When you close your eyes you feel like you're right in front of your television set, listening to the music of familiar series that you enjoy so much: "JAG," "Hill Street Blues," "Magnum P.I.," "Quantum Leap," "Star Trek Enterprise" and many more.

Much of that music has been composed by Goldsboro native Velton Ray Bunch.

On April 12, Bunch returned to his hometown to present that music in a gala event presented by The Foundation of Wayne Community College Arts and Humanities Programs.

Held in the Dick Moffatt Auditorium on campus, the event featured a variety of television and movie music, as well as a couple of tunes from his youth.

The show entertained the audience so much that they didn't notice the time tick by.

Afterwards, in an exclusive interview with the Campus

Voice, Mr. Bunch discussed what has kept him in the music business.

He smiled as he discussed how he loves seeing a project come together and the satisfaction of it concluding successfully.

One of his biggest successes was the soundtrack he did for "Star Trek Enterprise" which won him an Emmy award.

He also is particularly proud of music he scored for a movie about the time that Sen. John McCain spent in a prisoner of war camp.

Bunch has seen many changes in the music industry. One that concerns him is that many of today's musicians don't have
