My First
By: Sheena Leecraft

Awakening out of a dream
You make my reality cross my fantasies
While my fantasies evolve into unbounded love
This love has no form or mold
Its power makes my mind relax
Allowing my heart to take control
A love affair never felt, seen or heard
Never have I seen you
Love's halo surrounds my body
Just so, you can know it is me too
I have I experienced this form of fine art
The collage of comfort in your embrace
Allowed my drive to lead to the doorsteps of your capital
Find life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness
Parallel to massive quantities of blessedness
If only you can understand
I have never known love like this
So, my social demeanor isn't to offend
Fearful of those who will wish to dismiss me for us
I can attend a small portion of relevance
Please look beyond my insecurities
I have my strength to live and passion for life
I want us to obtain power from each other Maintain our visions so I can aim
To heighten levels during your climax
As I give your cerebral brain
I'll make you reconsider your definition of safe sex
Our sex is safe as we look for security within you and I
You be my fence as I stand guard
Destroying whoever dares to enter our cipher
Our sex is beyond physical Mental is achieved by our oneness is spiritual
The physical isn't essential but it is crucial "Soul Exploring X-rays," sex in its finest
It is the light needed for you to examine my heart
To secure our residence
While making your attendance evident
Evidently clear
Clear as day, clear as night, clear as now
Clear as love

Love to my husband....

To Douglas Blake
I just wanted to drop you a line on this Valentine's Day. Since you've come into my life, you have shown me nothing but love in everything you do and say. I love you Mr. Blake.
So, besides all the our materials things that we will give each other on this Valentine's Day, I know that you already have given the greatest gift of all and that's LOVE.
