

McDOUGAL NAMED "COACH OF YEAR" ----- "CIAA CO-COACH"

FAYETTEVILLE--Raymond McDougal is the NAIA District 29 "Coach of the Year."

The Fayetteville football mentor, who reaped the honor in '72 and is in his sixth year at the Bronco helm, posted a 75 season record of 7-3 which was his best since coming to Broncoland.

The 42-year old Delray Beach, Florida native was runner-up for the honor in '71 and this season was a complete turn around from last year's 4-7 mark.

In Carver High School at Delray Beach, Florida, McDougal was an all-state and all-conference star in football and basketball and ran track also.

McDougal played undergraduate football at Johnson C. Smith University where he started at quarterback and also ran track and was an excellent golfer.

After receiving the B.A. from Johnson C. Smith, McDougal got the M.S. degree from Indiana University where he is also working on the doctorate.

While in the Army, he was chosen the "Most Valuable Player" on the Island of Guam.

He is married to the former Jean Medford of Lancaster, S.C., and they have five children.

BRONCOS SEEK FIRST CAGE WIN

The FSU Broncos have dropped their first three games of the young season.

Under new coach Joe Robinson, FSU was beaten on the road in the season opener by Virginia State College, 116-90.

Returning home to participate in the Tip-Off Tourney, the Broncos came in last place. In the opening round, Pembroke dumped the Robinson-men, 65-59 and Methodist College squeaked by 69-68 in the consolation game.

Leading scorer in the season opener at Virginia State was Kitrell College transfer Arnold Chambers with 26 points. Second high scorer was John Barrows with 16. Curtis Ross has 11 points and Robert Wilson added 14 buckets.

In the Tip-Off Tourney at the Fayetteville Arena, high scorer in the Pembroke contest was Herb McIver with 12 and Arnold Chambers 10 points.

With Methodist College, FSU high man was Marlon Moore at 17, Henry Royal 12 points, and Robert Henderson, 10.

Being

keeping me from reaching my destination. I consider myself somebody, not because of my color, but because of my belief.

Being a woman does not keep me from being somebody. "Women's Lib" is bringing about changes--for better or worse is yet to be seen. I feel that being a woman enhances the fact that I am somebody.

Being what I am has its ups and downs. Being Black I know that in some corner of the world I shall run into someone that is prejudice. I shall only feel sorry for this individual because he may never know who will be a true friend in his time of trouble. Considering myself somebody, I know that someone will come along and try to destroy the things I am trying to build. Being what I am I know I will have to work "extra" hard trying to make the way into the future a brighter path. I know that being what I am no matter where I go--someone will always have destructive criticism for whatever I do.

Take a look at yourself....

- 1) Are you in a position to destructively criticize someone else for what he or she is trying to build for themselves?
- 2) Are you proud to be what you are--if not, ask yourself why?
- 3) And last, but not least, do you consider yourself somebody?

BUSY DECEMBER FOR FSU CAGERS

FAYETTEVILLE--The Broncos of Fayetteville State University will have a busy December when their season opens December 3 on the road in a CIAA conference battle with the Trojans of Virginia State College at Petersburg, Virginia.

New Fayetteville State University cage boss Joe Robinson will be making his debut after coaching at Maryland Eastern Shore (formerly Maryland State College) in the late 60's with championship squads that made frequent appearances in the CIAA Tourney and other post-season plays.

The Bronco cagers, who posted a 10-15 mark last year, will play a total of six games in December and will participate in a "Big Four" Tournament in Fayetteville December 5-6.

After traveling to Virginia State December 3, the FSU squad will return home for their first tourney of the December 5-6 season at the Cumberland Arena in Fayetteville, North Carolina.

The tourney teams are Pembroke State University, Methodist College, Campbell College, and Fayetteville State University.

This will mark the first time the Broncos have appeared in the tourney in almost three years.

The host team is Campbell College and the event is being sponsored by the local Jaycees of Fayetteville.

After the tourney, the Robinson-coached squad travels to Livingstone College December 8 for its second CIAA conference game.

On December 10, the Broncos host Johnson C. Smith University and travel to Washington, D.C., December 20 for its final December game with Federal City College.

TONY BALDWIN DETERMINED ON AND OFF THE FIELD

by John B. Henderson
Sports Information Director
Fayetteville State University

FAYETTEVILLE--If you asked Coach Ray McDougal of Fayetteville State University he would probably say that this is his best season (7-3) ever as head coach of Fayetteville State University which is located in a sprawling military based community in Southeastern North Carolina.

And if you ask him about his defensive secondary, the question of frosh sensation Tony Baldwin will probably come to his mind quickly.

Baldwin lives about 65 miles north of Fayetteville, after starting as a defensive back at Sanderson Senior High, the Raleigh, North Carolina native chose Fayetteville State University over offers from Howard University, A & T State University, North Carolina Central University, Elizabeth City State University, and Johnson C. Smith University.

An All-City and All-Conference selectee his senior year, Baldwin said he chose FSU because he felt he'd get a crack at the starting job in the defensive backfield.

And the job has been his since early September.

A muscular 172-pounder, the defensive specialist has proved his worth as a freshman.

"I really owe a lot to the coaching staff. Also, I think Coach Ham (defensive backfield coach at FSU) is a super person," the 5-11 Baldwin said.

A sociology major, Baldwin is quite expressive and says that he wants to become a social worker someday.

I STILL LOVE YOU

Where is the love we had so dear,
Has it passed on like another year?
All I have now is memories of you,
Knowing in my heart that I still love you.

Everywhere I turn I see your smile,
It makes me want to sit and cry for awhile.
If I could turn back the hands of time,

I would take your heart and make it mine.
This is a wish I want to come true, for baby
I'm still so in love with you.

.....MORE.....

You mean more to me than the summer breeze,
More than the stars that shine at night,
More than the rippling waves over the sea,
More than the spring sun light.

You mean more to me than the smell of fresh roses,
More than a long walk in the park,
More than the birds whistling in the mornings,
More than a good-bye kiss after dark.

You mean more to me than a day of happiness,
More than words could ever tell,
More than a million dollars,
Which makes me love you so well.
