Girls' Basketball Season Opens

Old Girls Defeated by New Girls in Close and Thrilling Contest.

Last Friday night there was a scene of unusual interest in the Gym. when the old girls met the new girls in a basket ball game. This being the first game of the season an unusual amount of enthusiasm was shown by both the players and spectators.

When the whistle blew for action, each player collected her pep and held on to it with a tight grip throughout the entire game. During the first third of the game, neither side scored a single point, due to the close guarding of both teams. Beulah Jessup and Edna Raiford, forwards for the new girls, were very fast and skillful in passing the ball and shooting goals. Beulah Jessup was very sure of a goal whenever a chance presented itself. Evidence of her accuracy was manifest by the shooting of four field goals in one-third of the game. Edna Raiford, altho not so sure of goals, was right there with unlimited speed and skill to aid her.

Eurie Teague at right guard for the new girls was easily seen to be the fastest player on the floor. Isabel Pancoast, as left guard for the new girls, showed excellent skill in passing the ball during all the stages of the game. Kathrine Harmon, center for new girls, was none the less fast and skillful in getting the ball on the wing to the basket.

As for the old girls nothing but pep and rapidity was manifest from beginning to end. Donna McBane and Lula Raiford, guards for the old girls, played exceedingly well in passing the ball to their forwards. Vera McBane, with the strong defense of Alma Chilton, distinguished herself at the basket by shooting four field goals during the last third of the game. Eula Hockett, last year's varsity center, allowed nothing to pass through the central territory without a desperate effort to seize it. Each girl put up a hard fight and the game ended with the score 11-10 in the new girls' favor.

Line up—Old Girls: Eula Hockett, c.; Vera McBane, r. f.; Alma Chilton, l. f.; Donna McBane, r. g.; Lula Raiford, l. g.

Line up—New Girls: Kathrine Harmon, c.; Edna Raiford, l. f.; Beulah Jessup, r. f.; Eurie Teague, l. g.; Isabel Cancoast, r. g.

Referee, Miss Roberts.

The prospects for girls' basket ball this year is very encouraging. More girls have appeared on the floor for practice than ever before. The hearty co-operation of the student body and faculty was shown by the large attendance at the game Friday night. It is a good thing to attend the games. More pep results and the players are encouraged to work harder. Nothing keeps up a good college spirit better than athletics. So girls, let's be up and doing, and make this year the best in basket ball in Guilford's history.

Bazaar Financial and Social Success

Y. W. C. A. Realizes a Good Sum of Money from Japs and Eats.

On Saturday evening from 8 till 10 o'clock the students and faculty had a very pleasant time in Founders, viewing and buying the good things to eat and the beautiful Japanese novelties.

This year on account of the quarantine under which the college has been living nearly all the fall, the girls were not able to get into town to secure dolls to dress or material from which to make novelties, and pieces of fancy work. Consequently the bazaar this year was confined to the "eats" booth and Japanese booth.

In the Japanese booth were all kinds of beautiful handpainted pictures and Japanese pincushions, stationery, bags, puzzles, etc. Over this booth two "Japanese girls," Frances Moore and Vera McBane, presided. The booth was artistically decorated in lavender and white with Japanese lanterns and parasols. In the opposite corner of the same room a sign like this was seen, "Handsome boys, beautiful girls, 5 cents each." Here kodak pictures were sold. This was a very popular place. The boys all bought pictures, as most of them were of the girls' baseball team.

The eats booth was presided over by Anne Shamburger and Madge Cook. Delicious lemon tarts and persimmon pudding with whipped cream were served. In the dining room oyster soup and cocoa with whipped cream were sold; all of the "eats" being very good and well prepared.

The bazaar seemed to be a very successful event this year. As much as in any previous year was realized, regardless of the fact that there were only two booths. Almost everything was sold.

QUARANTINE PARTIALLY REMOVED.

The quarantine has been sufficiently removed at Guilford to permit the day students to reside at their homes subject to certain restrictions. Students at the college will be permitted to go to town on urgent business provided they do not go on trains, but such permissions will be given only after careful consideration by the college authorities. Week-end visits home are not permitted. The new outbreak of "flu" at the college consisted of only four light cases. Kiser and Peele have completely recovered while Jessie Cox and Clementine Raiford are convalescing rapidly. The college can again congratulate itself on the fact that the epidemic has not spread more widely.

