

DEPARTMENT NOTES

Endowment Committee Meets.

The committee elected recently by the trustees of the college for organizing the campaign for increased endowment, met at the college last week-end to formulate preliminary plans for their work.

Elihu Root Expresses Interest in Guilford.

J. Elwood Cox, of High Point, president of the board of trustees, had an interview with Senator Elihu Root, in New York City, Thursday, November 2. Mr. Root expressed interest in the work of Guilford College, and his support is expected in the effort to secure endowment from certain agencies in New York.

Dr. Binford Receives Invitation to Wake Forest.

President Binford received an invitation from President Potat, of Wake Forest College, to attend the dedication of the new Gore athletic field on Saturday, November 25, at 11:30 a. m.

Mid-term Reports Out Early.

The faculty is making great efforts to have mid-term reports in the mail on Monday, November 20. All students are looking forward with pleasure to this gracious recognition of their intellectual ability.

College Marshals Resign.

Marvin Shore and Hershel Macon having asked to be relieved of the work of college marshals, Bascom Shore and Thad Mackie have been elected to these offices.

Plans for Student Banquet Under Way.

At a meeting of the faculty on Friday, committees were appointed to arrange for the student banquet to take place Saturday, December 16.

The Guilford Clubs at High Point, Greensboro and Winston-Salem are already making plans for their annual banquets.

Mrs. Binford Goes to Asheville.

Mrs. Raymond Binford attended the State Convention of the Parent-Teacher Association at Asheville, Nov. 8-10. She represented the Guilford College Association at this meeting.

First Student Recital.

The first of the series of student recitals will be given November 22. About 15 students will take part in the program. This event will be looked forward to as a criterion of the musical ability of the college.

Tennis Tournney Nears Close.

The girls' tennis tournament stands as follows: Raiford plays Lassiter; Motley plays Allen in the semi-finals; Beaman plays Osborne in the finals; Henley will play in finals. S. Pearson plays Highfill; L. Moore plays Cooper in semi-finals.

French Books Arrive.

The French books ordered for the library have been received. There are a number of other books ordered as yet unrecieved.

Magazines are Missing.

The librarian asks that the following magazines be returned to the library: American Friend, March 30, Forum, June; Forum, August; Outlook, July 19; Outlook, August 9; Independent, December, 10, 1921; Independent, February 4, 1922.

The librarian wishes to confer with anyone willing to give standard weekly or monthly magazines to the library for use in back files.

Pherlie Mae Siske spent the week-end at her home at Pleasant Garden.

Dr. Hamlin, Educator and Baker, Subject of Y. W. C. A. Service

How one man raised the banner of Christ by doing the things which were needed to be done in his own community, was clearly brought out in the Thursday evening prayer meeting led by Ruth Reynolds. The story of the life of Cyrus Hamlin of Maine, later missionary, statesman and educator in Turkey, was told.

Dr. Hamlin was an Armenian baker by necessity. Hunger was the enemy which he had to fight although his great ideal was to found a college for the Armenian boys. "Education is the way to peace and enlightenment," he would say. But so many Armenians were deprived of work by the Turks that Dr. Hamlin had to stop dreaming about his college and plan how he would feed them.

His idea of breadmaking was at first a laughing stock among his fellow missionaries, but it grew and worked wonders. During the Crimean war he baked the bread for the war patients in the hospitals. Later he had a new occupation—he set up a laundry. While his friends called him the man with the sixteen professions, Dr. Hamlin was praying that some rich man would come and see the good that professional training would do, and thus establish a Christian college.

When Christopher Roberts, a rich American merchant provided the money for the establishment of Roberts College, he did it because he had seen a load of Dr. Hamlin's bread on its way to the hospital.

Doing Good To Others Topics for Y Meeting

"Doing good to one's fellows" was the topic used by Benbow Merriman, leader of the Y. M. C. A., last Tuesday evening.

"What can I do best that will be of greatest service to the community? Will the world be any better by my having lived in it?" Mr. Merriman said we have the opportunities on every hand for doing good. But one great trouble with most of us is that we are always thinking so much of self that we do not permit ourselves to see the needs of others and the sorrow that we could turn into joy.

He stated that since we are blind to the welfare of our fellows, we lose sight of our own best interests. We do not realize how much good a word of encouragement would do the fellows around us who are dejected in spirit.

The leader closed by reading Kipling's poem "If," after which a few remarks were made by some of the other students.

Daddy Long-Legs Rich In Amusing Situations

Fred Winn actually got sentimental with Hope Motley. There's a reason. He's "Daddy Long-Legs." Who's Hope? Hope's Judy, the effervescent heroine who persists in making people weep dreadfully and then—the next minute give a man's size laugh. About number eighteen in collar measurement, I should say. However, don't think Hope monopolizes all the laughs. You ought to see William Blair as Freddy of fourteen heathenish years and an enormous amount of "sass." It is also unfortunate that Mary Henley's parents are alive, she makes such a successfully pitiful "orphan." By the way, Nell Carroll says folks "cuss" over the 'phone. Shocking! But "Daddy Long-Legs" abounds in shockingly clever situations. And that isn't all!

ALUMNI NEWS

Flora Harding Eaton, '03, head of the department of mathematics at Mars Hill College is attending the Autumn Quarter of the University of North Carolina in order that she may complete the the master's degree.

Wm. Lee Rudd, '21, of Burlington, sends in a very interesting letter: "Along educational lines things are moving briskly down here in Alamance. Superintendent Ferrell says that he has the best equipped force of teachers that has ever been in the county. There is a larger proportion of college and normal school graduates than ever before.

"At our first meeting over a hundred teachers gathered in the courthouse at Graham. General plans for the year, as well as various problems confronting the public schools were discussed.

"The following Guilford graduates were present: E. P. Dixon, Alpheus Zachary, Genevieve Lindley, Blanche Lindley, Wm. Lee Rudd. Other Guilford ex-students were present who I do not know.

"E. P. Dixon, '03, was elected president of the county association of teachers. Mr. Dixon is principal of Whitney high school, which is a consolidated high school in the southern part of the county."

It is also interesting to note that A. D. Newlin, '21, is teaching in the Burlington high school where he is coaching the football team. Mr. Newlin is the first man to put out a football team in Alamance county. He has had good success thus far, for his team has won several games from some good schools.

Irma Coble, '14, is county demonstration agent for Alamance county. She has been doing this work in this county for three or four years.

Class Visits Castle Charming.

The class in house-planning went to Greensboro last week to Castle Charming. This is a model house, completely furnished, on exhibition under the direction of A. K. Moore, a former Guilfordian. The exhibit is for advertising purposes.
