

Where Walks Morality

By Edward Wilfong

There was a resolution in New York City of legalize prostitution during a city council meeting, January 26, 1973.

A councilman sponsored the measure, calling for the establishment of "red light" districts in industrial areas with prostitutes receiving regular medical checkups.

He went on to state that legalized prostitution would cut crime, reduce the spread of venereal disease, curb police corruption, and relieve court overcrowding.

It's out there and I'm going to get it.

THINK!

GIVE EM A BREAK

Off times individuals and objects can exist and many persons never know why they are around. It's quite obvious that commercial enterprises and outlets exist for the rewards that come with it.

Fayetteville State University has many friends and they contribute to the University in numerous ways. It goes with out saying that the institution is proud of their association with these persons and strive here to retain their friendship. Indeed this is the only way it should be.

Perhaps it should be stated here that the university has many conveniences. Suppose that you had to walk to the neighborhood store for a soft drink on a cold night. The mental and physical wear is more than the cost of the beverage.

That brings us to the crux of the matter. The vending machines on the campus are the property of the Coca Cola Bottling Company. According to Mr. Henry Hutaff, a member of the Fayetteville State University Foundation Board of Directors; this firm has been making a sizable donation to the institution for more than 15 years. Recently, they presented the university $2,000 to be used unrestricted. Much of this is returned to the students in ways -- advertising in our athlete souvenir brochures, the official scoreboard on the University Athletic Field (note that the sign does not have any advertising on it) and other ways.

Give em a break! Simply stated when persons damage the machines and break in, it only serves to reduce the amount of contributions that the university would normally receive. Funds used for repairs and replacements do not come easy, so you see it hurts the university. Be on guard to prevent this and the students and Fayetteville State University will reap greater rewards.

IN MEMORIAM

This is in memory of Professor Ollie Cox, born July 8, 1921, and departed on March 4, 1973.

Funeral services were held March 8, at the Saint James Baptist Church in his native home, Rocky Mount, North Carolina.

Professor Cox received his undergraduate education at Johnson C. Smith University. While attending this university, he was an outstanding athlete in football and basketball. Later, he received his Masters of Arts at the University of Iowa, and furthered his studies at Howard University,

SGA Elections

The time has come once again for the election of SGA officers. This year we anticipate a greater participation than in previous years. The elections are to be held on April 4, 1973.

All persons interested in running for office are asked to file in the SGA office for the office they intend to run for by Monday, March 26, 1973. It should be also noted that all persons may, if they desire, run on a "party" ticket. The positions to be elected are President, Vice President, Business Manager. Qualifications may be picked up from the SGA office.

Langston Adams, Chairman of the Election Board, further-stated: "It is my hope that the students of FSU will become more involved in the election this year. Your Student Government is only as good as its student body. Your help and participation will be greatly appreciated by the candidates.

Also this year there will be on the ballot two very important issues. The first is the ratification of the new constitution. Secondly, the ballot will include revisions in the dining hall...Campaign speeches will be given Tuesday, March 3."

Criticism, The Great Campus Cop-out

Criticism is a handy old tool - one of the most widely used of them all. People use it in all phases of human interaction. Some of us even make it our good deed for the day by putting the word "constructive" in front of it. Let's face it - criticism IS criticism. If it does any good at all, it is nominal. Furthermore, criticism is habit forming, as well as contagious. Who needs it? Black people have been on the receiving end of this national past-time for centuries. Look around at FSU, we're using it on ourselves! Just listen!

"Dr. Smith isn't teaching anything. He doesn't want us to ask questions. He's boring. His methods are old, out-dated, and he isn't teaching relevant materials."

"Students just don't want to learn anymore. They're not interested. They're lazy. They don't come to class."

"Student workers aren't dependable. They come on duty late, then leave early. They loaf - never do what they're supposed to do. All they want to do is get over."

"Man, these people around here act like we're on regular 9 to 5 jobs. They don't want to give us any slack. We're got other things to do besides work."

"Johnny, that would be a better report if you went into more detail, made some posters and showed a filmstrip. You need to be more enthusiastic about the possibility of life on the moon. Get involved with your report."

"When I was young, I didn't blame the world for my problems. When I needed something, I went out and worked for it. The only thing young people today want to do is sit around and plait those ridiculous braids on their heads. They have no motivation."

"Those people in administration don't know what they're doing. If I were running things I would....."

This could go on and on, but when all the fault is found, what then? Think. When it comes to criticism, two negatives multiplied rarely produce a positive. Moreover, idle criticism is a waste of time and energy that could be well used elsewhere. Remember that old saying, "if you can't say something good about somebody, don't say anything at all"? If it had been put into practice around campus lately, conversation would have been at a minimum.

Let's come down hard on criticism. Up with positive action, praise, unity, pride, and progress for all black people.

Temptations Resign

By Edward Wilfong

The Temptations are not leaving after 10 years with the soul town, Motown. Dennis, Demon, Richard, Melvin and Otis are the Temptations. The Temptations and they have resigned with Motown.

Yes, my goodness, yes, The Temptations new album Masterpiece is doing well and their previous album All Directions has not stopped rolling.

Evidently, The Temptations plan to stay one of the top recording artists in the nation. When they started in the 60's with such hits as "My Girl", "Beauty is Only Skin Deep", and other great hits and not anyone can say it will ever stop.