The presence of the day students in the dormitories has been one of the few pleasant features of the quarantine. Their absence will be a real loss and it is hoped that their experiences here may permit them in the future to enter more fully into the college life than day students usually do.

$200,000 for Guilford College

Who is to contribute it?
Everybody.

It does not take men with money but men with a will. All that needs to be said, is that Guilford needs it. Then loyal Guilfordians subscribe it. Isn't it true?

No?

Then make it true.

Why does Guilford need it.

To maintain a strong faculty.

You could not give to a better purpose nor do a better thing for education and the Old North State than to take a sacrificial part in this effort to provide for scholarly men and women on the faculty of Guilford College.

You will soon receive a copy of the Guilford College Bulletin which will set forth the policy and the finances of the institution, and present to you something of the task and student life here.

Now with our shoulders to the wheel, the old school will move forward. The high ideals and sound scholarship that have been woven into her past shall be more fully realized in her future. It will be so because we have been true.

$200,000.00 for Guilford College. It is necessary. We will do it.

SOME STRANGE THINGS AT G. C.

The social on Saturday afternoon, November 30th, was an unprecedented affair in the history of Guilford College.

Miss Louise, throwing aside all precedents, allowed the boys and girls the freedom of the whole campus for one entire afternoon.

Everywhere on the campus could be seen couples; couples playing tennis; others strolling about and exploring haunts and recesses they had never known before. Still others immediately sought out comfortable places and there they remained the whole afternoon.

Many of the girls, availing themselves of the unusual opportunity, chose to spend the whole time on the steps of Cox.

Still another crowd thought things like these too tame and so secured Miss Louise and Dr. Binford as chaperones and took a long tramp thru woods and across fields to the canon. It was a weary and footsore company that landed on the campus some time after the shades of evening had gathered.

We have the quarantine to thank for many unusual and interesting events this year.

Dec. 10th, by which time all war work subscriptions must be paid, is now past and a good many students have not yet lived up to their obligations. Get busy and see that you are not on the delinquent list.

Society News

Many Subjects, Serious and Otherwise Discussed by Budding Orators.

Friday, November 29th, the Phils. enjoyed an excellent program. The first number by Miss White was entitled "What the Y. W. C. A. is Doing in the Present War." The second, "The Origin and Work of the Friends Reconstruction Unit," was by Miss Lulu Raiford. The third was a reading by Miss Clara Henley, and the last a duet by Misses McBane and Stone.

An after-the-war program was given by the Philomatheans on December the 6th. First Miss Coltrane told us about the part the United States will play in the coming peace conference. Then Miss Edna Raiford gave a very vivid picture of the disabled soldiers and how he will become adjusted to changed conditions. Miss Mary Coble spoke on Educational Preparation for a new civilization, France, England, and America. Reconstruction of Social and Religious Forces was then discussed by Miss McCracken. Lastly was an instrumental solo by Miss Tomlinson. The first two numbers deserve special mention. The program as a whole was more instructive and more enjoyed than any given for some time.

On Friday evening, Nov. 29th, the question, Resolved, that Columbus deserves more honor for discovering America than Washington for defending her, was debated extemporaneously by the Websterians with much enthusiasm. The affirmative was ably upheld by O. Stafford, while J. Dorsett convinced the judges that Columbus does not deserve more honor than Washington.

Under the head of miscellaneous business, the following men were elected for the annual Websterian oratorical contest, D. J. White, H. C. Raiford, J. D. Dorsett, Paul Trotter, Earl McFarland and O. Stafford. Mr. Garland Jonas was gladly received as a full member of the Websterian Literary Society.

The question, Resolved that the Monroe Doctrine should be abolished, was debated on Friday evening, Dec. 6th. J. Dorsett and F. Mims were the strong representatives for the affirmative. O. Stafford and Paul Trotter were successful in their argument for the negative. The last number on the program was a humorous reading by Raymond Stafford, which proved to be interesting. After an instructive critic's report by David White, the society adjourned.

The Clays met on Friday night and had a very interesting debate. They discussed the question: Resolved that coal mines should be owned and operated by the government. Altho all of the speakers were new men except one, the debate was very instructive and showed that there had been considerable work done in preparation. The judges decided in favor of the affirmative.

Professor and Mrs. Anscombe visited the society and gave some very
