

FSU Chancellor Honored In New Volume

FSU CHANCELLOR LYONS

Spencer Hays, President of the Southwestern Publishing Company, has announced that Dr. Charles "A" Lyons, Jr., one of the country's most outstanding educators and Chancellor of Fayetteville State University, will be featured in a new three-volume set of books. The volumes, are published in conjunction with the editors and publishers of Ebony magazine and the Southwestern Publishing Company.

In a letter to the Chancellor of Fayetteville State University, Hays stated, "You are to be congratulated for what you are adding to other lives. Not only are your achievements a credit to you; but through these books we feel they can touch more lives and become an even greater inspiration to young black men and women all over the country who wish to make something of their lives, but feel that success is a long way off for them. Your life is tangible proof of what a person can become through willpower, determination and a burning desire to succeed." Dr. Lyons has been Chancellor of Fayetteville State University since 1969. Prior to his appointment at FSU, he was Director of Admissions at Howard University.

He is a native of Conetoe, North Carolina and received his undergraduate training at Shaw University. Dr. Lyons is a recipient of the Master's and Ph.D degrees from Ohio State University. He is a Professor in the field of Political Science and is considered an expert in the areas of South and Southeast Asia.

Dr. Lyons returned in July from a month-long trip to Pakistan. He was selected by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities as a part of a four person educational team to explore the possibility of developing International Exchange Programs in Higher Education between the United States and Pakistan. The trip was sponsored by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the United States Department of State.

Chancellor Lyons holds membership in numerous organizations and has served as consultant for the Commission on Instructional Technology, Washington, D.C.; Josiah Macy, Jr. Foundation, Washington, D.C.; Advisory Committee for Management Information System, Institute for Services to Education, member; Scholarship Awards Committee of Seafarers Welfare Plan of Seafarers International Union, Brooklyn, New York; Scholarship Awards Committee of International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Washington, D.C.; and the Scholarships Awards Committee of National Achievement Scholarship Program, Evanston, Illinois.

In Fayetteville, Dr. Lyons is a member of the Board of Directors, Fayetteville-Cumberland Area Chamber of Commerce, Fayetteville Business League, Board of Directors, United National Bank (organizing) and the Army Advisory Committee.

Hays further stated, "Because of the many contributions you have made in your field, your picture and biographical sketch appear in the first volume of the EBONY SUCCESS LIBRARY. You are honored along with 999 other black men and women who have shown great courage and determination against what would seem to be almost insurmountable obstacles and have achieved greatly."

DR. BERRY APPOINTED

Dr. Lemuel Berry, Jr., a native of New Jersey, has been appointed Chairman of the Fayetteville State University Department of Music and acting Head of the Division of Humanities. The announcement was made by Dr. Charles "A" Lyons, Jr., Chancellor of Fayetteville

State University, effective August 15.

Dr. Berry received his undergraduate training at Livingstone College, Salisbury, N.C. He is a 1971 recipient of both the master's and Ph.D degrees in the area of Music Education from the University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa. The 26 year-old Music and Humanities Department head at FSU is married and the father of one child.

New Director of Student Teaching

There are many students who will be engaging in student teaching in October. Not only will this be a new experience, but the program will be led by a new director of student teaching, Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood.

Dr. Cleetwood's training and experience transcends from the classroom to the superintendency. Even though his professional status has changed, he feels there is no change in his primary mission as a career public educator. His primary mission is to enhance the chances for a fuller and more satisfying life for all our youth through the improvement of the teaching-learning environment.

Dr. Cleetwood expressed his ideas and goals on student teaching and teacher education. He began by saying, "I can not focus on student teaching without considering it in the perspective of the larger and broader responsibility of teacher education. Although Fayetteville State has enlarged its education responsibility with a broader mission as a University, it is important that the preparation of teachers remain a primary function...having been for such a long period the mission of the college."

Dr. Cleetwood believes that teaching is the noblest of the professions. "Despite a current surplus of teachers in many areas, the need for highly qualified and highly motivated public school teachers is great. Hence, we must encourage and enlist able students to enter teacher education and after more careful screening, provide them with a viable preparation that will culminate in competency-based certification and a successful career in teaching."

In addition to duties as a member of the teaching faculty, a major thrust of Dr. Cleetwood's work at FSU will be to build on the fine program of field experiences that has been typical through the years and move forward in a way that will enable FSU's graduates not only to be competitive for employment, but truly competent and confident in a career in which the personal and professional demands are great but the rewards of service to children and youth are even greater.
