

ALUMNI NOTES.

Alvah E. Lindley, '08, who has for several years been connected with Y. M. C. A. work in Baltimore, has recently gone to Camp Meade to enter upon Army Y. M. C. A. service. Mrs. Alice Woody Lindley, '09, came down a few weeks ago to spend some time with her parents here. She returned to Baltimore this week and will be engaged in Y. W. C. A. work in the city. Opportunity for great service is before each of them.

Alma Crutchfield, '14, has a position in the White Oak schools, Greensboro. She is associated with Mary E. White, Nell Doak, and Mary Stanley, all of whom are Guilford products.

Blanche Dixon, '16, is teaching at her home at Elkin, N. C. Her father, Zeno H. Dixon, who was once a member of the Guilford faculty, is principal of the school at Elkin.

A cablegram comes that Richard J. M. Hobbs, '09, who sailed for England recently with the Haverford Reconstruction unit, has reached his destination safely.

Juliette Ballinger, '16, is teaching her second year in the Pomona Mills school.

J. Wilson Correll, 1900, is principal of Bethany High School, near Summerfield, N. C. His address is Route 1, Summerfield, N. C.

Edgar T. Snipes, '03, has announced his engagement to Miss Jane Moore, of Morrisville, Pennsylvania. He has law offices in the Land Title & Trust Company Building, Philadelphia.

Carl Stuart, '15, is at Camp Sevier, Greenville, S. C.

Ovid Jones, '08, is a first sergeant in the Ambulance Corps No. 31, at Camp Jackson, Columbia, S. C. He was at the college recently and says he thinks quite likely he will be called to go to France soon.

Mollie Roberts Jones, '96, has an excellent school for girls at Salemburg, N. C. In addition to her work in the school, she is very much interested in the "model community" which is being developed at Salemburg by the government.

A son, Horace Welborn, was born to Dr. and Mrs. C. O. Meredith on October 23rd.

Bryant Smith, '13, is instructor in English and faculty manager of athletics at the University of Colorado. His address is Boulder, Colorado.

Joseph M. Purdie, '06, who was principal of the school at Ararat, Va., last year, is now instructor in Spanish at the Naval Academy, Annapolis. This position was secured through an examination in which there were eighteen competitors.

Zatasians to be Guests of Websterians

As the Zatasians flocked into the society hall on Friday evening, Nov. 9, a slight whisper was heard, "Girls there's something in the air." The suspense of expectation was only partially mitigated by the excellence of the program.

The first number was an instrumental solo by Miss Lindley, which indicated her extraordinary talent for music. A debate followed, Resolved, that intercollegiate football should be adopted by all colleges. The speaker on the affirmative was Miss Blanche Farlow. The negative was defended by Miss Mary Lou Raiford. The way these girls carried out their parts showed that the society had excellent debaters. The affirmative won the decision. As relief from the intense interest aroused by the debate, came a duet by Misses Williams and Martin. After this Miss White read a humorous selection which was enjoyed by all. The last number, tho not the least important, was an instrumental solo rendered in a most charming manner by Miss Price.

Then the suspense of the previous hour was relieved when the secretary read an invitation from the Websterians asking the society to visit them next Friday evening. The invitation was accepted without a dissenting vote.

Miss Farlow then gave a favorable critic's report, after which society adjourned.

Philomathean Flower Bed Planted.

On Friday night, Nov. 9, the Philomathians enjoyed an unusually good program. Several of the numbers were given by new members of the society, and each one showed thorough preparation and favorable signs for sound, enthusiastic work in the future.

The first number was a recitation by Frances McCracken. Her interpretation and presentation of such a difficult poem were fully appreciated.

Ruth Stanley gave a reading, one of O. Henry's short stories. As all can testify, the wit of that story did not fall on deaf ears.

Next, the recitation of "Bobby Shaftoe" was given by Madge Coble. She entered fully into that pathetic little story of "Mith Mitchel" and the incorrigible "Bobby."

The last number was an instrumental solo by Naomi Tomlinson.

Gertrude Hobbs gave a report in regard to the Philomathean flower bed. All the girls were glad to hear that the bulbs are in and each girl looks forward to the time when they burst into bloom, and all the air is redolent with their fragrance.

After the critic's report by Beatrice Lewallen, society adjourned.
