

NEW FSU QUEEN IS REALLY A "QUEEN"—Miss Fayetteville State University (NC) for the school year 1975-76 is really named "Queen". She is the first Miss FSU to come from out-of-state in quite some time. A native of Ridgeland, South Carolina, she is Queen Elizabeth Jones, a junior sociology major and the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Henry Jones of Ridgeland.

(FSU Photo by John B. Henderson)

Early Admissions Program at FSU

Fayetteville State University will begin an early admission program at first session of summer school for 1975. The announcement was made by Donald LaHuffman, Director of Admissions at Fayetteville State University.

The first session of summer school starts May 26.

According to LaHuffman, the Early Admission Program is an effort to provide an opportunity for promising high school students to begin work and earn a college degree in a shorter than average period of time.

"It is felt", continued LaHuffman, "that the implementation of an Early Admissions Program at FSU will enable the university to meet the academic needs of highly motivated students, with abilities, who want to accelerate their academic progress, and work towards a college degree."

To be qualified for the program a student must meet regular requirements of the institution with the exception of completing his senior year units. The student must be eligible to graduate from high school the year following the completion of his junior year of high school. Students must have above average grades and must submit a minimum combined score of 900 or above on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT).

Any qualified high school students who have completed their junior year of high school and plan to attend Fayetteville State University upon graduation from high school may participate in this program.

For further information, contact the Office of Admissions, Fayetteville State University, Fayetteville, North Carolina. Telephone 483-6144.

ZETA BALL QUEEN is lovely Brenda Lyons, daughter of Chancellor and Mrs. Charles "A" Lyons, Jr. as she poses with her mother, Mrs. Rosa Lyons. Brenda is a senior at Reid Ross high school and plans to major in dentistry at the University of Maryland.

NEW CAREER CONFAB HELD AT FSU—Fayetteville State University (N.C.) Director of Placement and Planning, Milton Yarboro (left) talks with three FSU graduates at the Career Fair Confab held on campus recently. The FSU graduates attending the meeting are (L-R) Mavis Black--'72, Department of Human Resources, Fayetteville, N. C.; John Godbolt--'74, Administrative Trainee, Burlington Industries, Mooresville, N. C.; and Hector McEachern, Plant Personnel Manager, Texfi-Boxer Knitting Plant, Fayetteville, North Carolina, class of 1968.

(FSU Photo by John B. Henderson)

EASTER HAS COME AND GONE, so why didn't someone hip these lovlies??? They're still holding onto their bunnies and won't let go!