

WALDO WILLIAMS GETS IMPROVEMENT PRIZE

At the last meeting of the Henry Clay Literary Society Edwin Brown was installed as president for the coming year. Raymond Thomas will serve as secretary and Byron Haworth as censor. Maurice Trotter was elected chaplain and will serve the society as sergeant-at-arms.

The improvement medal was awarded to Waldo Williams who had made great progress in the art of debating during the year.

The society heard the farewell addresses of the seniors who stated that their work in the society had been a source of great pleasure and a means of education in the art of public speaking. Algie Newlin of the History department was present at the meeting.

WEBS PAST YEAR ONE OF VARIED ACTIVITIES

At the last meeting of the Websterian Literary society, the following men were installed for the fall term: president, Nereus English; vice-president, Joe Welborn; secretary, Walter Robertson; assistant secretary, Charles Weir; marshal, Carey Reece; treasurer, Raymond Ebert.

The improvement medal was given to Earl Henley of Mount Gilead, N. C. Walter Robertson and Bryan Badgett were close contestants for the improvement medal.

Paul Swanson of Wilkesboro was given the consistency prize. Those who deserve honorable mention and who ran close competition for the consistency prize were James Howell, Joe Welborn, Bryan Badgett and Wilmer Steele.

From a literary standpoint the society has been a marked success. An unusual amount of interest has been shown by the new men this year. On the inter-collegiate debating team two Webs represented Guilford; in the Freshman-Sophomore debate the Sophomores were represented by Webstrians, however. Sydney Winslow took Kenneth Neese's place on account of sickness. The Websterian Society had three representatives in the Peace Oratorical contest.

OFFICERS INSTALLED AT LAST PHIL MEETING

The last meeting of the year of the Philomathean society was a call meeting for the purpose of installing the new officers who were elected at the last regular meeting. The officers installed were: Lala Cox, president; Elma Jones, secretary; Julia Maud Conrad, treasurer, Ruby Hall, marshal.

Although quite a few members dropped out this spring, the society, as a whole, has done some very good work. If there is any criticism to be made, it is that there was not enough time spent in preparation of the programs and some of them were lacking in originality which is one of the things that the society tries to attain.

With the very capable officers which the society has to begin with next year there is no reason why it should not be one of the most successful terms in the history of the society.

SENIOR CLASS HONORS J. FRANKLIN DAVIS

(Continued from page one) vis has repeated in chapel and referred to as a good philosophy of life. It runs: "One ship drives east and another west With the selfsame winds that blow; 'Tis the set of the sails And not the gales Which decides the way to go. Like the winds of the sea As we journey along through life, 'Tis the will of the soul Which decides the goal And not the storm or the strife."

ad, "Thirty-seven years ago James Franklin Davis, a graduate of Haverford Graduate School, came to Guilford College. Throughout this period of time he has served his place as a member of the faculty, and without the slightest hesitation we proclaim his good name, this morning, as one who has filled his place well. In fact we can point to none who have more valiantly and consistently filled their place of responsibility than he has."

In the evening the Alumni Association gave a supper in honor of Professor Davis at which Otis Mendenhall, of High Point, served as toastmaster. D. D. Carroll, of the faculty of the University of North Carolina, spoke forcibly on the subject, "J. Franklin Davis, the Scholar." He briefly reviewed Professor Davis' life. He pointed out the fact that when he was a student at Guilford College, he was impressed by the scholarly bearing of the instructor whom he had come to honor. But he stressed more the other qualities which he had, "those virtues which steady and perfect us in life." "The simplicity and quiet dignity of my instructor had great influence on me," he said, "and I am convinced that he who can't learn simplicity in the midst of complexity can never rise to the height of a scholar." In closing his speech, he said, "I cannot cease to speak of such a person by only giving a mental tribute of respect but I must also give a heart's tribute of love."

The other speakers of the evening were H. Sinclair Williams, of Concord, who spoke on "J. Franklin Davis, the Teacher;" Ellwood C. Perisho, whose subject was, "J. Franklin Davis, the Colleague;" Dr. L. L. Hobbs, whose topic was, "J. Franklin Davis, a Member of the Faculty." At the close of the program, Professor Davis gave a very short talk in which he thanked all who had done him honor in the occasion.
