

ALUMNI NOTES.

Mr. T. Gilbert Pearson, '97, is one of Guilford's Alumni who has been singularly successful as an officer of the National Association of Audubon Societies which has as its object the protection of wild birds and animals. Mr. Pearson was elected secretary and financial agent of this organization in 1905 and as a public speaker and organizer has done a great work. Since 1910 Mr. Pearson has been the general executive officer of this association because of the continued illness of the president. Of his work in this capacity Mr. Ernest Ingersoll says, "The work has greatly expanded and prospered under his administration, and the income has grown nearly 200 per cent. during that time." The address of Mr. Pearson is 1974 Broadway, New York City.

Mr. Samuel H. Hodgkin, '95, who has been for the past three years the president of Wilmington College, Wilmington, Ohio, is now secretary and treasurer of the Farquar Heating and Ventilating Co. with his headquarters at Greensboro, N. C. The firm which has been organized recently is doing a splendid business under the management of Mr. Hodgkin.

Miss Ada M. Field, '98, is again the assistant professor of Home Economics in George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn. Miss Field was once professor of chemistry here and her interest in Guilford is unwavering.

No doubt every Guilford Alumnus has watched with interest the world's baseball series between the Boston Red Sox and the Phillies of the Quaker City. Ernest Shore, '14, Guilford's contributor to the remarkable series, won for himself no little admiration by pitching the Red Sox to victory in the third game of the series and by holding the Phillies to five hits in the first game and incidentally outshining the mighty Alexander of the Phillies. "Legs," as he is familiarly known by all Guilfordians, received his early training in the game here at Guilford under Chick Doak and Wilson Hobbs and was for four years the mainstay on the Guilford pitching staff. This fact gives added interest to the following quotation from the New York Times as to his work in the first game of the series: "Philadelphia tonight expected to be singing the praises of Alexander the Great. Instead, the hordes of baseball fans are talking about the great work of tall, lanky Ernie Shore, the young mountaineer from North Carolina, who was beaten. Even in defeat the raw-boned young Hercules rises far above any other figure in the momentous battle." Of his work in the fourth game Cobb says: "Shore was the big hero of this game, he being master at all times."

ATHLETICS.

ament that was scheduled with Elon for Friday and Saturday of last week was canceled by Manager Mendenhall. But, however, before this week's issue of THE GUILFORDIAN is printed Masten and Fitzgerald expect to meet the Elon boys at Elon. We are looking forward with interest to the Randolph Macon tournament on our own court on Tuesday, the 26th.

GIRLS' ATHLETICS.

To the keen satisfaction of every Guilford girl it may be said that never was more enthusiasm and interest shown in athletics than is being manifested in the different departments this fall. At a mass meeting of the girls held in Memorial Hall Thursday, Sept. 30, presided over by President Ballinger, the following managers were appointed: Tennis, Oma Gray; assistant, Ellen Raiford; basketball, Addie Morris; track, Martha Geslain.

A committee composed of Callie Lewis, Bernice Pike, Ethel Spears, Addie Morris and Deborah Brown interviewed President Newlin in regard to athletic improvements, the results of which were most encouraging.

On Tuesday afternoon of last week, a number of girls went to the gymnasium for basketball. After a little confusion, two teams were selected and the game began. Many of the girls were totally ignorant of the rules of the game, but speedily learned what was and what was not permissible. S. McGehee and B. Pike coached the new players in points of guarding and goal-throwing. A. Morris acted as referee.

The new players showing excellent ability were D. Faucette, C. White, R. Coltrane, R. Harding, E. Sullivan, E. Motsinger and L. Hockett.

Maude Lassiter was the sole representative of last year's team, in this game and her splendid goal-throwing was a treat to the spectators.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES.

A very attractive as well as helpful meeting was led by Mrs. Newlin on Thursday evening of this week. The subject of her talk was Friendship. "A friend," she said, "is one in whom we can confide, one who confides in us, one who tells us the truth about ourselves whether that truth be agreeable or disagreeable."

"We are very prone to have the idea that friends are those who praise us, those who seem pleased to associate with us, but the real test of friendship comes in our time of need."

Mrs. Newlin called our attention to the fact that those individuals who think that friendship should be formed merely for the benefit that may be derived from them are usually most unsuccessful in forming them. Between friends the giving spirit must be mutual.

Our attention was called to the character of Jesus, the Friend of all friends, the perfect model by which we may pattern our friendships.

Several girls added to the interest of the meeting by giving Scripture texts which treated of friends and friendship. Some of those given were John 15:13, Proverbs 17:17, and Proverbs 18:24.
