WCC Seeks Public Input

Wilkes Community College is seeking input from the general public concerning the institution's purpose. The opinions are being sought in connection with an internal study the college is conducting.

The self-study is required for re-accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS). Institutions undergo a complete evaluation every 10 years in order to keep their SACS accreditation. WCC is due for re-accreditation in spring, 1985.

The Southern Association considers an institution's stated mission and purpose as an important area of evaluation, according to Dr. Essie N. Hayes, director of the WCC self-study. It will investigate college offerings to determine how the stated purpose is being carried out, she said.

The college is asking individuals to call and request a complete statement of purpose and objectives, along with a questionnaire. A stamped, self-addressed envelope will be provided in which to return the questionnaire.

The college lists the following broad objectives: "To provide: Two years of academic college credit courses for those students who desire to transfer to four-year colleges and universities and for those students for whom two years of general college will satisfy their educational needs;

"A variety of two-year programs in technical studies which will afford the student the greatest opportunity to enter an occupation; A variety of one-year vocational programs, three or four quarters in length, which will afford the student the greatest opportunity for entrance into a trade;

"A variety of programs and courses for those who desire to increase their competence in their present occupation; Industrial pre-service and in-service training at a level beyond that which the public schools offer;

"A variety of programs and courses for adults who desire personal fulfillment through continuing education; Opportunities for adults to earn a high school diploma or equivalency certificate; A variety of activities that enhance the quality of life in the community."

Please complete the following questionnaire on the purpose and objectives and return to the student publication office in Hayes Hall or mail to Sandy Warren at Wilkes Community College.
