ARMY ROTC

Army ROTC is alive and well and on your campus!! What is Army ROTC? Army ROTC (Reserve Officers' Training Corps) is one of the smartest college courses you can take. It offers opportunities and challenges that can put you on the fast track to success in life. You'll develop the confidence, self-esteem, motivation and leadership skills you'll need regardless of your career plans.

The program offers you the opportunity to enhance your education and graduate with more than a college diploma. For its many benefits, Army ROTC requires only a few hours a week. So it won't interfere with your required college curriculum or social life. When you finish the program and complete college, you'll receive your first promotion--from student to second lieutenant.

It's not too late to join Army ROTC. We have a traditional four-year program and a two-year program for those students with military credit or who did not take the first two years of ROTC. We also have plenty of three and two-year scholarships to give away to eligible students and offer a paid six-week leadership training summer camp at Fort Knox, KY, for those students without basic course instruction credit.

The Army's Department of Military Science is an integral part of the Campbell Battalion, which includes Campbell University, Methodist College, Fayetteville State University and Pembroke State University. The Battalion has a long standing reputation for producing outstanding officers. We are presently ranked No. 5 out of approximately 330 colleges and universities throughout the United States. The Nations No. 1 cadet for 1995 was trained and commissioned by the Campbell Battalion. The program's success is also apparent by our high active duty selection rate (88%) as compared to the rest of the United States (69%); FSU had a 100% selection rate.

The following FSU students will graduate this year as Second Lieutenants in the U.S. Army: Cadet Demetrius D. Brooks--Sociology major; Cadet Nancy L. Henderson--Business Administration major; Cadet Quentin L. Johnson--MBA student; and Cadet Sharon M. Ramp--Criminal Justice major. DON'T BE AFRAID TO ADD YOUR NAME TO THIS LIST!... Look up Military Science (MSC) under the College of Arts and Science in your FSU course catalog, and start building a solid well-rounded future. It's a smart career move...and it looks good on a resume, too.

ing FSU on TV and keeping Fayetteville area high school sports stars in Fayetteville.

All in all, the forums were successful. They introduced Dr. McLeod to the community as well as found out what Fayetteville expected from FSU. Dr. McLeod graciously responded that many of the suggestions and requests were already being addressed by the University and stated that he would conduct an annual forum to update the community on its suggestions and requests. FSU students are eagerly awaiting their opportunity to address their concerns about the university in similar forums.

FSU Welcomes Home Royalty

by Lesli Sample

On Friday, February 23, 1996, Fayetteville State University welcomed home one of its own, Ms. Christi "Uwimanah" Bradford. A program was held Friday at one o'clock in the Helen T. Chick Building to honor Ms. Bradford, the reigning Miss Collegiate African-American (MCAA) and former Miss Fayetteville State University. Presiding over the ceremony was Ms. Kenyatta Morrissey, Miss FSU 1995-96.

The program began with a welcome and greetings followed by a video presentation of Ms. Bradford's crowning ceremony and walk as Miss Collegiate African-American. Next, a history of the MCAA Pageant was presented by Mrs. Olivia Chavis, Associate Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs, followed by some inspiring words from Ms. Sandra Adams, Executive Director of the MCAA Pageant.

Next, several special tributes were made to Ms. Bradford by FSU students, members of FSU's Early Childhood Learning Center, and the FSU Concert choir. Several presentations were made by the university community, the FSU National Alumni Association, SGA, and SAC.

Following the tributes and presentations, Ms. Bradford performed a soul stirring rendition of "Wind Beneath My Wings" in appreciation. Closing remarks were made by the Dr. Glenna Sexton, Acting Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs and Chancellor Willis McLeod. A reception and photo session followed, concluding a wonderful ceremony.

Cheer

1995 CIAA tournament, it's safe to say that relations between Ms. Adams and Cheer Phi were strained. In short, there was never open or clear communication between Ms. Adams and Cheer-Phi. By the time of the 1995 CIAA tournament, communication was almost nonexistent.

Cheer-Phi had a specific schedule of events and activities they had to perform in order to strongly represent the university. This schedule was disrupted when Ms. Adams went against tradition and decided to bring the JV cheerleading squad to the tournament (JV don't attend CIAA). Not only did this action confuse and disrupt Cheer-Phi's accommodations, it was also a slap in the face of tradition. One of the promises that Ms. Adams made to the squad was that the presence of the JV cheerleaders would not interfere with the Varsity Cheerleaders' agenda. Unfortunately, this is just what happened.

The JV squad's presence drew Ms. Adams' attention away from the activities of the Varsity cheerleaders. The resulting confusion led to the varsity cheerleading squad missing an important athletic banquet due to a hastily scheduled breakfast session with the then Interim Chancellor, Dr. Donna Benson.

Attending the breakfast forced them to miss a mandatory cheerleaders' award banquet. With their agenda lying in tatters, Cheer-Phi protested against their advisor's inconsiderate scheduling by not performing at a CIAA-sponsored exhibition at the tournament.

In response to this refusal to cheer, a blanket suspension was imposed on the members of the Varsity cheerleading
