

S.G.A. News

There has been much talk around campus concerning the student government and what is being done. The student government is operating under a unicameral system and many students are still confused about the set-up.

Actually, it is structured so that the vice-president serves as president of the Student Senate which is composed of thirty-two members. The Senate is the law-making body of the student government. The main issue at hand is the revision of the school constitution. A constitution committee was chosen by SGA president William Alston and the changes were made in hopes of trying to draft a more sophisticated type. There are many reasons as to why the Student Senate hasn't been as influential as it could be or should be. One reason is the lack of participation of the elected representatives. For some reason, the senators fail to represent their precinct. There seems to be no reason why one doesn't serve in his elected capacity. But if one doesn't wish to serve he has the right to refuse or decline the job. The students look at student government officers and ask the question "what's going on?" Ask your representatives and see if they can tell you. They are the nucleus of the organization. Officers of the SGA can do no more than the people allow them. The Senate is asking that each dormitory or precinct call a meeting and confer with its representatives--not just any one, but people who are willing to work in the best interest of the school. Sure it needs to open up more but when it is open, it needs some products to show for its efforts. The constitution is "ready," it needs the senators to act on it, then FSU.

Win Offers New Program

Fayetteville State University is now offering a newly funded Work Incentive Program with emphasis upon the acquisition of business skills. This WIN program is administered by the Employment Security Commission.

The sixteen trainees are enrolled in courses which are designed to strengthen the abilities in office administration, to provide supportive instruction in accounting and management, and to reinforce the communicative skills.

In addition to class instruction the trainees will receive special tutoring in laboratories to assist them in attaining goals which will be commensurate with initial job requirements. Participants will also have the opportunity to secure actual work experience as a part of the training program and will be assisted in placement on jobs upon completion of the program.

The students for this term are enrolled in classes in business mathematics, shorthand, typewriting, introduction to business, and language skills.

The program is being directed by Dr. Grace C. Black, chairman of the Department of Business Education and Administration.

New System In Effect For Working Students

Since January 1, 1972, the Student Payrolls have been calculated here and the checks prepared by Central Data Payroll System in Raleigh. The first pay period this year ended January 20, the payroll was then processed and mailed to CDPS on January 25. The January checks will be returned by February 15. The same process will then follow each month thereafter. In order for the above to be properly and promptly implemented, it will be important that the time sheets be submitted to the Financial Aid Office no later than 12:00 noon, the 22nd of each month.

Some other important facts to bear in mind are:

1. Checks will no longer be prepared between the regular payroll dates, the 15th of each month.

2. Late Time Sheets cannot be tolerated and may result in a student not being paid unless the time is reported on time.

3. All Work Students must have on file the W-4 and NC-4 forms for Income Tax purposes. This is a requirement. These forms must be properly completed showing the student's name as it appears on his Social Security Card and the student's correct address and Security number.

Library Still Seeks Security

The blue-print for an approved library security program system for Chestnut Library has been funded and is "in-process." The apparent delay is in the bidding transactions which have to go through the usual state channels. Results from the bidding should be known within the next two weeks.

The selected security system assures that all exits from the library will be sensitized for control.

This device will help retain the book collection and add confidence that the materials are still in the collection when they are needed.

FSU Selected As Cooperating Institution In N.Y. Intern Program

Dr. Walter T. Pace, Chairman, Department of Education and Psychology, and Director of Teacher Education, announced that FSU has been officially selected as a cooperating institution in the Student Interns Cooperative Education Program of New York City. Confirmation of FSU's selection was received from Mr. James A. Watkins, Coordinator, Student Interns Cooperative Education Program, Community School District 13, Brooklyn, New York.

While the interns will be doing student teaching in Brooklyn, they will also receive approximately $105.00 per week or $840.00 while engaged in the experience.

FSU plans to place an as yet unspecified number of interns in Community School 13, Brooklyn,

New York during the ensuing Spring student teaching period. "The placement of interns in this program will be of inestimable value in terms of providing first hand experience with problems of inner-city children as interns interact in the teaching-learning situations," Dr. Pace said.

Dr. Pace also released the names of the following students who will be doing student teaching for the period beginning January 10 to March 10: Shirley McLean, Evelyn T. Barden, Vivian Hassell, Frank Peyton, Gladys White, Gladys J. Green, Cynthia King, Charles Marable, Kenny McIntyre, Darryl Fisher, Rose Eure, Dora Moore, Gwendolyn Washington, Cleveland Graham, Doratha Underwood, Ella Armstrong, James Bullard, Aaron Denmark, Sherman Freeman, Mary Haywood, Glenda Massey, Billy McKinnon, Geraldine Middleton, Janice Pauling, John Jones, Dorothy McLaurin, Daniel McLeod,

Tutorial Program Purposes 3-Fold

The Tutorial Program directed by Mrs. Wilma Roscoe is designed to aid students in their difficult subjects.

This semester the program has a three-fold purpose. These purposes are: (1) To establish special classes for students experiencing difficulty in subject areas. (2) To provide tutorial assistance in the dormitories for athletes on an individualized basis. (3) To assign student tutors to work closely with faculty members in the Five College Consortium Program during class sessions. This will assist freshmen students with individualized instructions.

All persons interested in enrolling in the Tutorial Program, Contact Mrs. Wilma Roscoe of the University's Studies Center.

New Career Opportunities Set For 16th Of March

The Office of Career Planning and Placement will sponsor its second Annual New Career Opportunities Program for Fayetteville State University March 16. It will inform students of the many new career opportunities now open to minority groups.

Statistics indicate a preponderance of education majors graduating from predominantly black colleges. Many are becoming teachers not through deliberate choice and commitment to the field of education, but ignorance of other careers that were previously limited to blacks.

The principle objective of the New Career Opportunities Program is to bring young graduates of traditionally black colleges back to their Alma Mater and give these graduates maximum exposure to students, and faculty members about the accessibility of new career fields.

Twenty-five recent graduates who are successfully engaged in non-traditional fields have been invited to participate. These fields include business, law, government, industries and social services agencies.

There will be a general assembly of the student body in J. W. Seabrook Auditorium at 11:00 A.M. An address will be given by Jack Gravely, Class of '67 and a third year law student at the University of Virginia.

This assembly was one of the main highlights of last year's program. Gravely who was on the program received a standing ovation for his most inspirational remarks.

Trustees Okay ROTC Program

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees on January 27, the Board approved the University's acceptance of Air Force ROTC with an understanding that it will be approved by the Board of Higher Education in Raleigh. The Board also approved the establishment of a Board of Visitors for the University, whose general purpose is to assist the institution in enhancing its image and status before the public, and to aid in any ways possible in improving and increasing services of the institution to the people.

The basketball game against Shaw February 2, was sponsored by the Trustees, who underwrote the total cost.

The Planning Committee of the University of North Carolina system, which will become the Board of Governors on July 1, will visit the campus April 21.
