

SOCIETY NOTES

WEBSTERIAN NOTES

As Friday night, March 24, 1922, was the date set for the Guilford-Elon debate the Webs postponed their regular program. However, during the hour at their disposal of the Webs a short extemporaneous program was given.

First, a debate, Resolved, that woman has more influence over man than money. Second, Local events.

In the debate, the affirmative, Harris and Payne, put up a hard struggle for the influence of woman. They laid the fate of Samson, Adams, Mark Anthony and many others at the feet of woman.

However the negative, Rudd and Warwick, won the decision of the judges. They rehearsed several instances of the great risk men take for money. These risks they stated occur in, races, burglaries, wars, and experiments of all kinds. Finally they argued that with enough money,—power, place, and woman were at man's disposal.

The last number on the program was local events given by Winn. These consisted of a few of the nightly happenings in and around Cox Hall.

Mr. Smith, critic, gave several important criticisms in his summary, after which the meeting adjourned.

CLAY NOTES

The Henry Clay Literary Society met in regular session on March 24, with J. H. White presiding.

Due to our inter-collegiate debate between Guilford and Elon which was to be held in Memorial Hall at 8:00 p. m. the program was postponed.

Reports from committees were then heard and passed on by the society.

After several business matters had been dispensed with the meeting adjourned.

ZATASIAN NOTES

As the time given over to the society meeting was limited to one hour on Friday evening, the regular program was omitted and the society turned immediately to miscellaneous business. A report of the committee for securing new chairs was accepted and it is hoped that in a short time the Zatasians will have a sufficient number of chairs. The regular order of business was carried out and after a short report by the critic, society adjourned.

PHILOMATHEAN NOTES

On account of the Elon-Guilford debate, only a short business meeting was held last Friday night. Lulu J. Raiford was appointed critic for the evening and made a good report. The society was pleased to have present an old member, Miss Madge Coble of the class of '21, who made a few appropriate remarks.

The seniors of the Home Economics Department have resumed the health work, which they began last year, with the children at the graded school. They are weighing and measuring children of all the grades. Blanks to be filled out for each child have been obtained from the North Carolina State Board of Health. With this data which they will get from weights and measurements, a list of the children who come up to standard will be secured. Special work will be done with those who are deficient to bring them up to standard.

Each policeman in Chicago is to carry with him a wireless telephone receiver. The receiver will be "tuned in" with Police Headquarters, and anywhere, at any time, holding the receiver to his ear, the policeman can get a message concerning fires, criminals wanted, or any order. The day is coming when Mr. Jones on the ship at sea will be able to put his wireless to his ear and telephone instantly to his partner, Mr. Smith, and the secret "tuning in," better than any written code, will guarantee absolute privacy in sending of messages.

QUAKER QUIPS

painful minutes. Never mind, it causes us painful hours.

We want to know: Why the fire in the Cox Hall furnace goes out every time the weather turns cold.

Why it rains the day after the tennis courts are marked.

What has become of the regular Sunday night peanut butter.

Thru scientific reasearch we found that it can rain more at Guilford in an hour than in any other two places this size.

Moreover, we are positive that a great drought is prevailing in all other sections of the country. All the dampness is used up on us.

Deliver us from:— Monday A. M. Pop Quizzes. In fact, all Pop Quizzes.

We Adore: Those persons at a movie who think the rest of the optience can't read.

An auditorium with all of the windows closed on a warm spring morning.

The fellow who takes the Sunday edition of the New York Times from the rack, just as we start to get it.

We don't take all the blame for this colyum. Part of it is the spring weather.

Maybe you wonder what the matter was with it in February. It was the winter weather then.

We believe in Pollyanna stuff: Spring, spring, beautiful spring, How wide we ope our mouth to sing;

We strain our lungs to utter While the rain comes down in barrels.

Food for thought: If some of the meals we get are scientifically arranged, we would prefer a course in Liberal Arts.

We don't want to get personal, but there are two kinds of cereal that we're getting tired of,—and they are not corn-flakes or shredded wheat.

HOW: Why is a postscript like a woman?

COME: Because it always has the last word.

The cloak of hypocrisy is often a little ragged around the edges—probably from over-use.

Spring fever is breaking out in the shape of new hats, and dresses. Of course men are unaffected by petty subservience to fashion, to the extent of getting new suits. However, we cannot account for the recent epidemic of new suits.

The calendar says that spring is here, The buds break out upon the trees.

We can't believe all this, we fear. We don our winter coat and freeze.

The translators of the Bible were much politer than the present generation. They said "Hold your peace" where we would say "Shut up."

STUDENTS WARNED AGAINST USE OF TOBACCO

Friday morning in chapel Mr. Ogburn of Greensboro spoke on the use of tobacco. In the beginning he offered a five dollar bill to any one who could give a good reason for using tobacco. There was no reason offered.

Mr. Ogburn said that it may not be a sin to use tobacco, but it is surely wrong, because of the harm and evil in it. Tobacco smoke is a dangerous poison. There are, in all, twenty-one different kinds of poison in the smoke of a cigarette. Tobacco is doing more harm in North Carolina, than liquor ever did, said the speaker. It shortens a man's life on the average of eight years; also a tobacco user is more susceptible to diseases. Aside from the violation of nature's law the use of tobacco is also expensive.

Just as flowers add a touch of color to the home grounds, so do the seed catalogs lend a touch of color to the reading table as spring approaches.
