

Representatives From Guilford's Graduated Classes Meet On Campus And Endorse Program

GUILFORD SLATED TO HAVE GREATEST BASKET BALL TEAM PUT OUT IN SEVERAL YEARS

Season' Practice Started With
Rush As Men
Get In

One week of practice has been enough to bring out a fact that is paramount among the followers of the Crimson and Gray, that Guilford will be represented on the college courts this season by the fastest basket team she has produced in several years. Starting off with speed that dazzled the on-lookers, the letter men have seemed to strive to confound the hopeful freshmen and last year's scrubs. With ease and grace each man covers his section of the floor, running through snappy pass work, dribbling with care and precision, and registering brilliant shots from all angles.

Competition

Every player appears to be bent on clinching his berth during first appearance. However the new recruits are not of a nervous temperament, for they accept the challenge of more speed, set by the varsity of last year, and as each new man is injected into the fray, it becomes marked by aburst of speed that throws scare into the hearts of several letter men, and extends them to their limits to keep pace. Every man has been substituted for, and all possible combinations have been tried, yet so evenly is the team balanced that it is only the breaks of the game which decide the encounters. With such substitutes, Guilford can truly laugh at the foul-out rule, which so worried her last year, and can confidentially say that with one exception she is able to replace each man on the floor and loses none of her chances of winning.

J. G. Frazier

This one exception is J. G. Frazier, a player that is known to all basketball fans of the state. He is the one outstanding star, and in finding an equal for him the list of the state's teams could probably be run through with fruitless results.

The new men that stand out head and shoulders over the others are; Rick Ferrell, Rufus Smith, and "Smutt" Smith. These players are showing a brand of basketball that is sure to place them in college contests before this season has drawn to a close. For their one week's work they stand favored in the eyes of Coach Doak, and feared by old men.

Coach Doak is highly pleased with results of his opening week of practice, and feels confident that he will have a dangerous bunch of basketball players to throw into the pit against the the University of Carolina, on Jan. 15.

Tri-Fold Program Receives
Enthusiasm of Old Guilfordians

$295,000 NOW RAISED

Big Jubilation To Be Held
During Next Commencement

To complete the endowment of a half million dollars, to triple the active membership of the alumni association, to gather the sons of Guilford in one grand home coming celebration next commencement, was the three fold program pledged by the representatives from the twenty-four of thirty-five graduated classes meeting in an enthusiastic session here Sunday, November 9.

Alumni Campaign

With $295,000 already subscribed and with $30,000 more in sight the meeting unanimously voted to make a blanket campaign calling upon every alumnus for at least $150. The plan as presented by Dr. Binford will use the class as the divisional unit with one or more members chosen to act as campaign manager. The presence of more than thirty of the class leaders here Sunday with written endorsements from many more assures the fact that Guilford's call will go in definite personal way to every alumnus—the call to not only pledge but to pledge before February 1.

Dr. Binford's Plea

"Guilford calls for this definite amount, the answer must be given by you, sons and daughters of Guilford, to assure the successful completion of the campaign" were the closing words of the president.

Membership Drive

completion of the campaign, paign to complete the endowment Simultaneously with the membership of the alumni association will be made. P. S. Nunn '14 of Winston-Salem presented a very feasible idea to increase membership. Mr. Nunn suggested to start Round Robin letters within the classes to which each member contribute any interesting bit of news together with the fact that his name is on the active members list. The letter is then sent on its way. Class secretaries are to keep these letters from stalling and their whereabouts known.

The Jubilation

With the first two propositions completed, graduates and old students will gather on the campus next commencement for a big jubilation. At this time plans are being formulated to have every student who ever attended the institution back on the grounds as far as it is in the power of the association. The program and entertainment committees are now engaged in preparing for the grand celebration.

