DOOLITTLE CROWE, a student at FSU: Who is the only person who cares if grandfathers are fat? Grandmothers.
DR. GRANT S. SHOCKLEY, President of Philander Smith College: Black schools are doing what every good college ought to be doing. They're taking young black people where they are and bringing them to where they should be. The need for black colleges will exist long after the need for Notre Dame. The problem in America is the existence of segregation. When we eliminate racism in America, we will eliminate the need for institutions that will correct deficiencies caused by racism.
