READING NEWSPAPERS SUBJECT MISS STRONG

Those Who Aspire to Know the Facts Cannot Judge by Headlines Says Correspondent

CONSIDER BOTH SIDES QUESTION

"Don't judge by the headlines," was the advice by the speaker in chapel Tuesday morning, March 29, to those students who aspire to keep up with the events of the world through the columns of the newspapers.

Miss Strong went on to say that while there are many comments about newspapers being unreliable, the Associated Press dispatches are generally correct. Therefore, a person reading a news item ought always to observe the date, and the place from where the dispatch came.

The speaker also pointed out the reasons why she thought that during the next twenty-four years America, Russia, and China would become the dominant nations of the world, and why she thought it important that we, as wide-awake patriots should keep abreast of the news of the day.

GUILFORD GLEE CLUB GIVES RADIO PROGRAM

Program Is Broadcast Over Station WNRC in Greensboro Under the Auspices of the Chamber of Commerce Last Thursday Night—Many Friends of College Tune in For Music

It was a new venture for the Glee Club when it sang over the air Thursday night from WNRC, the Chamber of Commerce Broadcasting Station on the twelfth floor of the Jefferson Standard building of Greensboro.

This report can not testify as to the music received at the other end, wherever that may have been, but judging from the reports that came in it was evidently as good there as at the first end. Some received every number clearly while others received mostly static except possibly for the solo numbers.

The club was quite pleased with the number of calls received after the program, congratulating it on its good work and splendid concert. Telegrams were received from several states favorably reporting the evening program.

The program consisted of extracts from the regular spring concert program. The chorus played the bigger part although solo and quartette numbers were given.

PRESIDENT BINFORD MAKES TRIP NORTH

Visited Philadelphia Yearly Meeting, New York and Other Places

IN INTEREST OF COLLEGE

President Binford has just returned from different points in the northern states where he has been primarily in the interest of the college. He spent some time in New York but a greater part of his time in Philadelphia attending the yearly meeting there.

Dr. Binford spoke once in the young people's meeting of the yearly meeting, extending to all young friends there a warm invitation to come to the All Eastern Conference to be held here next August. He also expressed his hope that the young friends would be able to give to all a fuller interpretation of Jesus Christ.

One of President Binford's purposes in making the trip north was to talk with authorities on orientation courses with the hope of introducing such courses at Guilford. He talked with college presidents and college instructors on this question and feels that he received some valuable information thereon. He was also interested in talking with people concerning Guilford and arousing interest in the college.

QUAKER PROOFS NOW IN HANDS OF THE STAFF

A portion of the "Quaker" has been witnessed in actual form. Namely, the greater part of the engraving proof is in the hands of the staff. The work appears very satisfactory and hopes are still high for the coming of an attractive annual. The printed proof is expected at any date.

The circulation manager is busy mailing 250 application cards for annuals to the alumni, and others who are interested in Guilford. At present there are only seventy ordered copies left for sale. It is hoped outsiders will express their interest in the college by sending in orders for these few remaining copies.

After another week of intensive practice, and several days vacation at Easter time we are planning to give you a worthwhile evening of mystery and humor.

At a recent meeting of the Dramatic Council Wilmer Steele was unanimously elected to succeed Robert Ayers. He comes in highly recommended and with new scenery to be made for "Grumpy" new suggestions and skilled labor is badly needed.

How many seats would you like to have reserved for April 30?

HISTORICAL VALUABLES ARE ADDED TO VAULT

Alec Wray Presents Discipline of Friends of N. C. Published in Eleventh Month, 1838

An addition has recently been made to the valuable collection of historic records of the Friends' Meeting in North Carolina, which is kept in the vault of Guilford College.

Mr. Alec Wray of Winston-Salem, a sincere friend and supporter of Guilford College has presented an historically valuable Discipline of Friends of North Carolina which was published by a "Meeting held at New Garden in Guilford County, North Carolina, in the eleventh month of 1838." In the book is a slip of paper bearing in faded ink the name Catherine Ann Haworth and the date 1845. The discipline is the oldest one now known in the state, though there is always the hope that an earlier one may be brought to light.

The collection at Guilford includes Disciplines of 1854, 1876, 1893, and the Uniform Discipline of 1906 as well as meeting records dating from about 1690. Mr. Wray's gift was highly appreciated and forms an important supplement to the documents already gathered in the vault.

The collection is under the supervision of Dr. Hobbs, Miss Era Lasley, and Miss Laura Worth, serving on a committee appointed by the Yearly Meeting. It has been found not only interesting as an historical record of Friends meetings in North Carolina, but very valuable in North Carolina, and very valuable for geneological research.

More High Schools Than Ever Before Are Expected to Take Part

GUILFORD PLAYS ELON

Declamation-Recitation Contest Will Take Place in Memorial Hall at Eight O'clock P. M.

Saturday, April 9, Guilford College will hold its seventeenth annual high school day. Approximately sixty high schools have been invited to participate in the day's program and while it is not definitely known how many schools will accept the invitation there is every indication to believe that there will be a larger number of High Schools taking part than ever before.

In the morning the field events will take place on Hobbs field, starting at 10 a.m. and continuing until noon. Starting at 2 p.m. the track events will occur, including dashes, long runs and hurdles. Then after these events the Quaker nine will clash with their old rival, Elon, on the Quaker's diamond.

The final High School events of the day will be a Declamation-Recitation contest that takes place in memorial Hall at eight p.m. After these close, the contestants and visitors will be tendered a reception which is under the auspices of the four literary societies.

LIFE OF BEETHOVEN IS DISCUSSED IN CHAPEL

Mrs. Raymond Binford Gives a Talk Preparatory to Symphony Program Saturday Night

100TH ANNIVERSARY OF PIANIST

How many of us will be remembered a hundred years from now? How many works of art are we producing that will last? asked Mrs. Binford in chapel Friday morning when she gave a sketch of the life of Beethoven preparatory to one of his symphonies that was given Saturday evening. His ambition was to become a great pianist and began his work as such but he became deaf and was not able to judge the loudness and softness of his music, so he gave up that part of his work.

Musie was no pleasant diversion for Beethoven. It was his life. Often he became so absorbed in his work that he forgot to eat. We are told that on one occasion when having his portrait painted he apparently forgot all about the presence of the artist and walked over to the piano and began to improvise a melody that had been running through his mind. However, the artist having been warned before hand moved his work near the instrument and was able to work for hours without being disturbed, so absorbed was Beethoven in his music. He was physically awkward and never could even make the goose quills with which he wrote, but it has been said that he gave us the most beautiful things with sound.

Beethoven was not snobbish, neither was his music highbrow nor lowbrow, but he had reached the perfection of expression and he has given to us sonatas and symphonies of supreme musical architecture. His philosophy was that one should dance and sing when happy and this idea was woven in his symphonies.

Beethoven was born in 1770 and died in 1827, and now it is with a growing appreciation that we celebrate the hundredth anniversary of his death with his own masterpieces and hail him as king of pianists.
