SOCIAL SEASON INAUGURATED

NEW GARDEN SCENE OF MUCH FESTIVITY.

The great social of the year was held in New Garden Hall on Saturday evening of last week. Promptly at eight New Garden was filled with a throng of pleasure seekers.

Under the skilful management of the social committee games of various kinds were soon under way. While there were few innovations in the way of entertainment there was, nevertheless, plenty of fun and merriment throughout the evening. All the old games were tried and a few new ones were successfully introduced. The new students quickly entered into the spirit of the games and added quite a bit of variety and zest to the entertainment of all.

Promptly at ten Miss Louise appeared and all turned their faces homeward, old and new students alike exclaiming over the pleasures of the evening and feeling that they knew each other much better.

CALISTHENICS BEFORE BREAKFAST

Late sleepers in Cox Hall will soon have their slumbers disturbed. Plans are on foot to get all the boys out before breakfast and put them through fifteen minutes of vigorous setting up exercises in the gym. This is a war-time measure for good health and ought to be welcomed by all concerned.

GUEVCHENIAN RECITAL NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT

Badrig Vartan Guevchenian, instructor in voice at Guilford College, will open the musical season at Guilford with a song recital next Saturday night, September 28th. Guilford music patrons have a treat to look forward to as Mr. Guevchenian is a recitalist of experience and ability, and it will be worth coming a distance to hear him. He has a rich deep tenor voice which has delighted many audiences in the past. A good crowd should turn out.

The following press notices are samples of the many he has received:

At the Adams Memorial Church, New York, Badrig Vartan Guevchenian sang in good style songs by Handel and Homer, showing a fine tenor voice and superior vocal training. He was well received and heartily enjoyed.—Musical Courier, New York.

Badrig Vartan Guevchenian, tenor, gave an attractive song recital in the Parish House of the Church of the Messiah, North street, before a very musical and appreciative audience. He rendered a choice program in fine voice, and his artistic interpretations were much enjoyed.—Buffalo Commercial.

The Badrig Vartan Guevchenian song recital at the Auditorium delighted an audience with a program probably the most distinctive in point of selection, of the entire Week of Music. Combining, as the program did, in a happy way, Gluck, Brahms, Debussy, and others, it gave Mr. Guevchenian a splendid chance to show his quite remarkable range and ability.—DeLand News, Florida.

PLANS FOR ENDOWMENT CAM- PAIGN MAKING PROGRESS

The Endowment Campaign has been quietly going forward and the organization for carrying on the work has nearly been completed. Early this summer committees of three were appointed in each of the monthly meetings of North Carolina Yearly Meeting and also a chairman was selected for each quarterly meeting. These committees will not only represent the college in the campaign but also in procuring students and in other matters which may come up. Chairmen have also been appointed for each of the classes which have graduated. The college office is busy at present in sending out blanks to the various committees for the insertion of the names of all members of the Yearly Meeting.

JUNIORS MEET AND ELECT OFFICERS

The first meeting of the Junior class was held on Tuesday night, Sept. 17. This being the regular time for election of officers the following were elected and installed: Leslie Barrett, president; Katherine Campbell, secretary; Frances Moore, marshal.

Under miscellaneous business a program committee consisting of Alma Chilton, Luby Casey and Mary Coble was appointed. The class then adjourned to spend a social hour.

FACULTY ELECTS MARSHALS.

At a recent meeting of the faculty the following marshals were elected from the Junior class: David White chief, Hugh Moore, Luby Casey, Alma Chilton and Frances McCracken.

DR. AND MRS. BINFORD AT HOME TO SENIORS

The Senior Class was very much interested when each member received the following:

Guilford College News
Extra

Special Associated Press
President and Mrs. Binford will be at home to the Seniors on Tuesday evening,
September 17
from eight until ten o'clock.

The guests having obeyed the summons were welcomed by Dr. and Mrs. Binford and then set to work at a novel and interesting task. Each couple was furnished with a pile of newspapers and told to make for each other a costume. No scissors were used, and it was very interesting after about fifty minutes to see the beautiful creations which were designed by the makers—most of them being entirely original, it seemed. Miss Louise was judge, and it was indeed a striking scene to see the couples march by her. She decided that Kate Smith and Ruth Coltrane were the most artistically dressed, and that Prof. Brinton and Georgianna Bird deserved the booby prize.

After this, the guests each drew a card containing on it the department of a newspaper which they were to prepare. Laughter filled the rooms as the editorial, advertisements, weather forecast, war news, etc., were read.

This was one of the most unique parties the guests had ever attended and each member of the Senior class was glad to know Dr. and Mrs. Binford, and to learn how girls can be given a good time with only three boys in the class.

Delicious gelatine and cake were served.

MISS HOCKETT SPEAKS ON BEING TRUE TO SELF

On last Thursday evening Eula Hockett, who had charge of the Y. W. C. A. meeting, talked to a very attentive and interested audience on the subject of "Being True to One's Self."

Miss Hockett said that it behooves each one to allow her best self to be her leader. Every one owes it to herself to do her best. Failure to do this is cheating yourself. Each one should stand out for the right and her own convictions regardless of the opinions of the crowd. Being in the wrong is much worse than being unpopular. It is important to begin the new school year right and to constantly strive to do the best in all things if one would avoid coming out in debt to one's self in the end.

In conclusion, she emphasized the necessity of developing strong Christian characters and of cooperation on the part of each individual in order to obtain the greatest final results.
