DR. PERISHO RESUMES WORK ON ENDOWMENT CAMPAIGN VISITS MANY CITIES OF STATE

Doctor E. C. Perisho has arrived at the college to resume his active work on the Endowment Campaign for $375,000 to be raised this winter. He has plunged immediately into the work and hopes to bring the campaign to a successful close sometime before the first of March.

Doctor Perisho went to his home state, South Dakota, in the later part of summer and lectured for six weeks to the teachers of that state. He was under the supervision of the State Department of Education and traveled extensively over the state, delivering educational lectures six days in the week for these six weeks. Doctor Perisho has held this position for many years and returns annually to South Dakota for these lectures.

He returns to Guilford with much enthusiasm and expresses his pleasure in being able to return again to the College for work in its interest.

"Guilford has a great future, and I am always glad to be back and to do my part to add to her advancement," he said.

The advancement of the Endowment campaign claims his attention at present and he is visiting the various cities in North Carolina with the idea of binding more closely together the Alumni of the College, and the organization of the campaign work. He went to High Point on November 20 and remained there until the 22nd. The goal of $60,000 set for that city is rapidly approaching a close.

From High Point, Doctor Perisho went to Winston-Salem to resume the campaign work there. While there he addressed the Kiwanis Club. Winston-Salem has been allotted $20,000 of the $375,000 to be raised

FORWARD PASSING GAME

Harrell Grabs Wofford and Runs For Touchdown

In one of the most sensational battles that the Guilford football warriors have engaged themselves in this year, the Quaker grid artists lost to Wofford 10-6. This was the last game of the season and according to the pre-dope peddlers the South Carolina terriers were scheduled to win by a comfortable score but their lone touchdown was a monument to the fight that Guilford put up.

A sensational 70-yard sprint by Harrell, Guilford guard, in the final quarter gave the Quakers their touchdown and put them in the running. From that time on until the final whistle sounded, the Quakers kept the ball deep in Wofford territory, but couldn't develop the final punch to put it over for the touchdown that might have meant victory.

Wofford, coached by "Rip" Major, celebrated Auburn star, was expected to win by a comfortable margin, but after a fruitful second quarter, was unable to do anything to the Guilford defense. A youngster named Hoole, captain of the Terriers, was responsible for the invaders' scoring, but, as fate would have it, it was his mental error that resulted in a Guilford touchdown.

"Boner" is Touchdown

On the fourth down and with four yards to go, this play called for a forward pass. It was launched and then intercepted by Harrell, who, thanks to Block Smith's superb interference, ran the 70 yards untackled and practically unhindered. Smith deserves almost as much praise as Harrell, for without his defense of the runner, the dash would most certainly have been a short one.

But back to Hoole, who was removed from the game because of his error. The first quarter ended with the ball on Guilford's 20-yard line. A short pass, three line plunges and then a pass from Galt to Hoole put over the touchdown early in the second period. After play was resumed an attempted punt by Lassiter was partly blocked and the ball was declared free. Wofford recovered on the 30-yard line and after unsuccessful attempts to dent the Quaker line, Hoole dropped back to the 35-yard line and sent placement kick squarely between the goal posts for three points. After his touchdown he dropkicked for the seventh point, so the young man did all the Wofford scoring.

Guilford relied almost exclusively on an aerial attack and McBane's throwing was very good. The receiving was off color, however, and he got only a small part of his 40 attempted passes completed. Lassiter's punting was very good, he

ALUMNI EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETS TO MAKE PLANS FOR SPRING JUBILEE CELEBRATION

The Executive committee and the Campaign committee of the Alumni association met in conjunction with C. C. Smithdeal, president of the association on Sunday afternoon, November 17, at Founders Hall, to discuss the Endowment campaign; a campaign for 100% membership in the Alumni association; plans for the "Jubilee Celebration" to be held at Commencement.

Membership Campaign

Plans for a campaign to get a 100% membership of the Alumni was discussed and it was decided to start arrangements immediately to secure new members. Representatives from each graduating class were appointed by Mr. Smithdeal and official notices of the appointment were mailed out by R. L. Newlin, secretary, on Monday. It was thought that by securing a certain member of each class to communicate with the members of their class, a more systematic and comprehensive solicitation for membership would be effected. A meeting of these persons appointed is called for the second Sunday in December, the 9th, at 2 o'clock, at Founders Hall.

