Fight For Annual Brings About Election of Staff

IS THE "QUAKER"

Raymond Thomas, Frances Osborne and Joseph Cox to Head the Publication Work

SUBSCRIPTION DRIVE ON

All Four Classes Elect Representatives On The Staff—Several Important Offices Are Unfilled.

Since it is the wish of the student body that an annual be published this year the staff has been chosen, and work has begun. Thomas will head the Quaker Staff, aided by a strong and efficient group of helpers.

The nominating committee, composed of the annual committees from the various classes, submitted its report to the student body and this report was enthusiastically adopted without a rescinding vote. Besides the regular executive officers there are ten class representatives, three from each of the two upper classes, and two from each of the lower classes. These representatives will have charge of the class sections and also act as associate editors.

The personnel of the staff is as follows: Raymond Thomas, editor-in-chief. Mr. Thomas is a man of unusual executive ability having held many executive positions on the campus including the presidency of the Y. M. C. A. Although this type of work is new to Mr. Thomas, he possesses many qualifications for the position. He possesses the ability to direct any enterprise calmly and efficiently, and he has the confidence and respect of the entire student body.

Frances Osborne, managing editor, is well fitted for her post. She is acting as associate editor of the Guilfordian, and has favorably impressed the entire college with her managing ability in many college activities.

Joseph Cox, heads the business end of the staff. For the past two years he has made a financial success of the Glee Club. In fact Joe has a business make-up and the student body feels that he will do his part to make "The Quaker" a financial success. He has three assistants, mainly advertising manager, subscription manager, and circulation manager. The former two have not been chosen as yet, but Scott Parker, successful Guilfordian business manager, will act as circulation manager.

The Art department is especially strong headed by Anna Finch, whose ability for this type of work is widely known over the campus. She has as her assistants, Laura Ballinger and Sarah Egerton, both capable and skillful in the use of a drawing pencil.

The class representatives were well chosen both from a point of interest, experience, and ability. The senior representatives are Sidney Winslow, Maie Holladay, and Ruth Malpass. The juniors are represented by Ira Newlin, Ruby Hall, and Paul Reynolds. The sophomores elected Robert Ayers, and Marie Barnes to care for their interests. The freshmen elected Leslie Murphy, and Naomi Myrick to care for their selection.

There is a feeling of confidence throughout the student body in the staff, in their ability, and capability to put out an annual that will far exceed any that has preceded it.

William W. Blair, also known as Bill, was quite a scholar in his day and he is now successfully engaged in imparting a knowledge of chemistry to the students of Greensboro High School.

Dramatic Council Hits Annual Snag

"Seven Keys to Baldpate," a Thrilling mystery play by George M. Cohan, was the first choice of the Dramatic Council for the fall play.

The first preliminary try-outs have been held. Much talent along this line is being shown. It is thought by the council that more students are taking interest in the try-outs this year than ever before.

However, there has been a temporary holdup by a pistol episode in the story of the play. This tragic affair may cause the abandonment of this play and the choice of another. A definite decision will be reached this week, and work will either continue or begin again.

TOM SYKES TALKS TO STUDENT BODY

Tells Students to "Wake Up" Because America and God Needs Them

FLAYS CYNICS OF GOOD

"While I was on my way over here this morning," began Tom Sykes, in his chapel talk Wednesday morning, "I wondered if you folk over here had ever had any advice. Of course, almost everyone is almost always giving advice in some form or another, which is very seldom taken for it is very difficult and almost impossible to satisfy everyone. There are many people who make themselves nuisances by giving advice, but there was One Fellow whose advice I like; He said, 'Get Understanding.'

"I was very glad to notice in a copy of the Guilfordian that Coach Doak had made a chapel talk on the 'Brains of Football.' Such a talk should help the student understand the technique of the game, and it is comforting to the student body to know that there really are brains behind a football game."

Mr. Sykes expressed his wish that this story be utilized in fields other than football. He said, "I want you to realize that brains and understanding are needed in our day." Some people seem to have a feeling that there isn't anything really big to challenge them—that there is nothing they can effectively do in life. Mention was made of the new scientific discovery which enables a clear passage to be made through a heavy fog so that aeroplanes about to make landing may do so in safety. "If you are indifferent to the great power of Jesus Christ, you are going to remain in the fog all your life," he said. "God help the poor cynical fool who thinks himself superior to the kind of work that the Christian association of young men and young women are sponsoring today!"

Youth can achieve as great or even greater things than have been achieved in the history of our country. What they need to do in order to accomplish something worthwhile is to apply themselves and WORK. The trouble with the young people of today is that they are not working—too many of them are carelessly flitting their time away. It takes work to bring victories and victories are what make people happy. This is just as true in the moral realm and in the academic work as on the athletic field.

COLLEGE PRESS IN 12TH SEMI-ANNUAL SESSION AT SALEM

Byron Haworth, Guilfordian Editor and President of Association, Makes Address

W. O. SANDERS SPEAKS

Collegiate Journalists Meet and Discuss Their Problems—The Quaker is Admitted to Association.

The twelfth semi-annual meeting of the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association convened at Salem College October 29 and 30 as guests of the Salemite and Sights and Insights staffs. With the splendid co-operation from the Salem officials, student body, business men of Winston and the daily papers of the city, the entire delegation of seventy-five college editors and business managers acclaimed this the most successful and beneficial of all previous conventions.

