GUILFORD COMMUNITY HEEDS CAMPAIGN CALL

Rally at Banquet Table and Pledge Support To Campaign

The Guilford clan rallying to the call of the officers of the Guilford college club, gathered about the banquet table in old Founder's hall Friday night, February 23, to hear of their Alma Mater's good fortune and "Guilford's Grand Opportunity."

Dr. Binford, president of Guilford College, explained that Guilford's great opportunity meant their great opportunity. At present, he said, we have an institution of the highest ideals and traditions, yet it is the most economical in expenditure for the results obtained, of any college of its size in North Carolina. "No where in America" he added, "can there be found a purer spiritual power than in the small Christian institution, called Guilford college. In its advancement you are making use of your greatest opportunity to take part in a great Christian and patriotic duty. The people of the Guilford community are the nearest friends of the college and to them the college must look for a greater part of its moral and intellectual support."

Following up this theme, Rev. Joseph H. Peele, toastmaster, directed the course of the evening into the subject of "Guilford College community and its relation to the college."

In continuance, L. L. White, asserted that Guilford college meant more morally and intellectually to the community than can be realized.

"For three quarters of a century," said Mr. White, "the college has stood as a living, vital presence to the community, and its life and that of the community is inseparable. We are prone," he continued, "to underestimate the value of the college, but when we consider the long line of personalities, such as Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Hobbs, Prof. and Mrs. J. Franklin Davis, Mrs. Priscilla Hackney and many others which the college has brought to the community we begin to realize the magnitude of the service of the college to the community."

"To you," he added, "the high ideals and standards of service that the college has maintained are rewards; and these rewards are among your most precious possessions."

In answer to this, Prof. J. Franklin Davis, dean of the college

ENDOWMENT FUND GROWS WITH COUNTY'S RESPONSE

"Do It For Guilford" Attitude
Brings Successful Returns
To Campaigners Door

The endowment campaign in Guilford County for Guilford College is progressing, both in Greensboro and High Point. It has just been actively initiated in the college community itself by the banquet last Friday night, February 23, and hopes are high for its success.

Articles in behalf of the college are printed almost daily in the Greensboro Daily News and their influence has been responsible for raising quite a bit of enthusiasm. The workers in Greensboro have raised half the sum apportioned to the city and there are a number of interested persons whom they have still to interview. Greensboro has no intention of permitting the $100,000 gift of the General Education Board to slip through the hands of Guilford College through lack of effort on the part of her citizens. The business opportunities have not been lost sight of nor have the educational. The editor of the Greensboro Daily News declared Saturday that Guilford is "a Greensboro college, first of all then a Guilford County college, then a North Carolina college." The campaigners in the city insist that the work will continue until all parties who are interested in the college and its success can be solicited.

In High Point efforts are put forth by the executive committee of the campaign there to complete the canvass by the middle of the week, if possible, since they do not wish to interfere with the Y. M. C. A. campaign to be waged there. They expect, however, to take up the Guilford College work in full force later.

As soon as the work in Guilford county is complete, it is the intention of the leaders to take up the campaign in other counties where there are numbers of Friends, college alumni and old students. No definite plans have been made for this work as yet. Dr. Perisho has stated that the Guilford campaign in Alamance county has been indefinitely postponed on account of the misfortune to Elon College and the proposal of Alamance to raise $100,000 for our sister college.

"Do it for Guilford" is the slogan which is spreading over a wider territory daily. Many are doing it for our old college, and a better Guilford is coming in sight.

GREENSBORO KIWANIANS ENDORSE CAMPAIGN

The Kiwanis Club of Greensboro at their regular meeting on Thursday of last week passed a fine resolution encouraging the work now being done at Guilford College and the effort underway to increase the endowment to five hundred thousand dollars. This action followed an address delivered to the club by Dr. E. C. Perisho.

LIVELINESS OF "THREE LIVE GHOSTS" INCREASES

Athletic Benefit Play Promises
Fun In Plenty

The "Three Live Ghosts" are breaking the record for liveliness in ghosts. They and the rest of the play are striding forward at a great rate under the guiding hand of Miss Polk. The atmosphere is surcharged with humor, mingled with a touch of pathos, and more than a touch of romance. The development of the characteristic cockney accent and manners is promising and the one setting for all three acts insures unbroken interest in the play itself, both for actors and audience. "No more forty minute waits between acts," say the management.

Jimmie Gubbins, William Jones, and Spoofo, the three ghosts, who are legally dead but are actually very much alive, start things when they return home to England. The scenes between Everett McBane as Jimmie and Janie Mae Butler as Peg Woofers are quite touching. It is evident that more than friendly relations are established between them.

Sherlock Holmes has found a successor in Sam Harris as Briggs, the persistent detective. He is matched by Jack Ragsdale as the shellshocked Spoofo, who is as demented in appearance as one could wish, and whose kleptomaniac talents bespeak a second Raffles. Spoofo is the mascot of the entire affair. He unwittingly unravels all tangles through his "lifting" habits and when a policeman taps him on the head, his reason returns. Thus everybody is happy.

Several valuable hints are given in the drama: how to find out whether your best girl has been flirting in your absence; how to work a ouija board; how to make jewels disappear suddenly, and numerous other choice bits of knowledge. This entertaining and educational production, which will be seen at Guilford college, March 24, is the benefit play for the Men's Athletic Association.

