BLUE RIDGE DELEGATES REPORT TO Y. M. C. A.

Students Urged to Begin Now Planning to Be Part of a Big Delegation From Guilford Next Summer.

The Guilford delegation to the Blue Ridge Conference gave a report to the Thursday evening meeting of the Y. M. C. A.

Leslie Barrett gave the opening words of Dr. Weatherford, which were: "God is looking for men who can do His work. Not a process of seclusion. Our heart must be pure, purity of desire and purity of motive. We must have respect for personality, fair play and honesty." He then told of some of the leaders of the conference; Dr. Mims, leader of a Bible class, on "The Marks of a World Christian," who impressed upon the class the fact that they should think in world terms; Dr. Alexander made a report on the rural church problems; Dr. Brown and Dr. Poteat were also leaders. The best known and ablest man at the conference was undoubtedly Robert E. Speer, who spoke on "The True Man."

Hugh Moore, who has been a member of the Blue Ridge working force for two years, told of his experiences. Those who are on the working force have the opportunity to attend nearly all the lectures and meet the people who come for the different conferences.

Professor Anscombe was very much impressed with the exhibition of college spirit, especially in the singing. He emphasized the importance of having a large delegation for Guilford next year. He said the conference is worth while and no young man can afford to miss it.

Each speaker mentioned in glowing terms the out-of-door life, the athletics and mountain climbing which occupied the afternoons.

WEBSTERIANS BEBATE THE INCOME TAX

At the regular meeting on Friday evening, Oct. 24th, the "Webs" showed much "pep" in debating the question, "Resolved, That the United States government is justified in levying the income tax."

William Fishel, Hansel Beeson and Paul Rayl upheld the affirmative, while Dabney White, Fred Summers and Raymond Stafford successfully upheld the negative. All of the speakers were new men except Stafford. All gave evidence of previous experience in debating, and everything looks prosperous for the future of the society.

The second number on the program was an extemporaneous debate given by Herman Raiford and Arthur Lineberry.

Blake Thompson, Charles Stone, Wade Thompson and J. Hampton Price, Jr., were received into membership.

SUGAR FAMINE IS RELIEVED AT GUILFORD

After Being Denied for Four Weeks, at Last a Social!

At eight o'clock last Saturday evening the student body was seen en route for Founders Hall. If anyone had inquired the cause of this procession the answer would have been easy. Everyone had heard that there was to be a social of some sort at that place that evening.

For the first few minutes the crowd, with the exception of those who always seem to have plans made beforehand for events of this kind, was somewhat at a loss. The situation was soon relieved, however, by the announcement that there would be a debate. The throng passed into the students' parlor and was very pleasantly entertained for a few minutes. The question under discussion was: "Resolved, That chickens can roost better on round poles than on square ones." Hugh Moore upheld the affirmative, while Berry Lee White defended the negative. After carefully thinking over the matter and weighing the argument set forth by each speaker the judges, Leslie

SENIORS FORMULATE PLANS FOR QUAKER.

Editorial Board and Business Manager Appointed for College Annual.

At the last regular meeting of the class of 1920 it was unanimously decided that the class should put out the annual Quaker the coming spring. Accordingly the editors and managers were elected and instructed to proceed with the preliminary work. The following were elected: Genevieve Lindley, editor-in-chief; David White, business manager; Luby Casey and Katharine Campbell, assistant managers; Donna McBane, Frances Moore, Mary Coble, Shields Cameron and Vanner Neece, associate editors, and Thelma Cloud, art editor.

A meeting of this staff was held Monday night, at which plans were discussed and a tentative outline of the 1920 year book made.

Business Manager David White has already closed the contract for the engraving and printing with The Hammersmith, Kortmeyer Co., one of the largest college engraving firms in the United States. The contract calls for a grade of work that should make this annual as good as any ever put out at Guilford. The Eustler Studio at Greensboro has been engaged to do the photographic work.

At a college as small as Guilford it is generally conceded as a rather difficult task to put out an annual. However, with the large student body Guilford has this year, and the hearty support of all the classes and school organizations, there is no reason why this year's annual should not be successful.

SCRUBS TRIUMPH OVER LEXINGTON

Hobbs Field the Scene of a Very Pretty Contest.

