Bob Johnston To Be On TV

Mr. Robert Johnston, instructor for Hotel-Motel Management, will be interviewed on the "Today at Home" show on Channel 12, July 30 at 10 a.m. where he will be boosting Wilkes Community College and its Hotel-Motel Program.

Mr. Johnston, a native of New York, is a graduate of the Hotel Management Program at Cornell University in Ithaca, New York. He worked in the management field until 1973, when he left a position as resident manager of the Monhok Mountain House to come to Wilkes County. Here he was discovered by Wilkes Community College and brought into the Hotel-Motel Program, at first as a part-time instructor. Mr. Johnston came with the college full-time in September, 1973.

His Hotel-Motel Program includes a variety of instruction: food preparation, desk clerking, motel management, bookkeeping, and even the care and cleaning of rooms. Students do an internship at local motels, restaurants, and resorts to receive on-the-job experience. In addition, they prepare meals for important functions at the college.

In the TV interview, Mr. Johnston will discuss the Hotel-Motel Management Program and will answer a number of questions about Wilkes Community College.

Activation Of Veterans Club

Veterans of at least six months active duty in the armed forces of the United States are invited to attend a meeting of the Veteran's Club. The purpose of the meeting will be to elect officers for next year and plan activities.

The sub-purpose of the get-together will be to meet other veterans and our fearless sponsor, Mac Warren.

The date is set for August 2 in the evening. For a specific time and place, contact the Student Counselor's office.

A moment's insight is sometimes worth a life's experience.
