

What's New In Fashions?

By Barbara Weeks

The latest styles invade FSC campus. Karen Davis and Janice Davis are seen wearing some of the current fashions.

The changing of fashions has always been a number-one interest among the women. But, is there anything new in fashions? This question could easily be answered if you would look in an old magazine or photograph book. You would find that fashions have a tendency of repeating themselves.

Today's fashions seem to lean toward the tubular silhouette; for in America, the narrow look is in. The popular shift, empire and low belted dress, which were so popular in the 20's are all a part of the swinging styles that are making headlines today. The narrow look is the tight fitted dress seamed close to a flexible strong, slim body, smaller across the back, lightly narrow through the midriff in front with an easy slender fall from shoulder to the knee bone.

The Swing of Fall '65

Fashions this season will be quite different from all previous ones. Skirts will remain short, and American college girls' legs are covered by textured stockings or knee socks. Along with these socks go the dazzling knit sweaters which are made of the same material.

Dresses are made of many bright colors. New York's gray and sophisticated plaids are in town and the latest style of coats consists of the wide and free look. Boots, white and black, are really in the swing around F.S.C.'s campus. They will definitely top the fashion scene as far as footwear is concerned.

The boys around F.S.C. can by no means be overlooked in this survey of fashions. Of course we know that the boys don't have as great an interest as the girls, but we can't just neglect them. The latest styles among the men consists of the plaid sport coats, worn with plain slacks.

Phi Beta Lambda

Last month Fayetteville State College began the initial steps in organizing and installing here on campus the Fayetteville State College Chapter of Phi Beta Lambda. This national organization is comprised of students enrolled in business education in colleges and universities all over the United States. Also instructors, school administrators, and others who help to advance business education are enrolled as honorary members. All students enrolled as business education majors and secretarial science students here at our institute are eligible for membership.

This organization has a manifold-type purpose. Two of the most important ones are to develop leadership for business and business education and to interpret the role of business in America and acquire economic understanding. The Fayetteville Chapter of Phi Beta Lambda is under the supervision of Mrs. G. Black, head of the Business Education Department, and the other instructors in this area.

The following officers were elected for this year: Shirley A. Washington, President; William Brooks, Vice-President; Sandra Marsh, Secretary; Ellen Ray, Assistant Secretary; Floyd Woodard, Treasurer; Ollie Horne, Parliamentarian; Frank Withrow, Sergeant-at-Arms; and Paulette Nelson, Reporter.

Be on the lookout, fellow classmates, because you will be hearing about this organization throughout the school year.

Last of all, we extend to each and everyone of you hearty wishes for the approaching holidays.

Dear Candy...

Dear Candy,

I'm having problems in one of my classes. I make fair grades but that isn't enough. My teacher talks too fast and his writing on the board is not up to par. The textbook does not go into details and the library has few supplementary books on this particular course.

Desperate

Dear Desperate,

I would suggest you become almost teacher's pet. Go to his office every chance you get, if necessary one hour after every class. Get him to repeat himself, let him know he's going too fast, you're probably not the only one with this problem and above all STUDY HARD.

"Candy"

Dear Candy,

I have a problem in my social life. There are two fellows in my life. We will call them Iago and Horatio. Iago says he loves me and this I believe but it is Horatio whose love I want. He has never said that he loves me but he acts so kind toward me. Could this be love? How can I get him to say "I love you."

Suspended

Dear Suspended,

My advice to you is to be patient. It seems Horatio treats you kind because he has a lot of respect for you. Don't spoil this by going out of your way to get him to say these often misused words. Evidently this respect could grow into something wonderful.

"Candy"

Dear Candy,

I can't dance so I'm not too popular on the ballroom floor and neither at socials here at the college. Can you suggest an inexpensive way of learning how to dance. Don't tell me to ask my boyfriend because we have just met and I am ashamed to let him or anyone else know I can't dance.

Merry Christmas From Siamas

Phi Chapter of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity wishes all students of Fayetteville State College a Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year. We hope that each student will be filled with the joy and happiness that God has bestowed upon all of us, and that in our moment of joy and happiness during this Christmas we will pause to give thanks to our only Savior, Christ our Lord.

Christmas is a joyous time, but we must never forget its true meaning. Christ, our Savior, gave His life that we, the sinners of the world, may be saved. Christ conquered death when He rose from His tomb. Through this we can conquer death though not physically, not mentally, nor do we hope to conquer death in this world; we can conquer death through our souls, and only through belief, faith, and obedience, will our souls reach that promise land in which God has promised us Eternal life and happiness. It is up to us, the sinners of the world, to redeem ourselves. Christ has opened a pathway and if we only open our eyes and hearts we can see and feel Christmas as God intended it to be.

Though the following year may bring many failures, don't give up, for just around the corner you will find success. We hope that opportunities will open in abundance for all of you, and that the Kiss of happiness and prosperity will linger throughout the year.

Dear Wallflower,

Don't be ashamed to tell your girlfriends you can't dance. I'm sure they wouldn't mind teaching you the basic steps. In the meantime be a good conversationalist and observer.

As Omega Goes Rolling Along

The Delta Gamma Chapter of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity has planned a year of spectacular events. We kicked off the school year by planning for Homecoming festivities. We later held our annual "Queen for a Day" observance at which time we chose our 1965-66 Miss Omega Sweetheart. The evening was highlighted by a fashion show, with fashions sponsored by Esquire and McCall's. Then Miss Omega was announced. Our Queen is Miss Allean Davis, a member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and a junior majoring in Physical Education at Fayetteville State College. She was crowned by Miss Omega of 1964-65, Miss Shirley Williams. After the coronation, our new Queen was presented gifts from the merchants of the Fayetteville city area. We salute you "Miss Omega" for your charming smile and exuberant personality.

Our next event of the year was our annual smoker held Wednesday, November 10. We entertained a group of interested freshmen. They all expressed a sincere feeling of gratitude and enjoyment.

On Sunday, November 21, we sponsored our annual Achievement Week Observance along with Beta Chi Chapter of the city. Our guest speaker was Brother Leroy T. Walker, Professor of Health and Physical Education, Track Coach, North Carolina College, Durham, North Carolina. He spoke on the Fraternity's National Achievement Week Theme: "America's Responsibility for the Development of Human Talent." He emphasized, as he spoke, the responsibility of the educational institutions for the development of human talent and the responsibility of the individual for self-development. His speech was greatly inspiring and enlightening to the total student body. Following Dr. Walker's speech, we honored Mr. J. W. Paie with the Citizen of the Year Award for his continuous work with the integration movement in the Fayetteville community. We also awarded to Dr. H. M. Eldridge, the Omega Man of the Year Award for his endless work for the betterment of humanity. A reception was held for Dr. Walker after the program.

Along with our activities, we have planned many programs to promote greater academic performance and better physical appearance of the campus. Our first steps were in Williams Hall where we printed materials for each resident asking for his co-operation in improving the appearance of his dormitory to do better work and encouraged respect for his work. We then fixed the bulletin board which suggested constructive steps toward better living conditions. We solicit the help of the entire student body in our efforts to instill pride at home: "Our AlmaMater, F. S. C."

These are some of the projects that we, as true Omega men, are sponsoring for this, our school. We expect to continue similar projects with your help.

Have a MERRY CHRISTMAS!
