NUMBER 22

QUAKERS WIN OPENER

Rutherford Easily Defeated in Practice Game.

Guilford opened her baseball season last Thursday when she defeated Rutherford College by the score 9 to 0. The game, while one-sided and void of spectacular plays, proved to the Guilford supporters that another real team is being made this spring.

The Quakers began scoring in the initial inning when A. Newlin was safe on an error, Zachary walked and C. Newlin and Reddick hit safely, thereby scoring two runs. They scored one again in the third, two in the fifth and three in the eighth. The Guilford boys also played errorless ball and made a good showing as a fast fielding team. In base running they showed up well, making a total of five stolen bases. The visitors seemed to lack experience and confidence.

Capt. Zachary, who was on the mound for Guilford, was in mid season form and allowed one hit, walked none, and struck out fourteen men. He also secured three hits out of four times up one being for three bases. C. Newlin, a freshman of much athletic ability, hit safely three times besides playing a nice game at first base. Johnson also fielded perfectly and secured a two-base hit. Fitzgerald and Hubbard were put in as substitutes at left field and second base in the seventh inning, while Kendall relieved Zachary in the eighth.

With two weeks hard practice and with a game with Lenoir here the 27th the team will be in good shape to play Carolina the 29th and Trinity on Easter Monday. Both these games will be played at Winston-Salem.

The score was:

DR. WARD ON "THE SPIRIT OF DEMOCRACY"

Most Instructive and Inspiring Lecture of the Year Heard in Memorial Hall.

On Monday of last week Dr. Harry Ward, professor of Social Service at Boston University, lectured to the faculty and students of Guilford College on the "Spirit of Democracy."

Dr. Ward said the two great principles of democracy are: Equal rights for all and universal service. It is the duty of governments to give equal equal rights of life, liberty and social happiness to all. Ninety per cent. of the wealth of the United States is owned by ten per cent. of the people. This concentration of wealth means concentration of political power. Our government is becoming too much of an autocracy of industrial rulers and financiers. A nation cannot hope to extend democracy throughout the world without first being thoroughly democratic itself. Autocracy may be extended by guns and force, but not democracy.

In an attempt to extend democracy throughout the western world we must deal with those who own wealth and power in United States and with those who control destinies in Germany. It is becoming clear, says Dr. Ward, that before destroying autocracy in Germany we must first destroy industrial and financial autocracy in the United States.

No man is wise enough to control his fellowmen, and those who seek to master the people are war makers. The spirit of liberty is imperishable in the human heart. Democracy has spread too far for tyrants to control. Germany may win the war, but she will never be able to establish a world empire. It is only a question

CINEMALOGUES PROVE VERY ENTERTAINING

The Frederick Ray Cinemalogues given here last Wednesday and Thursday evenings were very well attended. Numerous expressions of satisfaction were heard on all sides. Mr. Ray's lucid explanations of the pictures shown added much to their interest and value while Mrs. Ray's musical interpretation blended well with the story as depicted on the screen.

The film, "Pilgrim's Progress," told the story of John Bunyan's life and the circumstances under which he came to write the famous allegory. The story itself came next, and Mr. Ray's audience followed with deep interest the journey of Christian from the city of Destruction to the New Jerusalem.

The story of "Parsifal" told again the famous legend of the Holy Grail, and of the quest of the gallant Sir Percival for the priceless trophy. Mr. Ray in his interpretation of this film emphasized the idea that purity of character overcomes all obstacles.

The audience departed feeling that instruction and pleasure had been most artistically combined.

CLAYS ROYALLY ENTERTAINED

Zatasians in Charming Irish Program Achieve the Perfection Toward Which They Have Been Marching.

On Friday evening, March the 8th, there was a visitor of unusual interest, in the form of an invitation, at the meeting of the Clays. This note requested the presence of the Henry Clays at the next regular meeting of the Zatasian Literary Society. The salutation, "Mr. Chairman," rose from numerous places of the room. A half-dozen men were on their feet at the same time clamoring for permission to place a motion before the house to the effect that the invitation be accepted.