RUFUS P. KING DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Noted Guilfordian and Quaker

Rufus P. King, for many years one of the most widely known Quakers in the south, died at his home in High Point on Saturday, February 24. Paralysis was the immediate cause of his death, which followed a long illness. Mr. King had been in failing health for many months but only recently did his condition become critical. Throughout his lingering illness he had shown rare fortitude and patience and had manifested a marked interest in the affairs of church and nation.

Mr. King was a very widely known Friends minister, having traveled all over America and making one trip around the world in religious services. Mr. King was educated at Guilford college, was always a loyal Guilfordian and in his former years was a frequent visitor to the college.

THREE VICTORIES CROWN QUAKERS' SOUTHERN TRIP

REVEREND BARNHARDT SPEAKS
AT GUILFORD FEB. 22

Pays Glowing Tribute to Services
Of Lincoln and Washington

Rev. J. W. Barnhardt, of the West Market street Methodist church, addressed the student body last Thursday morning. Using as a theme the lives of Washington and Lincoln, he fell into the spirit of the month, which month, Mr. Barnhardt declared, was so significant in American history, as it contains the birthdays of two of our greatest men. He paid tribute to the service and patriotism of those two men. He said that Washington and Lincoln both had those essential elements which lead to success, though portrayed in two types of character.

Lincoln's face, while homely, is known the world over as an honest face, declared Mr. Barnhardt. This great man reached his exalted position in life because he was willing to sacrifice, because he was willing to suffer for others.

Washington was an opposite type, aristocratic, but he, too, served his country. He, too, was willing to sacrifice his own safety for the good of the new nation.

In closing Mr. Barnhardt said, "We need, on days like these, to pause and study the character of such men. The country today needs this type of true patriotism."

Why Be An Engineer?

"The Importance of Engineering" was the subject J. W. Pancoast discussed at chapel Tuesday morning. "There is no profession," claimed Professor Pancoast, "that offers a better opportunity for constructive ideals or larger remuneration."

"However," he continued, "in order to succeed in this profession the individual must have a liking and an aptitude for work. But being the possessor of these two characteristics, there is no greater field in any line of work that surpasses the profession as a means of obtaining one's success."

In closing, Mr. Pancoast said that it is a fine thing for any young man to have the building instinct which may be developed to such a degree, that it becomes a constructive ideal for the community, state and nation.

Glee Club Opens Season At Jamestown

The Guilford College Glee Club and Orchestra are in their final week of rehearsal under the careful direction of Misses Byrd and Robinson. Manager Lassiter announces that the club will give its first concert on Saturday, March 3 at McLeansville, preparatory to opening the regular season at Jamestown on Wednesday, March 7.

C. O. Meredith, '00, is associate professor of German in Richmond university. Dr. Meredith was head of the department of Latin at Guilford for more than fifteen years.

Davidson Wild Cats Fall Before
Onslaught of Doak's Men

Guilford 25, Davidson 15; Guilford 33, Lenoir 17; Guilford 28, Statesville American Legion 19; Charlotte "Y" 46, Guilford 24. This is the way the score card of the Crimson and Gray quint looked at the end of its southern trip. This trip brings the victories of Guilford to a total of nine against five defeats, piling up a total score of 429 points against 361 of opposing teams.

The most significant victory was that over the Davidson "Wild Cats." This was significant because Davidson had just defeated Wake Forest, considered one of the strongest teams in the state. Coach Doak's squad last Saturday night took its second game from the "Wild Cats" in a hard fought contest. The first half ended in a score of 9-10 in Davidson's favor. The Quakers stepped in, in the second half and by quick floor work and long shots annexed fifteen more points against the five gained by the other side. The two Fraziers led in the scoring as usual. Thomas and Ferrell, guards for the Quaker machine, also deserve special mention along this line, each adding four points to their team's score by two point formula. Crawford starred for Davidson, ringing the old ball four times for field goals.

The only other college game on this trip, the one with Lenoir on the 22nd, was an easy victory for the Quakers. Both forwards, J. G. and J. W. Frazier shot four field goals each, while Mackie marked himself for a star pocketing the leather three times in the second frame. Boggs was the stellar forward for Lenoir, shooting five field goals, four of which were in the last half.

The game with the American Legion at Statesville on the 23rd was characterized by rather rough playing. But the Guilford squad proved equal to the occasion and with its trusty forwards, the Fraziers, with Mackie, who had suddenly seemed to develop a never-miss aim at center, and with Thomas and Ferrell putting a damper on the opposing forwards, Guilford took the best end of a 28-19 score.

The sole defeat met by Guilford on this trip was at the hands of the Charlotte "Y" on the 21st. Here, Guilford was handicapped by the absence of J. G. Frazier.

The following lineup was used by Coach Doak in every game except that one with Charlotte. Forwards, J. W. Frazier; center, Mackie; guards, Thomas and Ferrell.

Substitutions, Smith and Connor. Scoring on trip: Field goals, J. W. Frazier, 13; J. G. Frazier, 13; Mackie, 8; Ferrell, 3; Thomas, 3; Smith, 2; Connor, 2. Foul shots, J. G. Frazier, 18 out of 30; J. W. Frazier, 3 out of 4.
