Fayetteville State University Chancellor Charles "A" Lyons, Jr., and wife, Rosa, are all smiles as their daughter Brenda recently received her high school diploma. Brenda plans to attend the University of Maryland and pursue a career in dentistry.

FSU's New SGA President

by Sheryl Alexander

Becoming President of the Student Government Association means more to Gilbert Owens than just holding a title. Much to the contrary, Gilbert plans to use his position to become an instrument in achieving unity and awareness on the part of students here at FSU. Among the things he will strive to accomplish are "more student and community involvement in events effecting the country as a whole, a realization of one another and just generally appreciating each other a little more."

Gilbert feels that he is capable of fulfilling the demands which will be made of him as president of SGA. He has worked on the SGA board for three years and has a genuine concern for the way our students are represented.

Gilbert is twenty-one years of age and is originally from Roseboro, North Carolina where he resided with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Owens. Having been born under the sign of Taurus makes him a president and efficient person in getting things done.

Gilbert's philosophy of life is that black people will achieve great heights if they possess strength and determination. "Our main problem is each other. If we get ourselves together, there's nothing the white man can do to hurt us in any way."

When asked how he felt about Tommy Mitchell's administration he replied: "Tommy had a very good administration. I think it's the best we've had since I've been here. Tommy was good, but he had the potential to be even better. I benefitted a great deal from working with Tommy during his administration. His ideas, way of thinking, and getting things done were good. They will enable me to become more efficient."

In closing, Gilbert added, "If my administration turns out to be the greatest that's ever been here at FSU it will be because of the students, if it fails, it will also be because of the students."

FSU's Gov't Course Lists 20 Grads

Twenty employees of city and county governments in Fayetteville, Cumberland County, and the surrounding area celebrated the completion of a three-month course in local government administration at a dinner hosted by the Fayetteville State University Division of Continuing Education, Tuesday, May 20.

The Cumberland County Department of Social Services had the strongest representation with seven members enrolled in the course. Other students came from Harnett and Robeson Counties, the Cumberland County Joint Planning Board, and the Engineering and Inspection Departments of the City of Fayetteville. Mr. Anthony B. Maccy, Inspection Department, City of Fayetteville, was selected as the outstanding student for this session. Mr. Les Griffin, course coordination, presented Mr. Maccy with a plaque honoring his achievement.

Designed for persons in the middle and upper levels of local management, the three-month course surveys administration of local government activities with particular emphasis on trends, problems, and techniques. The course was offered through the Division of Continuing Education of Fayetteville State University in cooperation with local government agencies contiguous to the City of Fayetteville and Cumberland County.