Campaign Development

The Endowment campaign has gotten fully under way again on the arrival of Doctor E. C. Perisho, who has charge of the field work of the organization. It is planned to bring the campaign to a close about the first of February, 1924. The various cities in which the Alumni are situated in large numbers are now being visited by Doctor Perisho.

DR. PERISHO GIVES HIS FIRST CHAPEL TALK SINCE RETURN FROM THE WEST

Dr. Elwood C. Perisho after having successfully completed his twentieth year lecturing to the teachers and citizens of South Dakota, under the supervision of the state department of education, made his first talk in chapel last Wednesday morning. Not only did the speaker lecture in Dakota but also in Indiana and the city of Chicago.

Dr. Perisho addressed the students and faculty from the subject, "Progress of North Carolina." The speaker emphasized the fact that the state is making remarkable progress in agriculture, manufacturing, roads, and education. The lecturer dwelt on the progress of education and showed that in 1900 the state spent one million dollars for education and in 1922 it spent twenty-three million dollars. He said that teachers' salaries had increased from $25.00 per month to $100.00 since 1900, and the school terms had increased from 4 months to 7 months in the same length of time.

Dr. Perisho said no longer do we see the state with 1100 log school houses but in their places modern buildings and 5000 rural libraries.

In closing the speaker said school attendance was increasing every year and illiteracy had decreased 13% since 1900.

Philomatheans Entertained by the Henry Clay Society

Historical Program Presented In the Biennial Reception

HISTORY BOOK PROGRAMS

Thanksgiving Dinner At Home Of Henry Clay Staged

Once again the members of the Henry Clay Literary Society have given evidence of their ability as entertainers and hosts when on Friday evening, November the sixteenth, the Philomatheans were their guests at their regular program held at Memorial Hall.

History Book

The programs, which were handed to the guests just before they entered the Hall, prepared them for an evening's entertainment full of historical and literary interest but did not fully prepare them for the unique and masterly way in which it was presented. The programs were done in brown and white complimentary to the Philomathean colors and were gotten up in the form of a volume of United States History. The chapter re-enacted was one in which is recorded an account of a banquet given by Henry Clay at his home in Washington, on Thanksgiving Day, 1833. The following statesmen and men of letters were present as indicated in the cast of characters:

Characteristic

The men, dressed in costumes characteristic of the time and of the men they represented, were seated around the banquet table which was effectively lighted with candles and decorated with the American flag. The appearance of the stately butler in the person of Reid Barbee added to the effectiveness of the setting.

Debate

Henry Clay, as toastmaster, told his guests that he had called them together for the purpose of celebrating the 12th anniversary of the feast of the Pilgrim Fathers and in the hope that each would express his opinion in regard to the national questions pending at the time. In response to his introductions each man present replied with a characteristic speech familiar to the students of America history, all bearing upon some phase of the questions and problems then confronting the nation. William Blair and French Smith were especially good in their re-enactment of the famous Senate-house debate between Daniel Webster and Robert Hayne, the hot-headed young Senator from South Carolina, on the slavery question.

John Webb Cannon, the president of the Henry Clays made a speech of welcome to the guests to which the following Philomatheans responded, Elizabeth Brooks, Marie

MAUDE SIMPSON RETURNS FROM PRESS CONVENTION WITH MANY NEW IDEAS

Semi-Annual Convention Is Held At Trinity College

Maude Simpson who was elected by the Guilfordian board to represent it at the semi-annual North Carolina intercollegiate press association which was held at Trinity has returned and is bubbling over with the enthusiasm which she acquired there. Below is her story of the affair.

The possibilities of the college publications was the theme for study and discussion of the seventh semi-annual convention.

Professor James Cannon of Trinity College made a brief though very instructive speech, on what college publications should consist of, at the opening session of the convention. The college publication said Mr. Cannon, should provide for two definite things; first: it should furnish ample opportunity for the expression of the student body. At this first session the delegates were welcomed to Trinity by Dr. W. H. Wannamaker, Dean of Men, and Mrs. Z. B. Vance, acting Dean of Women.

During the convention the Trinity College doors were thrown open to the delegates and everyone was made to feel at home.

"Headline writing for College publications" was discussed by Mr. Keener of the Durham Herald. In opening his speech, Mr. Keener stated that it was impossible to conform to any stereotyped form of headline writing. This must be left entirely to the discretion of the writer. The headline writer can employ two methods of writing headlines. One is to make the headline fit, whether it conveys any meaning to the casual observer or not. The other is to make the headline tell the whole story. In regard to abbreviating in headline writing Mr. Keener said:

"I always tell my headline writers
