

WEBSTERIANS ELECT AND INSTALL OFFICERS

The question of whether the governor of North Carolina should be given the veto power was ably debated on the affirmative side by Dabney White and Ogburn Stafford, and on the negative by Charles Summers and John Dorsett Friday night. The negative side was successful in this debate.

The Websterians were glad to have as visitors two old members, Professor J. B. Woosley, of the Jamestown High School, and Hervie Williard, who now has a position in the Commercial National Bank of High Point. Both of these gentlemen made very good talks to the society. Mr. Woosley, who it will be remembered by old Guilfordians gave up his position as head of the History and Economics department here at Guilford in the spring of 1917 to go to an officers' training camp, where he was commissioned lieutenant, assigned to the 81st division, with whom he went overseas and gained a citation for bravery, made an especially interesting talk to the members of his old society.

Mr. Shore also visited the society and made quite an interesting talk. Under the head of reception of members Messrs. Kinney, Nutting and Odom were initiated.

The following officers were elected and installed: President, David J. White; secretary, Lindley Tremaine; marshal, Raymond Stafford.

CLAYS DEBATE THE PLUMB PLAN

At the regular meeting on Friday, Nov. 14, the Clays held a lively discussion of the Plumb Plan. The affirmative was upheld by Messrs. Taylor, Farlow and Merrimon, while Wolff, Woody and Nichols debated negatively.

All on the program are new men with one exception. This is the second appearance of some of the new men on the program and improvement is already quite noticeable in some.

The second number on the program was a declamation excellently delivered by Mr. Everett Hollady. Such forms of literary work add much to the success of the program as well as to those striving for literary development.

The society was pleased to have as a visitor for the evening Mr. Rush, who is at present a student in our local high school.

CABINET GIRLS ATTEND RALLY

a wonderful pipe organ recital by Dean Shirley and vesper services, where Dr. Rondthaler spoke to us on the subject, "The Influence of a Christian Life."

To say that the Salem Y. W. C. A. rally was a success is a mild way to give expression to the real conditions. It was a wonderful idea and one we hope will be extended and enlarged.

Those representing Guilford College were Misses Frances Moore, Alma Chilton, Frances Bulla, Annie Brown, Florence Martin and Madge Coble.
