QUAKERS OPEN BASE BALL SEASON WITH MIGHTY SQUAD OF PILL TOSSERS

Heaviest Schedule in History of Guilford Baseball

Crimson and gray caps are once more dotting Hobbs field. The clubs of ash are once again swinging to meet the white sphere. In short the Quaker baseball quad is in training. Behind it, are three weeks of stiff practice; with it, are some of the best players in North Carolina, notably the catcher and second baseman. Before it, is the best schedule, as well as the stiffest, that any Guilford squad ever faced.

The team will meet every "A" college in this state including the University of North Carolina, besides quite a few junior colleges. Other colleges outside of the state played are; New York university at Greensboro, two games with Lynchburg, one of which is at Guilford, Washington and Lee, V. M. I., Roanoke, V. P. I., and Richmond university all in the state of Virginia. Twenty-one games have been arranged by the business manager, Thomas English. Of these, the student body can see seven, four on the home ground and three in Greensboro. Twenty out of this twenty-one are college games. The only non-collegiate game is a practice game with the Greensboro league at Greensboro.

The squad that has been reporting daily, has a strength of between twenty-five and thirty men. Coach Doak announces that this number will be reduced to eighteen or twenty before the fighting begins. The nine will start action Monday, March 26, at Guilford, when it meets Catawba. Four days later it plays New York university at Greensboro, and from then until May 12, when it plays Davidson college, the team is in intermittent action.

Three Live Ghosts

Sat. Mar. 24, 8 P.M., Memorial Hall. Admission 50, 75, 1.00

PLAY MAY BE SPOOKY BUT WHO'S AFRAID?

The Stars Begin to Twinkle

"Three Live Ghosts" will be walking out on the night of March 24, so be prepared to shiver your shivers and shudder your shudders. Don't be misled though, you'll have plenty of room for laughs, and, if you're emotional; for a tear. The play is not spooky after all, it's Spooify. The charming English lord, with the elevated brow, and the light fingers, swings the denouement as nonchalantly as his cane. The policeman is quite as adept at swinging his billy on his lordship's head, however.

Old Sweetheart, Eva Holder, evidently wouldn't vote for prohibition in England, but A. Conan Doyle and Sir Oliver Lodge and other spiritualists find firm support in her. Perhaps the first characteristic accounts for the second.

Janie Mae Butler, as Peggy Woofers, is very well aware of her superior position as landlady's daughter until Jimmy Gubbins hoves in sight, when she immediately subsides into the most clinging of clinging vines. Under the stress she permits Sam Harris, as the detective Briggs, to scare her almost to extinction.

The afore mentioned Sam is a coming "third-degree" man. He puts gentle Rose Gordon, Margaret Armfield, and Robert Marshall, as William Jones, through their paces with a vengeance. Rose, by the way, is Peggy's rival in the clinging business.

The cockney may talk through his nose and leave off his "h's", but Jimmie Gubbins, Everett McBane, nearly always dominates the situation and simply does not know how to lie down on a pal.

Lady Leicester affords an elegant contrast to the majority of characters, and is a most distinguished mate for — but wait and see how the triple love affair, the energetic sleuth, and the rest of it come out.

New Catalogue Goes To Press

The new Guilford college catalogue for 1923-24 is now in the hands of the printer and will be ready for distribution by the first of April.

BASKET BALL NUMERALS ARE AWARDED

At a dinner given by Mrs. Emily and Miss Nell Doak at their home last Tuesday to the Guilford basketball team, Thad H. Mackie, '24, was chosen to captain the Quaker quint for 1923-24. This dinner, given by the mother and sister of Coach Robert, was tendered to the team as a recognition of the team work that the Quaker squad put forth in the past successful season, and also in honor of Coach Doak whose birthday it was.

Four stars and one letter were awarded at this time. The stars went to ex-captain J. G. Frazier, J. W. Frazier, Thad Mackie, and George Ferrell, the letter to Fred Thomas. Speeches were made by Coach "Bob" and graduate manager L. L. White, each of whom complimented the team on its spirit of unity displayed in the games of the season just past.

