Colorful exchange

Dr. Kwami Tuprah (center) associate professor of mathematics and computer science, College of Arts and Sciences, discusses Kente traditions during the "Textile of Unity: Ghanaian Kente" workshop at Rosenthal Gallery on Saturday. The exhibit will be on display through Oct. 16 at Rosenthal Gallery and Seabrook Auditorium.

EDITOR'S NOTE:

Please take time to explore your Voice today, and then help a fellow FSU friend find their Voice. If you are a commuter, please take your Voice with you out into the surrounding community to share with your family, friends, and neighbors. Help your Voice to grow by sharing it with any local businesses you frequent. Then let them know how they can help you to strengthen your Voice, while providing them some space so others in the Bronco community can hear their voice. And make sure you honor your Voice by taking a moment to share your voice with your Voice so that we all may hear what you have to say. Your voice does make a difference!

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I enjoyed reading your article, "FSU combines events for acclaimed author." Mr. Robinson's book, 'Disintegration': The Splintering of Black America- is indeed a must read for everyone committed to or at least interested in the well-being of African-Americans, especially those Robinson rightly terms, "The Abandoned."

Your opening quote was well-chosen for how it summarizes and highlights the main thesis of the book, the four Black Americans. Your decision to use the author's four brief definitions to simultaneously inform and to stimulate our appetites for more from the author is also a good reflection of your journalistic skills. Equally impressive was your use of relevant quotations from Emily Dickens, the Director of Constituent Relations; Dr. James P. Anderson, the FSU Chancellor; and Ms. Felicia Crittenden, Co-Chair of the Chancellor's Reading Club. I have no doubt that your article will help bring more students, staff, and faculty to meet Mr. Robinson when he visits for the Fall Convocation, and more importantly, to read his book. I'm not a betting man, but I'm confident that as many as would read the book will come to agree with the Chancellor and yours truly that we chose a great book for this year!

My only negative comments are about two minor journalistic sins; a sin of omission and a sin of demotion. Within the context of an academic community such as FSU, writers should be careful to identify faculty and staff by their proper titles and ranks. Unfortunately, you omitted my title "Dr." which precedes my name and "demoted" me from the rank of a (Full) Professor to Associate Professor. But, as a token of my appreciation for your excellent article, I forgive you on both counts.

*Dr. Joseph Osei, Professor of Philosophy and Religion,
Phil/Government and History*