Then followed a week of glorious dreams and enamored anticipations of pleasant scenes, vividly though fancifully depicted, of an eventful evening which was destined to be recorded in the Quaker annals as a successful demonstration of the height of literary attainment, and, socially considered, the very acme of perfection.

The momentous evening was at hand. The Clays were assembled, not to carry out the usual program, but to marshal their forces for the purpose of invading the charming abode of their sister Zatasians, and sharing with them their proffered hospitality. Each Clay was given a program which contained the literary exercises for the evening and the menu, and on the back might be deciphered mysterious Irish names by which couples and clans were to be assembled later.

As the clock chimed out the hour of eight the Clays were marching into Memorial Hall, where a very interesting program was rendered by the Zatasians. The exercises were distinctly Irish in character. The first number on the program was an excellent paper "Ireland the Homeland," by Miss Hattie Rayle. The Irish National Anthem, with all its stirring patriotism and heroic sentiment, was listened to with rapt attention as it was rendered by Misses Hockett, Dixon, Pike, and Williams. Miss Juanita Reece delighted her hearers by the charming manner in which she delivered a recitation displaying Irish wit and humor. The audience was very pleasantly transported into the melodious atmosphere and spirit of the songs of the "ould country" by Miss Bernice Pike's splendid rendition of "Killarney." Even the most dignified members of the faculty were compelled to bend cringing heads before the terrific onslaught of jokes as found in the "Pat and Mike Journal" so interestingly read by Miss Una Seal.

After a cordial welcome from the president, Miss Cronk, the society was adjourned. Then after a few moments of buzzing confusion, couples and clans began embarking on the time worn trail to Founders, where they were shown into the Zatasian Society Hall, which was at

BIG MEETING ON MAY 11

Alumni, Old Students and Friends of the College to Attend Banquet in the Interests of Guilford.

The following letter is being sent out from the college office to all those who are interested in Guilford College:

Dear Friend:

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of Guilford College held on the 18th of February, a proposition was considered that the Alumni, Old Students' Association, and other friends of the College hold a meeting here some time this spring in the nature of a banquet.

The purpose as explained was to bring together at the College from all parts of the State as many of its friends as possible to consider conditions now existing—see the equipment in the way of buildings, campus and farm—and to obtain a clear conception of the possibilities which lie within easy reach of our College.

By mingling together and taking a meal together in Founders Hall, recalling the days when we were students either in the school or in the college, we believe we shall see more clearly the genuine worth and power of Guilford and be glad to make a united and continuous effort to sup-

DR. WEATHERFORD TALKS ON CHRISTIAN LEADERSHIP

Dr. W. D. Weatherford spoke to the students in chapel Monday morning on the present day need for religious leadership. He spoke especially of the needs which the war has created, and how these are being met by the varied war activities of the Young Men's Christian Association.

"All the nations of the world," said Dr. Weatherford, "are clamoring for Christian leadership and are looking to America for Christian ideals. From France, Italy and Russia comes the call for more secretaries, more Association workers, more Y. M. C. A. huts."

Dr. Weatherford spoke briefly of the requests which have come from these various countries. From Russia the request came thru Dr. Mott for 200 secretaries; thru Francis Sayre in Italy the pope has issued a call for 300 secretaries, while General Pershing has asked for 500 men to be sent over for work among French soldiers alone.

With these conditions staring us in the face and with the demand for real Christian leadership becoming more and more insistent, it behooves college men and women to get ready for the big jobs just ahead.

We need to tighten up in our habits of living, to leave off much of the loose talk, carelessness and lack of integrity which is all too prevalent among present day youth.

In closing Dr. Weatherford spoke of the conferences soon to be held and mentioned a few of the distinguished men to be present at these conferences. He urged that every possible sacrifice be made to attend these meetings.