Those honored by the Doaks were: L. L. White, J. G. Frazier, J. W. Frazier, Thad Mackie, Fred Thomas, George Ferrell, F. Smith, Earl Cummings, Walter Connor, Henry Tew, and Dewey Crewes.

HAZEL RICHARDSON TO HEAD 1923-24 GIRLS' STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Hazel Richardson, '24, was chosen to head the young women's student government of Guilford College during the year of 1923-'24. Acting with her will be Ruth Ragsdale, '24, vice president; Neellie Chilton, '25, secretary; Maude Simpson, '26, treasurer.

The Young Women's Student Government Association, which has been faithful in the past in its preservation of good conduct, promises a no less successful term next year, under the direction of the newly elected officers.

The Association is very democratic in its nomination and election of officers and thereby obtains the popular choice of its members. Every girl of the junior, sophomore and freshman classes is considered a candidate for the office of president, secretary, and treasurer, respectively. The three from each class receiving the highest number of votes are then voted upon as final candidates for the offices.

GLEE CLUB SCORES HIT OF SEASON AT ASHEBORO

Feature Numbers Popular

The Glee club appeared in the fourth concert of the season at Asheboro, Friday evening, March 16. The program was decidedly the best yet given, the convenient stage plan and lighting facilities contributing to an orderly and spirited presentation.

Colored lighting effects on the feature quartets enhanced the realistic and picturesque costume effect, and created atmosphere for these impersonations. The quartet numbers were well given, the sailor's hornpipe dance again evoking tumultuous applause.

J. G. Frazier scored individual honors with his Harry Lauder solo in Scotch-Highlander costume, a feature lately added to the program. Frank Casey's whistling solo and the reading from Edgar A. Guest by Joyce were again well received. The orchestra deserves praise for its balanced playing of a selection of Southern melodies. A storm of applause accompanied the playing of Dixie, the last of this number. The chorus of sixteen voices sang exceptionally well. Hits were made with "The Japanese Moon" and the arranged college medley.

The club appeared under the auspices of the Asheboro high school. Officials of the school met members of the club at the Ashelyn hotel, and conveyed them to the homes of the Asheboro people who entertained them at dinner. The concert was given in the Capitol theater.

Three more concerts are scheduled for this season. The club will appear at Pleasant Garden, March 22, and will complete its tour at Oak Ridge, April 6, giving the final concert at Guilford, April 17.

ACTIVITIES OF STUDENT VOLUNTEERS DISCUSSED AT Y. M., Y. W. MEETING

Mr. Hoover, Traveling Secretary For Movement Summarizes Needs of the World

Lyman Hoover, Traveling secretary of the student volunteer movement, addressed a joint meeting of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. in Memorial Hall, Thursday evening, March 15.

As a background for the present work of the student volunteer movement, Mr. Hoover gave a brief resume of the origin of this movement at Princeton University in 1886.

"This idea," he said, "was first held by four Princeton men who were very much interested in missionary work. These men who met together regularly for prayer, took Christ so seriously that a general renewal of spiritual life was effected throughout Princeton. These four people received a vision of a Christianized world, and they prayed for universal religion in their life time, adopting as a watch-word 'Evangelization of the world in this generation.'"

Thus the movement was started and rapidly grew. At the first national conference they challenged men for a reason why they should not go to work in foreign lands, and as a result one hundred men became missionaries. Then men were sent out to the various colleges in the country canvassing for members, and during the first year 2,000 students signed the pledge.

"Since the founding of this organization," the speaker continued, "thousands have joined in the work and sixty-seven countries are now represented in the confederation. Students everywhere," he urged, "must realize the importance of missionary work as a world problem, and attack it as such. Think of the men and money involved in the world war in comparison with the work done during those years to set the world in order through evangelization."

"Most students," Mr. Hoover said, "are too much engrossed in social events of college life to think much about the larger problems. They should study more about world Christianity, having that first in their interest."
