General Statement On The Family Educational Rights And Privacy Act

Under the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, Fayetteville State University guarantees to each of its students the following:

1. Access to Education Records
A. Each student enrolled at Fayetteville State University shall have the right to inspect and review his or her academic record and disciplinary files with the following exceptions. The request should be made fifteen days prior to the actual date of review:

(a) Financial records of the parents of the student or any information contained therein.

(b) Confidential letters and statements of recommendation which were placed in the education records prior to January 1, 1975, if such letters or statements are not used for purposes other than those for which they were specifically intended.

(c) Personal notes of teachers.

(d) Medical and psychiatric records.

2. Waiver of Right of Access

A. A student may waive his right of access.

3. Release of Information

Fayetteville State University will not release education records or personally identifiable contained therein other than directory information, with the written consent of the student to any individual agency or organization, other than to the following:

A. Other school officials, including teachers within the educational institution.
B. Authorized representatives of

(a) the Comptroller General of the United States
(b) The Secretary of HEW
(c) State educational authorities

C. In connection with a student's application for or receipt of financial aid.

D. Accrediting organizations in order to carry out their accrediting functions.

4. Opportunity for Hearing

Students must be afforded the opportunity of a hearing to challenge the contents of his or her school record where inaccuracies, misleading information or violation of rights of privacy or other rights are alleged.

Office of Business Manager

Dear Parents and Students:

Now that registration has passed, it is my duty to call your attention to the University's position on the payment of fees by its students.

For those students who live on campus the next payment for room and board is due November 1, 1975. This amount will be $232.00 unless otherwise covered by financial aid.

A word of caution should be stated. Due to the number of "NSF" checks being received from students or parents, we find it necessary to strictly enforce the following statement found on page 29 of the current catalog:

"Payments must be made in either cashier's checks or money orders."

In view of this, beginning with November 1, 1975, no personal checks will be accepted in payment of student obligations.

Additionally, during the second semester's registration, each student must have all of his fees that are due and payable at that time, or be properly covered with financial aid or support from an outside agency, etc. . . Enforcement of this regulation will be impartially administered.

It is not too early to remind each student that examination permits will be issued to only those persons whose accounts are fully paid. All students should make sure that their obligations are cleared up to avoid the embarrassment and inconvenience of not being permitted to take their examinations.

We wish each of you a successful year and a cleared account.

Sincerely,

Frederick D. Jones
Business Manager

FSU Students Attend Ohio State Visitation Day Confab

Four senior honor students from Fayetteville State University recently attended the annual Ohio State University Annual Graduate School Visitation Day activities at Columbus, Ohio.

According to Milton Yarboro, FSU Placement and Career Office Director, the event was held November 2-4 and the purpose is to attract minority students to Ohio State for graduate study.

Yarboro, who accompanied five FSU students during the trip, said that there were some 253 minority students from predominately black institutions at the conference.

The FSU honor students in attendance were: Clararene Jacobs, senior math major; Patricia Bullock, senior business administration major; Michele McIver, senior English major; Samuel Hargrove, senior business administration major; and Gilbert Owens, FSU Student Government President and business administration major.

Yarboro also stated that a number of FSU graduates are currently enrolled in graduate school at Ohio State.

The students are Mary Butler, Parkton, N.C.; Charles Robinson, Hickory, N.C.; Patricia Spinks, Siler City, N.C.; and James Norman.

The fever that won't break: THE RISING COST OF A MEDICAL EDUCATION.

Like most things, the cost of attending medical school has risen sharply over the last decade. To many medical students that cost represents a heavy burden, a financial problem that can affect your concentration.

It needn't be that way. The Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship Program was originated to free you from those worries. Men and women who qualify will have the costs of their medical education covered, and will also receive a substantial monthly allowance.

The program offers more than tuition and salary; it offers you the opportunity to begin your practice under very favorable conditions. As a health care officer in the military branch of your choice, you'll find yourself with responsibilities fully in keeping with your training, and with the time and opportunity to observe a full spectrum of medical specialties.

When you decide on the specialty you wish to pursue, you may find yourself taking those graduate medical studies at one of our many large and modern medical centers. If so, you can count on that training being second to none. Both the clinical and research work being done in them have made Army, Navy and Air Force hospitals a major new national medical resource.

It's a long road, but the first step is simple. Just send in the coupon. The details we send you may make the whole way a little smoother.
