

SOCIETY NOTES

CLAY NOTES

The Henry Clays met in regular session on the night of March 10. After the regular order of business had been dispensed with the following program was given.

I. Solo. Miss Kitty O'toole—By John Reynolds.

II. Debate. Resolved, that the United States should cancel her war debts.

Eugene Shaver, the first affirmative speaker, gave the cause for discussion in a very interesting way. He also contended that our European debtors were not able to pay the vast debts they had incurred during the world war.

Glenn Lassiter argued for the negative, that if we cancel these debts it will release the countries involved to build navies and train armies.

The second affirmative speaker, Frank Crutchfield, very gracefully presented the moral obligation involved in the fight for a common cause.

For the negative, Dewey Crews concluded the argument on the grounds that it would not be just for us to pay the debts of other countries and also that the principle is wrong economically.

The decision of the judges was for the negative.

J. C. Newlin, as critic, gave an excellent report. He compared the argument presented to the argument that should have been given, showing in what points the debaters' contentions clashed and in what issues their arguments ran parallel. Following the critic's report some general criticism was offered.

After a general discussion of the possibilities of the society work, the meeting adjourned.

ZATASIAN NOTES

The League of nations was discussed in the Zatasian society at the regular meeting on Mar. 10. Ruth Levering introduced the topic with a review of the opinions of some of the most prominent statesmen on the League.

The second number was a debate. Resolved that the United States should enter the League of Nations. Zelma Farlow, the speaker on the affirmative, closed her argument on the points that the League is the best organization at present for preventing war. It has already accomplished much, that although it is imperfect, it can be improved, that it is in accord with American principles, and that America owes it to the world to join.

Josephine Mock, claimed for the negative that the United States, by joining the League, would lose the liberty and sovereignty enjoyed heretofore, and pointed out in detail many of the outstanding faults and weaknesses of the League. It was admitted that some kind of a federation of nations would be the ideal way of establishing peace but the present League was shown to be so fundamentally wrong that it would never meet the needs of the world.

The judges, Laura Neese, Viola Tuttle and Ruth Hodges decided in favor of the negative.

After the debate the society enjoyed an excellent reading by Jennie Howard Cannon entitled "Flossie Lane's Marriage," followed by a few spicy jokes by Mable McBane.

QUAKER QUIPS.

We are tired of making apologies for our existence. This colyum is an apology in itself.

We heard this the other day, and we thought it was rather taking so we'll pass it on.

The rain, it raineth every day
Upon the just and unjust fellow,
But mostly on the just, because
The unjust hath the just's umbrella.

Judging from the prices of spring hats, we can't see why milliner and millionaire are spelled differently.

Of course, everyone has a right to his own opinion, if his opinion is the same as ours.

Folks that think they know it all
Are surely riding for a fall;
But the ornerist folks we know
Are the folks who say, "I told you so!"

We think that people who murder helpless songs the way we've heard some of them do, should be sent to Sing Sing.

It doesn't always pay to advertise. People who have "Welcome" written all over them are often used as doormats.

We know a number of people whose faces are several inches longer than they were before reports came out.

We are not to blame for this. We overheard it.

Question: Why didn't Professor Pancoast want to take off his hat when the picture of the student body was taken?

Answer: Because he had not had time to comb his hair.

We have designed a suit with asbestos pockets so that our money cannot burn a hole thru them. Patent applied for.

We have just remembered that our more or less money seldom gets as far as our pocket. What a shame, after all the strenuous labor of our alleged brain.

Scornful epithets are heaped upon h'm. Moans and tears almost overwhelm him. Scorching blasts of sarcasm sear him. Prayers and pleas fall upon his ear. Contemptuous words rain upon his head. Thru it all, heat or dampness, he remains unmoved. He continues in his hardened way, leaving sorrow and ignominy behind him. Who is this wretch? some infamous criminal, some terrible lord, some dreadful tyrant? no, indeed. He is merely the college dean refusing to change a student's class standing.

Vocabularies of some authors and speakers are very incomplete. They do not know that there is such a word "end" in the dictionary. Perhaps, presumably, fair reader, you think that of us. We are almost thru.

We accept, Tennyson's apologies here.

Ring out, wild yells, to the wild sky,
The flying hat, the shouts so hoarse
Why this mad delight, oh why?
At last, reports came out, of course.

Nobody has time to hear both sides of the story except judges—and they're well paid for their trouble.
