Zatasians Extemporize Successful Program

An entertaining extemporaneous program was given by the Zatasians last Friday evening in the Y. W. C. A. room.

Jazz music played on the Y. W. organ was contributed by Margaret Townsend as the opening number. A spirited debate as to the propriety of dates at the Elon game was given by Edna Been and Sara Hodges. The decision of the judges in favor of the affirmative seemed somewhat influenced by popular opinion on the subject. Recitations by Carrie Norman and Ola Nicholson, a solo by Jo Mock, a report on the chapel talks of the past week by Eva Holder, and a ukelele number by Beulah Norman completed the program.

Webs Hear Program By New Men

The Websterians listened to an excellent program Friday night given by new men. Nearly every chair in the hall was occupied. Among the visitors present were Raymond Stafford, Elwood Marshall, George Martin and Elwood Peele, of whom Mr. Martin was gladly welcomed into the society.

The main feature of the program was a spirited debate on the subject that the United States was justified in exempting American coast-wise vessels from the payment of the Panama Canal tolls, Wendell Cude and Joe Welborn on the affirmative and Lee Cude and Raymond Ebert for the negative, all did exceptionally well for new men. The affirmative was successful in winning the decision of the judges.

Campus news by W. T. Outland was much appreciated. The Websterians' musical talent was displayed in a quartette by Ernest Macon, Jas. Diffie, Sparger Robinson, and Wallace Griffin.

Student Friendship Organization Tells of Situation in Russia

sages to a room piled with bales. With knife and scissors we made a hole in the first bale and began to delve for shoes. Out came a pair of men's oxfords. Too impossible. The poor child would lose them on the road. More delving. Tatiana shouts 'women's shoes,' and drags from the bottom by their pointed toes two high-heeled shoes, size eight or nine. They were the wrong shape again but large enough to allow for the Russian pedal peculiarities. Once more Sonia uncovers the moist stocking and the shoe goes on easily. Tatiana and I are satisfied.

But Sonia only sits and looks at her new shoes—too turned up like a jester's slipper, bulging ankles, overlapping top, uncertain heel. I should have laughed outrageously in any land but this where necessity makes comic dress outfits an every day affair. Sonia smiles ruefully, murmurs, 'Drogoi lutches. Otchen horoschi,' and we learn that her heart is set on the good-looking almost-new shoes. We beg, we plead, we perjure our souls with praising the larger pair. But no—it will be all right—her feet are swollen with typhus. The swelling will go down and the shoes will fit. Her stockings are wet. She will have a man put the shoes on stretchers. Then with a sly smile, 'They are such nice shoes.'

"At last she won us over, for the love of a girl for a pretty thing cannot be suppressed even by a revolution, and the right of a woman to govern her own feet has never been denied. So Sonia left the office, her soggy shoes on her feet and her treasures under her arm. And if today, Sonia is sitting in her class fighting with her mind on her feet instead of her pedagogics, the Student Friendship Fund Relief office refuses to take the blame.

Quakers Go Down To Defeat at Hands of The Maroon and Gold her twenty yard line. Owing principally to the heavy line plunging of Purvis, Guilford worked the ball back to her forty-five yard line, where Johnson made his second fumble.

This seemed to turn the table. Perry's good run for thirty yards, coupled with a forward pass from Perry to Clark, put the ball on the one yard line. Kirkland carried the ball over on the next play and Perry kicked the goal. This reverse seemed to instill pep into the Guilford team and they started an offensive which had carried them to Elon's twelve yard line when the first half ended. The run around end for thirty yards by Thomas and a forward pass for thirty-five yards from Thomas to Frazier accounted for most of the gain.

The Quaker's started the second half with a determined effort. Aided by the line plunging of Purvis, Guilford's aerial attack carried her to her only score of the game. Thomas and Frazier figured largely in this department of the game and it was a pass across the bar from Thomas to Frazier that netted the touchdown.

Elon now started an aerial attack that carried the maroon and gold well down the field toward a touchdown.

They were stopped by Warrick, who intercepted a forward pass on her twenty yard line. Elon's line held, and an attempted punt by Lassiter was blocked and the quarter ended with Elon in possession of the ball on Guilford's fifteen yard line. Soon after the beginning of the fourth quarter Perry went over for Elon's second touchdown and followed it up by kicking goal for the extra point. Guilford received, and after failure to make substantial gains, Lassiter punted to Elon's fifteen yard line. From here by means of Perry's line plunges and forward passes Perry to Clark, Elon worked the ball steadily up the field for her third touchdown. Perry failed to kick goal.

Captain Perry was the outstanding player of the game. It seemed as if he was in every play, carrying the ball, passing or punting. Figuring with him in the forward passes was Clark. The whole team seemed to work well under his generalship.

For Guilford Purvis was easily the outstanding man, his line plunging figuring largely in Guilford's gains. Frazier and Thomas also did good work, especially in the aerial attacks. Pringle and Warrick deserve mention for their work in the line. Quarterback Taylor, having played against the varsity in all the practice, deserves to be commended for the creditable manner in which he handled his team.
