the Sophomore young ladies residing in Joyner Hall, who already know their way about campus and who over the summer contemplated returning, rejoining their many friends and renewing acquaintances from the previous year.

For those freshmen young ladies living in Joyner Hall who have never been away from home, the orientation period was one long and nostalgic adjustment to what at times seemed to be a state of chaos.

For other freshman young ladies, the college atmosphere is just what was needed to make them aware of the arduous work that is yet to be accomplished, to make them realize that they must now function as mature individuals, to make them realize that today is reality, yesterday is a thing of the past and tomorrow is a completely new world.

For those freshman young ladies who have already accepted the challenges and the responsibilities of a better today, I say with all sincerity, it is well worth your effort and my effort to develop all of our potentialities to the best of our abilities.

Our dormitory counselors, Mrs. W. M. Gannaway and Miss Burton, have really been that added inspiration that was needed to boost our morale. It is through their guidance and leadership that we will determine whether we accelerate physically, socially, emotionally, and academically. Without their encouraging words and dedicated interest, we will not possess that energetic mind that will be so needed to fulfill our potentialities; this we realize and we hope to really enjoy each other this academic year.

We hope to participate in many constructive and entertaining projects that will be conducive in helping us to grow in social intellect, which is also one of the developmental aspects in an educational program.

No institution can become strengthened without a good foundation. To build our foundation, the residents of Joyner Hall met and decided upon the following officers to serve as leaders for the 1963-64 Dormitory Association:

President, Joyce Barber; Vice-President, Barbara Mosley; Secretary, Bernice Gilmer; Treasurer, Gwendolyn Cotton; Sergeant-At-Arms, Janet Vaughn; Reporter, Priscilla Battle.

Again, may we extend a hearty welcome to the freshman young ladies in Joyner Hall.

Welcome Home!

Thanks!!
