

Pre-School Lab

New Arrivals at FSU

The Fayetteville State University Pre-School Laboratory has achieved another milestone in its program.

The Pre-School Laboratory has recently been licensed by the State of North Carolina Child Day Care Office, and the Department of Human Resources to enroll two year olds in its child development program.

There are sixteen (16) vigorous, energetic, and enthusiastic two year olds in the developmental program. These two year olds are involved in a child centered curriculum which is designed to enhance the development of two year olds physically, intellectually, emotionally and socially. The background, needs, interests, and abilities of each child is considered in planning a carefully prepared learning environment.

The environment is made up of learning centers which include housekeeping, block building, science, language arts, mathematics, manipulative art, music, listening, and special interests. These centers are highly concentrated toward developing self caring skills, social living, increasing the vocabulary, and the development of fine and gross motor skills.

Cooking, sand-water play, and swimming bring extra smiles to the two year olds.

Lawrence F. O'Brien has been hailed as the leading political pro of our time—an organizational genius whose talents have been enlisted by every Democratic presidential nominee since John F. Kennedy in 1960.

In this book, O'Brien tells it all—the joys and triumphs of the Kennedy and Johnson years, the anguish and frustration of the years that followed. NO FINAL VICTORIES is a book that must not be missed by anyone who cares about what American politics has been in the past two decades—or what it can and should be in the future. Rapoport, Daniel, INSIDE THE HOUSE, Follett Publishing Company, 1975.

This book is an irreverent guided tour through the House of Representatives, from the days of Adam Clayton Powell to those of Peter Rodino. It is the fascinating study of the House, its weaknesses and strengths, its successes and failures, and its somber and silly moments.

The author makes the House come alive and jump up and down and demand more attention in the future.

Sarnoff, Jane, WHAT? A RIDDLE BOOK, Scribner Publishing Company, 1974.

This book contains over 500 riddles covering politics, space, economics, philosophy, natural science, and elephantology, including a series of riddles in code.

Stambler, Irwin, ENCYCLOPEDIA OF POP ROCK AND SOUL, St. Martin's Press, 1974.

This is the most complete encyclopedia of the world of popular music in existence, and it brings together in some 500 entries all the elements of today's pop music scene.

Stirling, Nora, YOUR MONEY OR YOUR LIFE, The Bobbs-Merrill Company, Inc, 1974.

Fascinating as well as practical, this book is a detailed account of crime and criminals—exposing the way they operate all over the country, in cities, suburbs and rural communities, in subways and in banks and on telephones, what they look for, and how they set it up—and tells what you can do to prevent being their target.

Yerby, Frank, THE DAHOMEAN, Dial Press, 1971.

Frank Yerby, the master storyteller, reconstructs the last, glorious world of a great African nation in the early nineteenth century.

THE DAHOMEAN is an intense, intimate story of th-wanted love and passion, but it is also the tale of a great people, a great culture, vanquished by greed, the slave trade, and the encroachments of destructive colonialism.

Yerby, Frank, THE ODOR OF SANCTITY, Dial Press, 1965.

Alaric, the central character, is a never-ending struggle to know himself and to define his relationship with God. He is loved and hated by both men and women who mistrust his simple kindness and misunderstand his almost indefinable attractiveness.

Alaric is led by force of circumstance and at times his own free will to stain his hands with the blood of his fellows, to betray the woman he loves, to do horrible battle with friend and foe alike, yet he never loses the vision of his youth, a saintly vision of a more perfect world, free of his own vices and virtues.
