

Second Generation

"Those girls favor."
"They should. They're sisters".
"Sisters? I have two sisters here."

Sound familiar? Quite. Today you can see entire families of Broncos. I don't mean society families. I mean blood families. Personally I have five cousins and two sisters here. What does that prove? It proves that FSU is growing.

Although the University registered—time students this fall, registration was done with ease by me and many hundreds of other students. I was proud to go back to Warsaw and brag to my A&T friends about FSU's growth and its step forward in its use of data processing in registration.

Second generation Broncos will have the use of FSU's newer facilities: the Union, the post office with personal boxes, and an air conditioned bookstore. Little things, but little things add up. They will have the right to say our school was tops in the CIAA basketball tournament. They will have the right to say we have a tennis, baseball, golf, track and football team.

Second generation Broncos, Fayetteville State is growing. Can you afford not to grow with it?

FIND OUT FOR YOURSELF

Stay in school
don't be a fool
Pay the price
it will help you in life
Study real hard
and just pray to the Lord
Don't party all the time
or you will ~~spend~~ <sup>lose</sup> time
Stay on a natural high
then you can really apply
Don't worry about looks
Just stick to those books
It takes hard work and time for this race to make it of mine.

New Look in Dining Hall

In case you haven't noticed, Cook Dining Hall has taken on a completely new look. These drastic changes are due to the efforts of Mr. Ron Goodwin who set up the dining hall this summer and the new manager, Mr. Mason Odrick.

Mr. Ron Goodwin is the handsome, 31 year old graduate of West Virginia State University who worked so diligently to improve Cook Dining Hall. By profession, Mr. Goodwin is a Sales Representative for Caterer's Food Service. The company boasts a record of serving the largest number of Black institutions of its kind. This could be due to the fact that the company is based on the love of good foods.

He worked his way through college and then began his future as a man of foods. He reads widely and loves to prepare fancy foods. When asked about the drastic changes in the dining hall, he simply said, "It was easy, the place was empty and I could do anything with it. My objective was beauty, and fast. He attempted to provide good foods in a wholesome atmosphere." He understands students are constantly hungry and love to eat, and this is the purpose of the snack periods in mid-afternoon.

The buffet dinners are an effort to break the monotony of the regular meals. It also provides a means for the employees to use their talents to decorate and prepare fancy dishes to make meals more appealing. Mr. Goodwin feels that food service is an educational experience, and therefore, takes his business very serious, which accounts for all the improvements that can be seen in the dining hall.

He has had a total of eleven years in the service and preparation of foods, and he says that the Broncos are the greatest bunch of people that he has had the pleasure of working with yet. The cooperation of the students in helping to maintain the dining hall has been very good and helpful to the management and employees.

Our new manager, Mr. Mason Odrick welcomes any suggestions for improvement from the student body and hopes we'll keep up the good work.

Co-Editor

WOLFREY

Austin A. Wolfrey, a senior from Elizabeth City, N.C. has been selected as co-editor of the Fayettevillian for the 1973-74 academic year. A.A. Wolfrey is a Chemistry major with a minor in physics.

There is no doubt that he is a real leader and he is truly capable of holding his job. In fact, he has held leadership roles in several positions at FSU. He has served as president of Westminister Fellowship, Vice-President of Sophomore Class, and of the Science Club, student counselor, sports editor of the Fayettevillian and practiced two years on the Karate team.

Wolfrey has great hopes for the 1973-74 edition of the Fayettevillian, but he knows that the yearbook can be a great success only if he has the support of the Bronco family. GIVE IT TO HIM!

My Neighbors

Student Dilemmas

During my brief stay at Fayetteville State University, I've found that the greatest problem of this institution is a lack of communication. All the major concerns of the students seem to exist as a result of no means, or an inadequate means of voicing their grievances. So, when brought to the attention of the proper sources in an appealing fashion, simple grievances can be solved before they become critical problems.

One of our major concerns this year seems to be a lack of financial aid for summer school and an inadequate sum for the fall semester. Why? Who knows? Definitely not the students, the makers of this institution!

'F.S.U....your home away from home,' In the past three years, I've heard that line so much it hurts. If my home was as over-crowded, and as ant, roach, and rat infested as these dormitories, I'd talk myself into running away from home.

Administrators of an institution of higher learning should at least know the importance of accurate and organized records, but the case in our business office seems to be a sacrifice of accuracy for speed. Man, don't go by the Office of the Academic Dean and remark that an error has been made on your grade report, because I understand that he's likely to say, 'I'm sorry, you'll just have to repeat the course.' We all know how tough it is to fight some of these instructors for a decent grade and then discover that due to the error of a machine or the carelessness of an administrator, your grades drop.

These are but a few of the many problems that we share, so I say to you, fellow students, follow an example and express yourselves through use of your school newspaper, THE VOICE.

Showing and Blowing

BY TRAVIS LEWIS

This is the new concept of the new FSU Bronco Marching Band, better known as the ALL-CIAA Soulful Strutters.

With Mr. James E. Evans at the reigns, the Bronco Marching Band is making the transition from the "Best Little Band in the Land" to the "Best Band in the Land."

This year the Bronco Marching Band has increased its size up to that magnificent number of 101. Not only has the Bronco band increased in size to let everyone know we mean business, but we also have new instruments and new members to out perform and out blow any band in the CIAA or anywhere else for that matter.

The Bronco Marching Band is looking forward to all competition this year, especially those little Rams. Winston-Salem. They will be our dinner for Homecoming.

There will be a battle this year for the CIAA Football championship and not a soul should miss any of this action, but if you miss the first half of the game, you better make it in time for the half-time show. I know that you don't want to miss the exciting and colorful action of the Showing and Blowing Soulful Strutters as they go to war in the "Battle of the Bands."
