Remember that exams are coming next week and it's now or never with us!

Don't take spring fever, but give your brain sufficient exercise.

Try attending all your classes for awhile. You might never have the opportunity again.

Make the next two weeks count—that's the best you can do.

OUR LITTLE DRAMA OF COLLEGE JOURNALISM CLOSES

All things must come to an end—even a school year. Accordingly, the term of the present editorial board is at an end. This is the last issue under our administration. As we hand the reins to our successors there is a feeling of relief as well as a feeling of sadness. The work has not been one of unalloyed pleasure, but what work can be profitable if it is? Obstacles have come—and verily they have been many—but now, as the end approaches, the obstacles are all forgotten and only the joy of the year's service remains with us.

We merely wish to say a few words to our successors and then we are done and our voice is heard no more in these columns. To them, we hope the work will prove as profitable and pleasant as it has to us. We hope the success will be great and the obstacles few. As a word of warning, let them not expect it to be a child's job. It requires work—real work. But at the end the reward is great—the consciousness of a work well done. We feel that this paper is a great part of the college life and represents all the activities. Therefore, it is worthy of the best efforts and we feel sure our worthy successors realize this and will heartily enter into it. As we relinquish the helm we can be glad that it is left in worthy hands.

And now one more word and we are done. We hope our readers have been patient with the errors in our little journalistic drama. Promptings have been necessary and have been followed as closely as possible. Sometimes the players and stage have been disappointing, but such was inevitable. So now our hour has been strutted and fretted out and we are heard no more.

COOKERY CLASSES ENTERTAIN

The advanced class in cookery served a delicious dinner of four courses on Monday last in the dining room of the Home Economics department. The guests were Dr. and Mrs. Binford and Professor and Mrs. Anscombe. Miss Kate Smith served as host and Miss Madge Coble as hostess. The menu was as follows: Fruit cocktail, roast chicken, hot rolls, creamed asparagus, peas with butter sauce, Waldorf salad, sandwiches, iced tea, angel parfait, and gold cake.

On Tuesday last the first year Cookery Class entertained Miss Fox, Miss Lasley, Miss Ball and Mr. Guechenian at a most delightful dinner in the department's dining room. Clara Blair was hostess and Nina Whitaker host. The menu consisted of chicken croquettes, hot biscuit, creamed peas, mashed potatoes, perfection salad, cheese straws; orange charlotte, angel cake.

MRS. WHITE SPEAKS TO THE Y. W. C. A.

On last Thursday evening, Mrs. Alpheus White spoke to the girls on the "Woman's Commission" as given in Matthew, "Go tell my disciples that the Lord is risen and goeth before you into Galilee." "Each person," said the speaker, "is commissioned to tell the story. Girls, go home and when an opportunity presents itself tell it. By God's help we can do anything, as the story of the fishermen who toiled all night and caught nothing shows.
