THE DEDICATION STORY

By ROWENA PETERSON

Dedication of the three new buildings on Fayetteville State campus was held on November 20, 1966 in the J. W. Seabrook Auditorium.

The Emil Rosenthal Classroom Building, completed in June, 1966, was named in honor of Emil Rosenthal for his genuine interest in the welfare of this college during his 25 years as a trustee. It is a two-story air conditioned brick and steel structure covering an area of 25,000 square feet. This building consists of a first floor, main floor, and a hexagonal area with a main entrance. On the first floor are two classrooms for art with a capacity of about 40 students, a dark room for developing pictures, a student lounge, and a multipurpose room. The main floor contains three classrooms, an art studio with facilities for 40 students, a listening and reading room, faculty lounge, and six faculty offices. The hexagonal area of the main floor is designed for music. The choir and band rooms, which can accommodate 125 students, are surrounded by practice rooms, offices, storage facilities, and an instrumental repair room. One classroom is equipped with ten electronic Wurlitzer pianos.

The Zebulon B. Vance Hall, named for Governor Zebulon B. Vance, is a modern three-story residence hall designed to accommodate 254 men. This building, completed August, 1966, contains 51,597 square feet of floor space. There are 127 rooms built in suites of four rooms. Each suite has its own bath facilities. The furnishings are permanently installed in each room which includes two beds, two study desks and book shelves, two chests and closets. On the first floor are the director's apartment, vending room, a spacious lounge, study hall, trunk room, electrical control room, laundry, and janitor's room. The second floor houses the assistant director. On the second and third floors are located a study hall and a trunk room.

The Dunie A. Bryant Hall, named in honor of Mrs. Dunie A. Bryant, is a residence for 200 women. It is constructed in two three-story units with connecting breezeways at each level and extends over 40,075 square feet of space. The main floor north wing has a beautiful lounge which can easily be converted into three small rooms by the use of folding dividers. The furniture in each bedroom is installed, except for chairs. Each room is provided with custom-made drapes to add to the attractiveness of the building and to give it uniformity. Each floor is equipped with a laundry room, trunk room, adequate bath facilities, and a study room.

During the course of the program, tribute was made to Mr. Emil Rosenthal by Dr. J. W. Seabrook, President Emeritus of Fayetteville State College; a tribute to former Governor Zebulon B. Vance was given by Dr. Odell Uzzell, Chairman of the Department of Social Sciences; and tribute was given to Mrs. Dunie A. Bryant by Miss Lena M. Means, Registrar of Fayetteville State College. Keys were presented by Mr. Dan MacMillan and Mr. Sam T. Snowdon, Architects; Mr. John H. Cook, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, received these keys. The Litany of Dedication was delivered by Dr. Grady D. Davis, Professor of Education at Fayetteville State College, followed by presentation and dedication of each of the buildings.

Guided tours of each building climaxed the dedication program.

Barbie's Fashion Corner

By BARBARA JEAN WEEKS

As most of you already know, that Christmas spirit is in the air. Yes, the yuletide season is here and dressing accordingly with this season has become an outstanding factor. There will be parties galore and I'm sure most of you will want to look your best for such occasions.

Christmas, for the college students, means that they will be going home for a few weeks to enjoy some time with their families and friends. Most of us will want to look our best and that includes the clothes we will be wearing.

There are many different outfits that will be worn during this great holiday. One of these great outfits include the one in which yours truly is seen wearing. This dress is very easy to make and it can be made in a variety of styles. It can be worn on several different occasions.

As a Christmas message to you, I would like to say that Christmas is a happy time and it can also be very dangerous as far as accidents are concerned. During this, the yuletide season, be careful and give thanks to God for everything that he has done for you. Until next year, this is Barbie, your fashion writer, wishing you a Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year.

THE BULLETIN BOARD BANDIT

All seniors interested in attaining employment next year in the positions which follow, should make sure that their placement information is in. Afterwards a letter of application should be sent to the system as well as signing the blanks for the interviews. Check placement bulletin board for particulars.

Barbara Jean Weeks, a sophomore from Bailey, N. Carolina, is seen in front of the new Rosenthal Building, wearing the latest thing in fashion, the bell-bottom sleeve dress. The dress was made by Barbara during the Thanksgiving holidays. Her shoes are by Sandler of Boston.

And Then She Prayed

By BETTY COOPER

She stood before a crowd of more than 1200 people and received her tribute. She thanked God for the founding fathers of our institution, for all presidents who have served our institution, for all trustees, and, in general, for all persons who have contributed in any manner to the growth of our institution. She thanked Him, too, for the contributions she had made, the many young minds she had influenced, and the many students she had helped.

The audience was very quiet. No feet shuffled, no papers rustled, all sneezes and coughs were suppressed. Everyone sat in eager anticipation of what she would say.

And then she prayed. She prayed for the success of our institution, the success of us, (the students) and for our president. For a split second all was quiet and then the walls reverberated with the sound of applause. We applauded out of respect, love, and admiration.

Who was she? Her name was Dunie A. Bryant. She had served Fayetteville State College for 26 years as dormitory matron. She, who had helped to mold the lives of countless numbers of students, had returned. For what purpose? A dedication ceremony. The new girls dormitory had been named Dunie A. Bryant Hall in remembrance of her. Did she deserve it? Twelve hundred people thought so . . . and so do I. That makes twelve hundred and one.

Girls In Harris Hall Open The Curtain To Life

By BRENDA D. BRITT

Sunday, September 4, 1966, opened the curtain of life for ninety-two freshman girls in Harris Hall.

These young ladies stepped out on the stage of life and took their first bow in the role of responsibility.

The first rehearsal for Harris Hall residence was the election of officers. Selecting very carefully, the young ladies elected the following:

President ----- Juanita Hines
Vice President...Josephine Dickens
Secretary ----- Minnette Gray
Asst. Secretary...Sandra Freeman
Treasurer ----- Maxine Dickens
Reporter ----- Brenda Britt

The deadline for application for financial help for the Summer Session is May 31, 1967, and the deadline for the Fall Session is July 31, 1967.

Applications are available from the Chairman of Scholarships, Work-Aid Committee, and the Business Office.

Questions must be completely answered correctly; otherwise, the person will be penalized.

Mealbooks for December, will be issued from the business office starting Tuesday, November 29, 1966, during the following hours:

Monday — Friday
9:00 a.m.—12:00 noon
1:00 p.m.—3:00 p.m.
Saturday
9:00 a.m.—11:00 a.m.

Along with these young ladies, the representatives for Student Government were chosen and are as follows:

Marion Fleetwood
Lavert Henderson
Carlise Lassiter
Belinda Bailey
Rosa Brown
Barbara Liles
Sandra Freeman
Arie Louise Gaddy

The purpose of selecting these young ladies was to represent Harris Hall in the Student Government when meetings are being held and to carry the grievances, if any, before the Student Government.

Some of the many rules and regulations affiliated with Harris Hall are "quiet hours" and dating privileges for each floor.

The young ladies in Harris Hall are privileged to have as their dorm matrons, Miss Young and Mrs. Anthony. They feel that there are none as wonderful as their matrons.

The dorm matrons have stressed to the young ladies the importance of studying and the determination to continue even if the going gets rough.

The young ladies in Harris Hall, along with their dorm matrons, join hands in wishing all a prosperous and thankful Christmas.

This is Harris Hall completing another rehearsal and hoping for a successful curtain call on the next round.
