

What Is The Continuing Education Center?

By Cheryl M. Brown

The center for Continuing Education, under the direction of Dr. Marje Jefferies, is located inside the main entrance gates. Its purpose is to provide several programs designed to help adults cope with constant changes in society.

People who have received their degree five to ten years ago, feel the need to take courses to update their education. The short courses, workshops, seminars and conferences are geared to presenting broader perspectives into personal and professional activities. The courses are selected by an advisory counsel after examining the educational needs in the community. The objectives are determined by the university. Courses for credit and non-credit courses are provided according to individual purposes. Course description and fees are discussed at registration.

Continuing Education has several programs, among them are educational mainstreaming, workshops and computer courses for teachers of the gifted and talented, speech and language developmental workshops, foreign language courses, law enforcement programs, clerk proficiency courses, mid-life crisis workshops, courses for the elderly, effective parenting, and how to get a job. The extensive list of courses offered are mobile, and classes are provided throughout North Carolina.

In 1973 the Board of Trustees at FSU officially ignited the division of Continuing Education. In March 1976 the Center for Continuing Education was built. The first week-end college in North Carolina was developed at FSU under the division of Continuing Education. Funds were provided for six years through a grant from the W.K. Kellogg Company of Battle Creek, Michigan.

The broad spectrum of activities in Continuing Education is "What's Happening."

For more information, call the center at 486-1225 or visit Monday through Friday from 8-5 p.m.

AFROTC

By C/Cpt. Kowalski and Emanuel Vaughn

F.S.U.'s AFROTC has many plans for the spring semester. The annual Dining-In, Red Cross Blood Drive, bake sales, Community ROTC recruiting drives, and the support of University functions (Ushring and protocol assistance). Many other AFROTC is a worth while organization, according to C/Cpt. Kowalski "and the university newspaper should keep students informed to the many things AFROTC has to offer."

Detachment 607, of the AFROTC program, located on FSU's campus, wishes to extend its best wishes to their December graduates.

C/Col. Holloway, C/Maj. Jackson, C/Capt. John, and C/Capt. Kowalski. The detachment realizes that it will be losing some valuable people; hopefully, new cadets will fill any empty slots.

Belated Thank You

Dear Fellow Classmates,

My sincere appreciation is extended to the staff of The Voice, our campus newspaper, to afford me this time for expressing my deepest thanks for your vote in the 1982-83 class election.

It is with great pride to have this honor-bestowed upon me, that of the Senior Class President, 82-83. A leader is no greater than it's followers allow; your support, cooperation and participation in your class endeavors is much needed and expected.

Fayetteville State University is a continuously growing institution; continuously changing for the better; let us make this year 82-83 the best in the history of this venture. Support your class activities and you will have supported your school.

Classmates let the work we do, for this school year, be one to be remembered throughout the institution's history.

Again thanks for your vote and I will uphold this office to the best of my ability and will always represent you well in whatever we may undertake. Merry Christmas to all of you and best wishes for an academically successful New Year.

Kaye Simmons, President Senior Class, 82-83

Where Is The FSU Spirit?

By Kenneth McNeil

Students choose the school he or she would like to attend; therefore, they should participate in the school activities of the university. If students don't involve themselves in school activities there can't be any progress. One may say that there isn't any spirit because everyone isn't up to the standards it should be, it's not just the players or coaches but the students, as well. Students are taking the school spirit for granted. But why are the students taking school spirit for granted? Everyone complains about the teams not winning any games. But are these people taking the time and effort to help the program out? Due to the lack of participation from the students, the Booster Club which is designed to enhance the school's spirit, is not able to do their jobs. What's wrong Broncos? It's past time for the F.S.U. family to pull together.

Employment

Persons looking for employment are invited to visit the ACCESS Information Center. ACCESS is compiling information on career and employment resources. One resource available to the public is the Employment Resources brochure. The brochure lists employment services, government programs, career guidance agencies, resume preparation services, apprenticeship programs and out of town resources. For those individuals seeking employment in other areas of the state, ACCESS has files of major employers in areas of North Carolina with populations of 10,000 or more.

Persons interested in obtaining a free copy of the brochure or examining the major employers file should visit ACCESS between the hours of 10:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. The ACCESS Information Center is located at 215 Anderson Street. For additional information call 483-7727.

Induction Ceremonies

Omicron Beta Chapter, Kappa Delta Pi, the National Honor Society in Education recently held its Fall Induction ceremonies November 16, 1982 in the Rudolph Jones Student Center at Fayetteville State University. New members welcomed included the following: Michael Cliette, Howard Fleetwood, Cathy Harrison, Sandra S. McGill, Patricia M. Ramos, Mabel Ruth Rogers, Sandra Shorter, Cynthia Taliaferro, Irving Veazie, and Izola Young.

Presiding for the evening were Roberta Butler, chapter President, and

Dr. C.I. Brown-chapter counselor. Featured during the evening were abstracts from reports prepared by the pledges. The guest speaker for the evening was Dr. George H. Walker, Professor of Education in the Graduate Center. He reflected on his long tenure with Kappa Delta Pi and a number of things he had been associated with in the society.

A social hour followed the ceremony. Present for this occasion were faculty members, student members, students, family, and friends.
