Twiggy Morgan Crowned Reverse Beauty Queen

By Twiggy Morgan
This year I not only had the pleasure to like cover the reverse beauty pageant for the newspaper, but I was like the winner too. After a long and grueling process to get ready for the pageant, which is really no different than my normal morning routine, I came out to my most favorite song in like the whole world, "Genie in a Bottle." I had to really strut my stuff for the judges because the competition was quite fierce. I was wearing my pretty blue mini-skirt. (I had shorter but S.J. said that would not be very lady like) None of the other contestants looked as good as I did. Most of them looked like they just came in from the street, a hinting of their true profession. And one of the ladies was even scantily clad in a bikini. (I guess she didn't know that it's wrong to wear a two piece after Labor Day.) After a brutal talent competition, it was down to some girl that looked like an Annie wannabe, the unmentionable bikini lady, and the fairest of all, ME. Luckily, they made the question round easy, not like a Dr. Ingledue Biology test. We were allowed to mingle with the audience during the tense moments of the score

Phi Theta Kappa Holds Induction Ceremony

By Gracie Woods

Phi Theta Kappa is the ultimate intellectual success of the two-year college experience.

Through hard work, determination, and superior study skills, the PTK members have placed themselves in the top 10% of the community college students in the nation.

The induction ceremony for the proud new PTK inductees was held Thursday November 18, 1999. Dr. Staten, a faculty advisor for PTK, gave an eloquent introductory speech to the ceremony.

PTK President Laura Generous, Vice-President Elsie Cowles, Secretary Jada Parsons, PR Secretary Joe Griffith, and Treasurer Devin Staley, each took turns explaining the symbolic meanings of the PTK icons. With
