 THE GUILFORDIAN, Guilford College, N. C.

The ideal relationship that should exist between the alumni and the students of any college is that of the big brother to his younger chum. Now a brotherly relationship really does exist between the alumni and students at Guilford, but in the past it has had a tendency to be more like that of the eldest son and small brother who never have known each other well.

This latter relationship is good and commendable, but it is not the best that can exist. This was realized last year and it was for the purpose of keeping the Alumni in touch with their alma mater and in sympathy with the students and student activities that the GUILFORDIAN was founded. The paper exists for this purpose today and we students—the little brothers—would be glad to become better acquainted with our big brothers—the alumni.

THE GUILFORDIAN wishes to serve the college better this year than last by bringing the alumni in still closer touch with the college and the students, which can only be done with the hearty support of each individual alumnus.

Any article of interest or any helpful suggestions from the alumni will be gladly received by THE GUILFORDIAN and the students.
