

Greek, continued from front page

police station use to be because of the mass space and that is the key thing for the plots is space.

Cherice Washington, Delta Xi Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc.

TV: What are your thoughts on the supposed plot relocation?

CW: Definitely speaking on Delta Sigma Theta, we are concerned on the move because we want the integrity of our plots to be protected no matter where they are. I know that it was brought about in the meeting of downsizing the plots. I think what the administration does not realize is that everything on our plots were given and passed down from lines of 1952 to 2010 because all lines make a contribution, so by moving them is definitely uprooting the roots and the history of the organization, so we are a little concerned because it is a very scary transition. We have all these questions and not enough answers so it's kind of like what is going to happen to our home basically.

Ivory Osborne, Epsilon Beta Chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc.

TV: Should the University consider the historical value behind the Greek plots?

IO: Definitely. We are an HBCU based off of historical value, and the plots are apart of that history and the university should take that into consideration.

TV: What would you do differently to your fraternal plot? Or do you have any ideas?

IO: We will definitely buy some new gloves! (Laughs out loud). We have been using house paint and what we need to start doing is use outside paint to keep the plots looking fresh much longer. We want to definitely add more benches for people to sit on for when we have entertainment on the plots.

Chrissie Collins, Delta Alpha Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc.

TV: Do you have any ideas on where the plots should go? What are your suggestions?

CC: Where they are now is the perfect location because of them being in the center of campus, but I think in front of the student center, not directly in the front, but in that location since that is where many of the students come and go. Maybe in front of the Cook building, where they can move the trees and trailers and make space. Other than that I can't think of another location.

TV: Do you feel as though the University should keep in mind of the historical value of the Greek plots?

CC: Absolutely!

Kelly Smith, Omega Beta Chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc.

TV: How do you feel about the removal and/or relocation of the plots?

KS: Well actually, I feel it is a positive and negative situation. It is negative in the form that the plots will be removed and might take a long time to relocate them. The positive will be that the plots will be putting us into the blueprint because most campuses do not have plots, they have trees, sidewalks, or benches, so we actually get our plots back.

TV: Additional thoughts about the situation?

KS: One idea I do have is to add a unity plot. The colors of the PAN [National Pan Hellenic Council] is black and white, so if we could do a central area black and white and have the other Greek colors surround it to represent unity and also individuality.

Royal, continued from page 5 positive representation to my class; and that Bronco pride roams freely through my veins.

Why is exemplifying excellence important?

I define excellence as not only being a positive attribute to society but creating, molding and encouraging others around you to be excellent in the things that they do as well.

Narcisse Mwanza – Mr. Sophomore

Age: 20

Hometown: Durham, N.C.

Classification: Sophomore

Major: Business Administration with a concentration in Marketing

Hobby: Watching and playing sports.

Career Plans: Attend graduate school and work for a Forbes 500 company.

Why is it important to exemplify excellence?

Well it's important because you won't have enough room for mistakes and you'll reach for perfection.

Why did you join the royal court?

My reason is to serve the Sophomore class and represent FSU. I want to also help others.

Motavian Bratton – Mr. Freshman

Hometown: Charlotte, NC

Classification: Freshman

Major: Biology

Age: 19

Hobby: Attending church functions, playing sports and listening to music

Career Plans: Being a physical therapist for a professional football team.

The importance of exemplifying excellence?

I feel when someone strives to be perfect or excellent it can help them in the long run for a career and setting an example for society in whole.

Have you registered? Try a new course!

INTELLIGENCE STUDIES (INTL)

Intelligence & National Security (200)

Intelligence Operations (220)

Emerging Int'l Security Threat (440)

International Terrorism (450)

JOURNALISM (JOUR)

Fundamentals of Journalism (210)

News Reporting & Writing I (220)

Layout & Design for Publication (225)

News Editing (240)

Magazine & Feature Editing (300)

Voice photo by Dea Spicer

Miss FSU and her class queens ride and wave during the Homecoming parade.

JJ Home Improvement, Rentals & Towing

ALL TYPES OF WORK:
RENTAL HOUSES • LAWN CARE
LOT CLEANING • JUNKED CAR REMOVAL

WILLIE JOHNSON - OWNER

TEL: 910-822-0977

CEL: 910-670-8347