

Will 18-year-olds Vote?

Now that they have the right to vote, will 18-year olds turn out at the polls this year to have a significant impact on the results of an election is a question many politicians are pondering.

Results of a survey conducted by the US Census Bureau of the 1968 elections tends to pose this question.

Findings showed that the younger the voter the less likely he is to vote. Further, they revealed that only about one-half of those from 21 through 24 went to the polls in 1968 compared with about 70% of those 25 and over.

When Congress passed the bill to allow 18-year-olds to vote, up to 21 million more Americans got the right to vote.

One of the attempts of the bill is to encourage more participation by citizens in their government.

In an interview with the "Voice", several FSU students expressed their opinions about voting.

Jeanie Staton, 17, from Rocky Mount says she will register when her birthday comes in March.

"One of the things I would like to see changed in this country is our foreign relations, I wish they (government) would stop spending so much money on space exploration and use that money for poverty."

An 18-year-old freshman from Fayetteville said she has not registered but stated she would before the May primaries. She vowed to vote ".....to get rid of President Nixon."

Brenda Holmes, 19, also from Fayetteville feels that young people can "make a big difference if they get out and vote."

"I feel it would be a great thing to know that I was partly responsible for electing the person who runs this country," commented another 18-year-old freshman.

DAY STUDENTS PLAN INVOLVEMENT

The Day-Student Association, off and running this semester, has planned several projects of both campus and community scope, and hopes that other organizations will join it in becoming more active. John Minter, president of the Association says, "We must learn to use our time, energy, and knowledge to bring about effective change in the conditions of ourselves and our brothers and sisters not within the college community. No longer can we hide behind the doors of our classrooms and the pages of our textbooks. We must begin now to be involved in that world out there, which isn't so far away after all."

The Association plans first to get involved with young persons who have committed offenses against established laws. It hopes to show these persons that someone really cares what happens to them. A seminar entitled "US" is planned for the 14th of February in cooperation with the other campus leaders and groups. The seminar is to be followed by a trip to the basketball game at South Carolina State that evening.

The Association will pay a visit to one or two of the local training schools. Here they hope to "bring the world to those who are not allowed to participate in it."

They also plan to aid needy members of the community by collecting and distributing food, clothing and other necessities. Minter added, "We feel that the oppressed need help year-round not just at Christmas and Thanksgiving. I hope that other organizations feel as we do."

The Association's Annual Clean-Up Drive is slated to come off in April and it hopes to carry out another form of beautification also.

Graduate Admissions Assistance Center Aiding Minority Students In Grad School Selection

Minority group students at Fayetteville State University and the surrounding area who desire to go to graduate school have a smoother road ahead than normally could be expected, according to Dorcas Bradley, director of the University Counseling Center at FSU.

Since Mid-October interested students have been able to make use of the Graduate Admissions Assistance Center. GAAC is a New York based non-profit placement service for candidates seeking master's and doctor's degrees and advanced certificates, and admission to graduate schools throughout the United States in all fields except medicine and dentistry.

"Many a student who desires to do graduate work either don't know where to get assistance or don't have the money that must accompany each application for admission to a grad school," Miss Bradley said. "Those who register with GAAC get these fees waived. In addition their applications can be sent to any or as many graduate schools as they wish."

"To get this service, a student merely pays one 30-dollar application fee instead of paying one for each school as in normally done. He writes brief resume which includes his grade point average and objectives. Three recommendations from his department chairman and major instructors are also included."

GAAC makes the student's official record available to a majority of the institutions which offer the program of study requested by the applicant. His complete record is then sent to the school of his choice when he decides.

Fayetteville State is one of 33 predominately black institutions serving as coordinating colleges in the program. Others in North Carolina involved are Bennett and North Carolina A & T, Greensboro; North Carolina Central, Durham, Shaw and St. Augustine's, Raleigh; and Winston-Salem State.

Tau's, Theta's Host Statewide Meet

On January 15th, Tau Phi Tau Fraternity and Tau Phi Theta Sorority held its annual joint meeting in the Emil Rosenthal building here at Fayetteville State. The Taus and Thetas of Fayetteville State University, the Gamma chapter, served as hosts and hostesses. Other chapters that attended the meeting were the Alpha chapter from North Carolina Central and the Beta chapter from North Carolina A & T.

The meeting included a general assembly with Harris C. Johnson, executive director of Tau Phi Tau and Tau Phi Theta presiding. Each Theta and Tau chapter divided its members into three equal groups for three concurrent workshops. The purpose of this workshop was to discuss Black community projects, voters registration, tutorial and recreational projects.

Dr. Charles A. Lions delivered a brief message to the group. Prior to the adjournment of the meeting, refreshments were served and fraternity and sorority songs were sung.

On January 12, the Gamma Chapter of Tau Phi Theta elected new officers. They are: President-Lilian Perry, Vice-President-Ethel Tyndall, Secretary-Verna Kornegay, Cor. Sec. Marshall Jones, Treas.-Annette Barnes, Asst. Treas.-Mildred Riche, Dean of Pledges-Frederica D. Broadnax, Co. Dean of Pledges-Willie Isler, Reporter-Doretha Watson, Coordinator-Barbara J. Harris.

college life trying to force yourself upon her. I think that you should cease in trying to talk to this girl and who knows, she might be trying to play "hard to get." But there is one way to find out, leave her alone.

Gamma Theta Serves Campus And Community

The year 1971 proved to be a very rewarding year for the women of Gamma Sigma Service Sorority, whose main purpose is service to the community, people and campus.

Its first project was raising money for St. Jude's Children's Hospital. The money raised aided in the research for muscular disorders affecting children. During the Christmas and Thanksgiving seasons the sorority carried fruits and candies to senior citizens at Glad Haven Rest Home on Murchinson Road. Presently it is raising money by selling at the movies and in the dormitories.

Gamma Sigma Sigma met January 26 to elect new officers. They are as follows: President-Jacquelyn Tyler, 1st Vice-President-Valinda Carter, 2nd Vice-President-Deborah Knowels, Correspond. Sec.-Margie Smith, Recording Sec.-Ella Burney, Treasurer-Victoria Bradley, Historian-Bebra Benett, Parliamentarian-Vivian Hartsfield.

Grooves Aid City's Poor

The Groove Phi Groove Social Fellowship sponsored its annual Christmas "Food Drive" last December to help the needy families in the communities of Fayetteville. The Fellowship saw problems in the community that possibly others hadn't noticed. To help solve problems such as these, they sponsored dances and other activities for the gathering of food and money to be distributed throughout the community.

Just to name a few, Groove Phi Groove gave baskets of food and money to the following: Mrs. Silas Jones, who is expecting her 16th child, Mrs. Eva Hall, who is 96 years old, and Mrs. Annie Mack, a former employe of F.S.U.
