

1200 Murchison Road
Fayetteville, NC 28301

INTERSESSION CONTINUED FROM PAGE 2

terrain impacts logistical concerns, become aware of factors that influenced decisions of military strategy and the life of the civilian-soldier preparing for, and during, times of war. Contact: kwalsh@uncfsu.edu

HUMN 212 MUSIC, ARTS, IDEAS II Short Travel - Freedom and the pursuit of happiness. The last 500 years has seen Western civilizations casting off the ideas of monarchs and religious conformity, and instead embracing these now well-established democratic ideals--ideals that continue to spread as we watch the news today. Yet the societies founded on protecting the rights of ordinary individuals represent only a fraction of recorded human history. Humanities 212 intersession course explores how the arts--music, theatre, painting, sculpture, architecture, literature, cinema--participate in both maintaining and challenging ideologies over time. This multi-media, discussion-based course will culminate in a planned trip to the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh. Class hours will vary and will include some evening sessions. Contact: scbrown@uncfsu.edu

PHIL 210 INTRO TO PHILOSOPHY Cool, interesting, thought-provoking ideas in movies typically turn out to come from somewhere. Where? The writer's imagination. But where did the writer get them from? Odds are, from Philosophy. Join us as we watch some classic and contemporary films, study a few classical philosophical texts, then discuss the philosophical themes embedded in those movies. Contact: gsadler@uncfsu.edu

POLI 431 INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION TRAVEL - This course aims at serving three general functions. First, to provide students with a background on the concepts of and theoretical perspectives toward international organizations. Second, to provide detailed information on the United Nations, the only truly universal international organization and, as some would say, a possible incubator of a world government. Third, to provide detailed information on the European Union, the most integrated international organization in human history. We will begin with these broader questions, and will then discuss international organizations specifically, as well as non-state actors. The course will conduct simulations of UN Security Council reform project and EU analysis and conclude with student presentations, in which we discuss the way you have applied these broader perspectives to a specific issue or problem in international organization. Contact: hlheem@uncfsu.edu

SOCI 412 RACE AND ETHNIC RELATIONS Race as biology... DEAD! Race as a social and cultural construction...ALIVE AND DOING WELL! Using intellectually-stimulating writings from world-renowned race scholars, this seminar focuses on the social and cultural construction of race and its effects in people's lives and communities. Students will co-create the course through reflective discussion and writing. This seminar will provoke students to think about their position on race. Contact: sblount@uncfsu.edu

SPAN 230 ADVANCED SPANISH CONVERSATION TRAVEL: This course will include travel based in Cáceres, Extremadura where students would have classes. From there students will explore Sevilla - Cádiz - Cáceres, Mérida - Lisbon - Cáceres and finally Toledo and Madrid. Contact: hbarnes1@uncfsu.edu

SPEE 200 INTRODUCTION TO SPEECH An introduction to the development of effective oral communication through instruction in theory and practice of the principles and skills required in common types of speaking situations. Basic skills in audience analysis, research, organization, outlining, utilizing evidence, reasoning, listening, and verbal/nonverbal expression are developed. Various methods of delivery are examined and practiced. Prerequisite ENGL 120 (may be taken concurrently) or ULTR 120. Contact: wthomas3@uncfsu.edu

SUMMER SCHOOL CONTACT INFO

Office of Summer School
Fayetteville State University
1200 Murchison Road
Fayetteville, NC 28301-4298
(910) 672-1229 or summerschool@uncfsu.edu

Courses available in Sanford

Several courses will be offered in Sanford at Central Carolina Community College for students who need some "catch up or get ahead" classes. They are:

CHEM 140 and 160,
BIOL 255,
HIST 110, 210, and 212, and
PSYC 210.

For more info, go to www.cccc.edu or contact Dr. Lisa Chapman, VP of Academic Affairs, lchapman@cccc.edu

And on Fort Bragg

Fort Bragg course list coming soon online. Go to www.uncfsu.edu/summerschool.