In a hard fought game on Hobbs Field last Tuesday afternoon the Guilford second team defeated the Lexington Athletic Association eleven by the score of 14-0. The Lexington team was made up of former college and army football players and put up a stiff game. They were, unable, however, to stop the plunges of Tremaine, White and M. C. Bane, who all three did work of the stellar variety. Bulla at quarter also showed good head work in his management of the team. John Taylor as guard and Johnson as end did good work. Lexington made some good gains by the overhead route, but repeatedly failed to make gains thru Guilford's line, which generally managed to stop them with a loss.

Guilford's scores came in the first and third quarters thru a succession of end runs and line plunges by the Quaker backs. Smith, for Guilford, safely negotiated the kick each time.

Lexington won the toss-up and elected to defend the east goal for the first half. Wilds received the punt, but made only ten yards before he was downed. Three attempts at the Quakers' line served only to net the Lexington lads a loss. Waller then punted the pigskin to Tremaine, who brought it to Lexington's forty-yard line. Guilford then drove the ball down field. A touchdown was made by Bulla, who recovered a fumble. Lexington in the next few minutes' play carried the ball thru to Guilford's thirty-yard line before the whistle blew for end of quarter. Second quarter was a see-saw back and forth, neither side making much gain. Lexington was

CLAY NOTES.

The Henry Clay Literary Society was called to order Friday evening by President L. R. Casey. R. K. Farlow was appointed critic.

The query for discussion was, "Resolved, That the price of cotton should be regulated by the Federal government." The affirmative was successfully represented by Ennis, Woody and M. White, while Holt, K. Edwards and Wray Farlow creditably represented the negative. The majority of the speakers were new men and performed with credit to themselves.

The second number was a violin duet by L. L. Williams and L. R. Casey. This part of the program was enjoyed by all present and well deserved the encore it received.

The society was pleased to have as visitors two former Clays, J. W. Carroll and W. A. White, Jr., both of whom favored the society with remarks of encouragement.

New members taken into the society were H. Perkins, E. Cummings, E. Hollady and C. Purris.

GUILFORD TO MEET LYNCHBURG FRIDAY

Coach Doak's Warriors in Fine Fettle for Hallowe'en Contest.

Coach Doak reports that for the past few days his squad has been showing a marked improvement. The line and back field are getting off more nearly together. The interference is better and the whole work of the team is improving decidedly, in spite of the long break in the schedule which has caused interest in the game to lag slightly.

On Friday, October 31, Guilford College and Lynchburg College will hold a gridiron contest in Lynchburg as a Hallowe'en celebration. Lynchburg is reported to have a good fast ball team, one that will give Guilford a hard fight. The daily scrimmages together with the three hard games that have already been played have pounded the Guilford squad into condition to meet any team representing a school of Guilford's size.

Mr. Doak has made no specific announcement as to what the line-up will be in the start of the game. However, the sixteen men who make the trip will be selected from the following list: Ends, Barnard, Joe Taylor, Johnson, Rolison and Smith; tackles, Anderson, E. McBane and B. Shore; center, L. Tremaine or Newlin; backs, Rice, Stafford, White, Raiford, R. Tremaine, G. McBane, Pulliam and Newlin. Since many of the scrub and varsity men are so very nearly equal in playing strength, this week's work will determine who will make the trip.

MYRTLE COX LEADS Y. W. C. A.

Subject, "New Lamps for Old."

"Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee."—Isiah 60:1.

Upon this Miss Cox based her talk.

"What would be the value of life without ideals? Could we call such an existence real life?" asked the speaker. Ideals are the lamps that lead us to undertake and accomplish things worth while, to press on to a higher life in spite of obstacles. Sometimes, as lamps become old and flickering, our ideals become old and almost valueless, but we may attain newer and better ones by setting our eyes upon the highest and brightest light ahead of us, and thus reach a higher plane of usefulness and service for the Master and His kingdom.

It is the man with the vision that has always accomplished worth while things—a vision of what is beyond the present, and of what he can accomplish through the attainment of certain ideals. "The great masters are always idealists, seers of visions." If they did not have visions they would never accomplish great things.

We each have, as new girls, come