ENDOWMENT CAMPAIGN MAKES STEADY PROGRESS AND CON- TINUES THROUGH HOLIDAYS

Guilford-Randolph Club to Serve
Dinner at Asheboro

Guilford Endowment

The Guilford Endowment Campaign has been making steady progress for the last few weeks. Contributions ranging from small amounts to larger sums have been contributed by Guilford friends and former students of High Point, Winston-Salem, Lexington and Thomasville.

Dr. Perisho spent a number of days recently in the above named places. Last week he addressed both the Rotary Club and high school of Lexington.

This week, Dr. Perisho is spending much time in Winston-Salem completing if possible the canvass there for the endowment. A portion of the week following will be spent in Greensboro, and High Point.

The Guilford College Club of Randolph County will hold a public meeting and serve a dinner in the city of Asheboro during the holidays. Also during the vacation period, the Guilford College Club of North Alamance County, made up largely of the former students of Burlington and Graham, will hold a meeting at which Dr. Perisho will speak. The Burlington meeting is preparatory to a canvass of Guilford students in Northern Alamance County. A little later there will be a meeting of the Guilford College Club of South Alamance.

The College is very much encouraged with the progress of the endowment campaign. At the present time there is approximately $295,000 pledged toward the final goal of $375,000. It is recognized that the last $75,000 will

VIVIAN WHITE '25 CAPTURES MEDAL IN CLAY CONTEST

Vivian White of the class of 1925 captured the medal in the thirty-eighth annual oratorical contest held in Memorial Hall, Saturday evening, December 8. Mr. White won on an oration entitled "Henry Clay."

The contest was between four orators elected by the society, namely, Vivian White, Glenn Lassiter, Frank Casey and French Smith. The contest was a close one according to various opinions from the audience.

The Guilford college orchestra made its debut at this time and received several encores for its renditions. This organization has now seven pieces in its personnel and made quite a hit at the contest with its popular music.

The titles of the other three orations were, "Peace through an International court," "Duty of the college men of America," and "An Era of democracy." This is the third year in succession that the class of 1925 has had the representative to win this contest.

High Point Day Is Observed On Guilford Campus Monday

Athletic Events Feature Days
Program; Faculty
Takes Part

It was High Point day at Guilford College, last Monday evening. That is, the Guilford evening belonged to that part of the furniture city known as the Outing Club organized by Tom Sykes, the pastor of the Friends church. The things began to happen about the time that the visiting automobiles began to arrive on the campus and Dr. Perisho's corps of guides showed the Pointers over the institutional plant from the poultry yard to the scientific laboratories.

Bring War Clubs

The guests brought their war clubs with them in the form of tennis rackets and other athletic paraphernalia. Tennis doubles and singles were both played. In the doubles Miss Harmon and C. M. Waynick of High Point defeated Kate Cooper and Edwin Brown of Guilford. In the singles the Quakers were luckier when Jennie Cannon and Lena Marshburn won from Misses James and Merritt.

Student Body Out

The entire student body made up the galleries of the volley ball, horseshoe, tennis and basketball games. The Guilford professors, if they ever possessed a dignified air, left it in the class room, slucked their coats and took part in the games. Just before the Guilfordian went to press it could not be learned the exact horseshoe score but they piled up rapidly under the skilful hands of Burke, Welborne and John Cude. However, these hurlers failed when it came to matching skill with the Guilford girls.

Basket Ball

Basket ball games came next on the card and the Guilford freshmen boys captured a contest from a crowd of Pointers 14-7. Following this the Upper class women of Guilford trampled on the freshmen with a score 10-6. The game started with the advantage belonging to the freshmen but it turned at the beginning of the second half and the veterans kept the ball in their territory the greater part of the time.

At Seven o'clock the crowd went to the president's residence and enjoyed a camp fire supper of wienies, coffee and sandwiches. A return to the Gym was effected following the repast where another basket ball game between the Guilford scrubs and another Pointer group was staged, the scrubs winning.

Tug of War

The feature of the evening, however, was the tug of war between representatives from the college and the furniture city. The Guilford tuggers had as their end man Dr. Raymond Binford, president of the college, but in spite of the heavy Quaker rein-
