

Bloodmobile Held At WCC

Phi Theta Kappa sponsored a Bloodmobile for the American Red Cross on Wednesday, September 27 from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. The Red Cross goal of sixty-five pints of blood was missed by a narrow margin, with the Bloodmobile receiving fifty-nine pints. Another Bloodmobile is planned for May of 1996, so all WCC donors are encouraged to participate.

Thanks

Phi Theta Kappa would like to thank the Wilkes Community College Book Store for donating a college T-shirt. The shirt was a prize in a drawing held at the Carolina's Regional Phi Theta Kappa Fall Leadership Conference and was much appreciated.

Operation Christmas Child

Phi Theta Kappa is planning to participate in the Operation Christmas Child campaign sponsored by the Samaritan's Purse ministries from Boone, NC. Operation Christmas Child is an annual program which sends shoe boxes filled with Christmas gifts to children in war-torn countries. This year, the Samaritan's Purse is sending thousands of shoe boxes to children in Bosnia. Each box will be filled with necessary hygienic items as well as school supplies, candy, and Christmas toys. All students are invited to participate by choosing a card from a Christmas tree which will be set up in the Thompson Hall Commons area or by donating money. Please help Phi Theta Kappa give unfortunate Bosnian children a bright spot in what is probably going to be an otherwise depressing Christmas. Phi Theta Kappa would like to thank any member of the student body, faculty, or staff who decides to participate in this program.

Apple Festival Trick-or-Treat Trends

The Brushy Mountain Apple Festival will be held in North Wilkesboro on Saturday, October 7, 1995. Highlights of the Apple Festival always include hand-made crafts, fresh produce, various exhibits, live music, and lots of festival food. Wilkes Community College will once again be represented at the Apple Festival. Student Development, along with the Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society, will provide an information booth.

Halloween is just around the corner and that means everyone has an excuse to get into a disguise so that they can go stir up some mischief or at least get some candy. Walk into any Wal-mart and you will see aisles filled with all sorts of goodies to transform your everyday self into a fully-costumed trick-or-treater. The more traditional costumes for Halloween are witches, ghosts, and ghouls, but this year's costumes range anywhere from Disney's Pocohontas to the ever-popular Power Rangers. If you're having a hard time trying to figure out what you want to dress like this year, take a look at these people's favorite costumes and maybe you'll get an idea.

What Do Students Look For In Teachers

You hear the talk every quarter, just before registration. Who did you take that course from, and did you like the teacher? Answers and reasons vary, so you never know what kind of instructor you have until YOU are in the class. What kind would you like? A quick poll of students netted these varied answers:

"A teacher who's easy to get along with and has lots of office hours."

"One who makes the class challenging."

"One who has a clear and concise way of explaining the subject."

"One with personality, and a good sense of humor."

"A teacher who has control of the class."

"An expert in their field."

"A teacher who cares about the students."

The list is so long, I'm surprised there is no mention of a Halo. Wonder what teachers look for in students?

Melinda Foster and Jody Grose like to dress up like vampires. Adrian Perez likes to paint his face white and dress all in black. Mindy Hudson's favorite costume was that of a 60's girl and Kevin Gentry's favorite was a mummy. There must be something about dressing up like animals that people like because several folks have masqueraded as four-legged creatures. Jamie Chapman's favorite costume was a fluffy white dog, Wiliam Head has dressed like Snoopy, Dina Ormond enjoys dressing up like a black cat, and Mark Royal likes painting his face up like a cat. Becky Vickers has decided to be the Grim Reaper this year, so don't be too alarmed if this specter comes knockin' on your door.

I hope everyone has a Happy Halloween - just beware of what lurks in the shadows!!