Delegates began to arrive early Thursday afternoon. All delegates were shown to the Alice Clewell Building where Miss Dorothy Sievers was stationed to assign the girls to their rooms and the boys to their homes in town.

The first address of the occasion was given by W. C. Saunders, publisher of the Independent, Elizabeth City, N. C. Mr. Saunders in his address gave some practical advice to those who plan to enter the field of country journalism. "Young folk, if you are intending to go in the field of journalism, whether it be in the realm of the country journalists, or on the staff of the big city dailies, above all things be independent, be bold, be just as daring as you dare to be, but never for a moment allow an immoral suggestion to creep into your columns," was the warning given to the young college editors. "Your newspaper will have no excuse to exist," he said, "if you do not make it original. It will have no appeal. Readers will turn to the big dailies. The money for your paper comes from the advertising columns giving business men control over the newspaper business. Let the editor tell me that the advertiser does not control his page and I will tell you he is a liar."

"If you be bold, audacious, keep your hand on the pulse of your people, you will not make much money, but you will save country journalism in the South and your people will have respect for you. Strive for fearlessness and independence."

After Mr. Saunders' address the convention adjourned to an informal reception.

MANY STUDENTS ON THE GOSPEL TEAMS

About Forty Guilford Students Join Organization to Help In the Churches

THERE ARE FOUR TEAMS

Under the supervision of Rev. Lewis McFarland, Evangelistic Superintendent of Friends, and Rev. Joseph Peele, pastor of Guilford College Friends' church, the students at Guilford College have added another bit of history to the annals of the College. An organization has been formed known as the "Guilford College Gospel Teams."

The purpose of these teams is to go to various churches within a radius of fifty odd miles of the college, that wish their services, two Sunday evenings in a month and hold devotional services.

This body of young people is composed of forty members. The majority of them come from the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. organizations on the campus, and it also includes other students that have given their life of service for the work of the Master.

This organization is divided into four teams. Each team comprises four or five members. The teams are changed each alternating Sunday in order that every member of the organization may have a chance to take part.

It is the purpose of each team to go in prayer and accomplish all they can for the Master.

On Sunday evening November 1st the first four organized teams went to the following churches; Asheboro Friends Church, Winston-Salem, Oak Hill, and Archdale.

Monday Chapel

In chapel Monday morning books were discussed. Professor Samuel Haworth read a Scripture reading from II Timothy IV, 13, where Paul requested his son to bring the Parchments or books.

Miss Ricks, Librarian, expressed her willingness to assist the students in the use of the Library, giving helpful hints along this line.

Charles Coble, '29, presented a few remarks concerning "The Book of Guilford" for 1927, pointing out the advantages it will have as an advertisement for Guilford and urging every loyal Guilfordian to get behind this work and make "The Book of Guilford" successful.

LENOIR-RHYNE TEAM RUNS WILD, BEATING FIGHTING QUAKERS

Guilford Puts Up Strong Fight During First Quarter But Is Defeated 39-0

SPURLOCK OUTSTANDING

Fighting Quakers Lack In Reserve Strength and Fail to Score Though Within Few Yards of Goal Line.

Fighting desperately, but hopelessly, until the last whistle, the fighting Quakers bowed down in defeat before the hard driving Lenoir-Rhyme aggregation 39-0 this afternoon on Hobbs field, making the fifth straight victory for the Rhyneians and no defeats. The first quarter was the scene of some good football. Guilford made several spectacular end runs and threatened to score several times but was always kept from the goal line by a mere margin. The student body was over-joyed with enthusiasm when the Quakers went down the field with end runs and straight football only to be stopped at the five yard line.

In the second quarter Lenoir's famous halfback, Spurlock, broke loose and made several end runs. The Quakers could do very little to stop him with the good interference by the rest of his team. During the second quarter Whisenhunt and Spurlock made a touchdown apiece and the extra point was scored each time, making the score at the end of the first half 14-0.

The second half started with a bad kick off by Guilford. Lenoir failed to make the first down and Guilford received the ball on the 15 yard line. After the middle of the third quarter the Quakers began to weaken and the visitors easily ran several first downs. Evading the attacks of several Guilford men Cox broke loose and made a long run for the five yard line making it easy for the ball to be carried over

HALLOWE'EN PARTY IS HELD SAT. NIGHT

Annual Social Event of Fall Is Scene of Many Costumes and Fortune Telling

HIKE ON COBLE ROAD

Guilford celebrated Hallowe'en with a general party which included all the time-honored institutions of all Saints Eve.

Between 6:30 and 7:30, the majority of students and some teachers underwent a change from hum drum college members for spooks, picturesque figures, or fantastic enigmas.

The faculty judged the costumes, awarding the prizes to Anna Mae Newlin and May Hollady, who were dressed as Quaker twins, and to Paul Reynolds, who was perfectly disguised as "a conglomeration of affairs."

After the judging the company proceeded en masse out to the Coble road, through the graveyard, where superstitious terror was justified by various wandering ghosts, to the old school house. The entrance was guarded by the "Three Fates" whose "handshakes of welcome" were respectively "clammy," "gooey," and "sticky." The room upstairs had been decorated according to Hallowe'en tradition in orange and black with corn shocks, jack-o'-lanterns, and big black cats.
