FSU GOLF DYNASTY

Springs-in-action - Andre Springs of Fayetteville State University, 1976 C.I.A.A. Golf Champion, leads F.S.U. into their fourth year of dominance with this swing! (FSU Photo by Gilbert H. Foust)

Fayetteville--When a skinny little golfer from Charlotte came to Fayetteville State University in the fall of 1975, F.S.U. already had one C.I.A.A. Golf Championship under its belt including the individual championship held by 1974 champion Vincent Reid. Since then, Andre has won all CIAA, all NIAA, Most Valuable Player (Freshman year), Most Valuable player 1976, and second place Runner-up for the CIAA Championship last year. While the team has won it three years in a row with Andre leading the team two years in a row.

Springs, a six-foot 160 lb. Junior physical education major, feels that the Broncos will repeat again this year because the team seems to be as solid as it was last year.

The difference in Springs is that everyone around him benefits from his golf play and enthusiasm. "I try to instill in my teammates the importance of self-confidence and self-motivation, in essence, self-respect is just as important as respect in the ability of others. The most significant and motivating thing that could happen to an athlete is for him to receive recognition from his peers whether it's swimming, tennis, football, or golf. Respecting yourself and others makes it easier to receive respect," explains Springs.

And how does his Coach Moses Walker feel about Andre? "Andre is a very serious young golfer," began Walker, "who wants to excel in all phases of golf."

CROWD PLEASERS

Inspiring the mighty Broncos this year are ten very talented and dedicated cheerleaders. They practice two hours a day, four days a week, to ready themselves for the big games on the weekends. Not only do they sacrifice time during the week, cheerleaders give up the weekend trips home to mom's good cooking. One might ask, "What does a young co-ed receive for her weekends of sore throats and sore muscles?" The young ladies' answers range from, "An opportunity to meet interesting people," to "A feeling of deep gratification."

This year's squad is under the supervision of faculty member Peggy DeVane and if you've attended any games this year you know Mrs. DeVane has created a promising group.

Fracine Carrol is captain this year and Valerie Jones serves as co-captain. The rest of the squad includes: Pat Crumpler, Theresa Hall, Annette Wagner, Priscilla Aycock, Lois Douglas, Debra Stanback, Jean Brown and features transfer student Marie Lightfoot.

With chants of victory from Bronco fans, led by the dynamic F.S.U. cheerleaders, victory is inevitable.

Homecoming '77

We, the Student Government Association of Fayetteville State University have a message for you, the Bronco. Maybe you felt our presence the first week of school when you parted each evening or maybe you needed assistance with an instructor or some campus misfortune and we were there again. We are not trying to sound like supermen but with your super support, we can make this year, "Better than Ever" with your Student Government Association.

The Homecoming activities will begin October 10, 1977. Our tentative agenda is as follows: Mon. 10th, Fashion show, Disco; Tues. 11th, Freshmen Talent Show; Wed. 12th, Bonfire, Pep Rally, Battle of the D.J.'s; Thurs. 13th, Coronation Ball; Fri. 14th, Funeral and Pre-Dawn Dance; and Sat. 15th, Parade, Game (Winston-Salem State Univ.), Show

Help make our Homecoming an outstanding one. Let's make this a Homecoming to remember.

The Thumper

by Alvin Manuel and Vivian McCall

Who is the Thumper? That is the question that many of the students around Fayetteville State are asking. Almost everyone knows him by face, and certainly every offensive player in the CIAA knows Gerald Costen, the senior cornerback for the Broncos.

Costen came to Fayetteville State from East Carolina University in hopes of finding a spot on a starting line up. Costen hasn't thought of himself as an aggressive player, but many think of him as dangerous. He has three interceptions and numerous tackles to his credit.

The coaching staff thinks that "The Thumper" can easily make all CIAA and has a chance at NAIA honors as well. His other honors that he received was "Best All Around" and he truly lives up to being the "best."

Thumper stands 6'0" and weighs in at 175. He belongs to Omega Psi Phi, and holds a 2.75 academic average, and hopes to graduate with an overall average of 3.0 For "The Thumper," there is only one way he can go, "up," but for his line of work, shall we say "down?"

influencing young people prior to their becoming University students."

Chancellor Lyons announced the establishment of a Graduate Center at FSU. It will, initially offer graduate instruction in education. The staff that will administer the program will be on campus shortly and FSU administration and faculty will be a part of the program. "Hopefully," said Lyons, "this program will follow the same course as the Fort Bragg Center. In time, this Center will become the Graduate School of Fayetteville State University."

Fayetteville State University begins the year with 141 faculty members and projects an enrollment of 5,600 students during the 1977-78 school year. 2,000 of these students will be on the "main campus" and the remainder will be enrolled at the Fort Bragg Center, Weekend College and the Satellite Campuses.

Lyons also announced the appointment of Dr. Ronald O. Smith as Academic Dean and announced that student affairs will be managed by an Interim Management Committee, consisting of Mr. J.A. McCoy, Associate Dean of three-act drama to be staged in November; and "Why the Chimes Ring," a Christmas pageant.

Students (Men), Mrs. Arnetha Robinson, Associate Dean of Students (Women), and Dr. Luther McManus, Chairman and Director of Student Services Center. The vacancy in student affairs occurred as a result of a leave of absence taken by Mr. J.C. Jones, Dean of Students. Dean Jones accepted an appointment on the State Parole Commission.

In 1978 other productions will be "Demons," a one-act drama and "Dark of the Moon," a three-act drama. The dates for staging of these two productions will be announced in the spring semester. Also the Drama Guild will sponsor the Miss F.S.U. Pageant.

Please watch for Miss Drama Guild in the Homecoming Parade and at the Coronation Ball. If you are interested in any aspect of theatre, feel free to call upon Mr. Hockett for assistance or you may come see some of the productions. Mr. Hockett is located in the Little Theatre in the Bulter Building.

Gilliam, Alvin Manuel, Valerie Dickens, Thomas Walters, Jackie Rowland, Edward Leggette, Cynthia Ellis, and Cheryl Peace.

The staff thinks that the ideas they have developed will make this year's yearbook the best in the history of Fayetteville State University. They plan to have more color, more student activities and more campus life. Ms. McArthur urges anyone who has ideas or suggestions to please write them down and drop them by the yearbook office in the Student Center. This Book Represents Us!!
