TO THE THOUGHTLESS

Guilford students were especially favored Friday evening by the Second number of the Lyceum Course. The musical numbers were splendid productions, but it seemed that many of the students failed to appreciate the talents displayed. During the entire program, couples were seen talking throughout the audience. College students should realize that common courtesy demands undivided attention on such occasions. It is the refined cultured person who can really appreciate the master musician. It is hoped that Guilford students in the future will at least, be respectful enough to refrain from talking during any musical entertainment.

WHO SINGS?

Has the student body of Guilford ever stopped to consider the kind of singing which we usually have in chapel? If students only realized how weak and poor our singing usually is, they would probably try to do better. It is true that everybody does sing when the song is a very familiar one, but if a new song is being played the majority seem afraid to use their voices. Let us become quiet before the hymn is announced, so that we may know the number. If you do not have a book of your own, make an effort to get one there. Miss Byrd and Miss Wakeman do their part, but they cannot sing for us. Let us be more loyal Guilfordians by supporting our chapel exercises, and with real zest and zeal, everybody, "Sing!"

STUDENTS, LISTEN!

What is your ideal of a democratic campus?

The writer believes that an ideal democratic campus is one where every student always speaks to every other student no matter where they may chance to meet, or whether they know each other personally or not; where every one greets his friend with a pleasant smile—and is always ready to help make the day brighter and more cheerful for the other person. If you chance to meet a fellow student on the walk it doesn't make any difference whether you know him or not. You know that he is a loyal Guilfordian and for that reason it is your duty to smile and say, "Good morning." May the day never come when Guilford students become so selfish, and enfolded in their own little affairs that they can't stay long enough to pass a friendly word to others while rushing by.

It is the friendly congenial atmosphere that makes each and every student love old Guilford. With this end in view we cannot help feeling that it is our duty to encourage and advise the new students that they should fall in line in helping to make our campus an ideal one.

New students! It is you who, in a short two or three years will be the leaders here. Therefore it is all important that you inoculate yourselves with this single, but sound principle of ordinary every day courtesy.

Preps! Freshman! Do you think that you are to be spoken to first? This right belongs to you as well as any Junior or Senior. And you will be helping to make OUR CAMPUS Democratic and ideal by exercising this right to the limit.

Just remember that it doesn't cost any thing to utter a happy "Good Morning" and after all it makes you feel better and the whole day seems brighter.

Smile! that will make the poor little timid person feel that some one is glad he is here and let us all just remember that:

"The thing that goes the farthest toward making life worth while, that costs the least and does the most is just a pleasant smile!"

The Business manager of the Guilfordian wishes to make an explanation to the Alumni subscribers, concerning the delay in forwarding the paper to them. He was unable to secure the list of subscribers from the Secretary of the Association until last week. If all the numbers have not reached you by this time write for the back numbers and they will be mailed to you.—Business Manager.

MRS BROWN ENTERTAINS "PEARL DIVERS" AND "HASH SLINGERS"

The table waiters and dish washers were invited to a supper given in their honor by Mrs. Brown, the kitchen matron Saturday evening, Oct. 23rd at 7:15 p. m. When the appointed hour arrived, the invited guests were on hand. A long table in the dining room had been artistically decorated and heavily laden with food. Each person found his place which was designated by a small card bearing his name, and set to work to relieve the table of its burden. The menu consisted of, hot rolls, fried chicken, french fried potatoes, ice cream, cake and coffee. After three quarters of an hour of eating the guests departed, feeling very grateful to Mrs. Brown. They were proud, for awhile, at least, that they were "pearl divers" and "hash slingers" building us a good character and a splendid reputation.

In the latter part of his speech, Mr. Newlin impressed upon the minds of his hearers the value of a good character, to ourselves, our community, and to our State and Nation. Character is a poor man's capital. If we have a good character, though we have not money, we have the means to rise to the heights of fame. Men of strong character are the cornerstones of a good community, and without their support, no government will survive. But after we have built these splendid structures, we must be constantly on guard, lest some harsh word, or wicked deed injure them for Eternity. For a character built in a lifetime can be destroyed in a moment.
